Reds Commute Sentences For Two Condemned Jews

15-Year Terms Ordered; Israel Applauds Move

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Russian Supreme Court, presumably acting on orders from the Kremlin, today commuted to 15 years the death sentences against two Leningrad Jews convicted of plotting to hijack a Russian plane to Sweden. The sentences of three others of the 11 defendants were reduced.

The announcement by relatives who attended the final session in the court near Red Square touched off cheering and dancing in the snowy streets of Moscow by Jews who had gathered outside. But some complained later that 15 years at hard labor for defendant Mark Dymshits meant a slow death instead of a quick one.

(A Jerusalem dispatch said Premier Golda Meir led the Israeli nation in exulting over the commutations. In a statement issued by her office she said "the Jewish people in Israel and throughout the world rejoice." She credited worldwide Jewish solidarity, appeals by governments and personalities and a "general humanitarian awakening across the world" with helping persuade the Kremlin to spare the two lives.)

The death sentences of Dymshits and defendant Eduard Kuznetsov came one day after Generalissimo Francisco Franco commuted to 30 years the death sentences imposed on six Basque nationalists convicted of murder and terrorism. It was not known if the Kremlin was moved by Franco's action but both cases produced worldwide furor.

The sentences of one of the Leningrad defendants was reduced from 15 to 12 years, another from 13 to 10 years and the third from 12 to 10. Sentences for the six others, including a woman, were confirmed.

Dymshits was ordered to serve his 15 years on "strict regime," the Soviet equivalent of hard labor and the longest sentence permitted under Soviet law. Kuznetsov's term was for "special regime," which is less rigorous. In the past such sentences usually have been commuted for good behavior at the end of seven years.

A Tass news agency report on the trial today repeated earlier official Soviet protests against "slanderers who are trying to create among gullible people the impression that the Soviet court tried the criminals not for the crimes they had committed but for their Jewish religion."

News of the trial has not been published in the main Soviet newspapers for the general public to read.

Western observers said the top Soviet political leadership apparently made the decision to commute the sentences long before the court completed its hearing. A Danish Communist correspondent, Palle Andersen of the Copenhagen newspaper Land og Folk wrote Wednesday that the sentences would be commuted to 15 years.

His story was in print hours before the court completed its deliberations. Since Andersen has close contacts with the Soviet Communist Party and would not write anything that would anger the Soviets, his "reliable sources" must have had top leadership approval to give him the information. It follows, Western observers said, that the leadership instructed the court to commute the death sentences.

The 11, in a trial in Leningrad last week, were convicted of plotting to hijack a commercial airliner and fly to the West, probably Scandinavia, from where they hoped to immigrate to Israel.

Tass, in a brief story, also announced the commutation of the death sentences. It said "in considering their appeals, the supreme court proceeded from the fact that the hijack attempt was timely averted and that under Soviet law the death penalty is an exceptional measure of punishment."

The Soviets had waged a

Hospital Future 'In Limbo'

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The future of several hundred Marin County residents and their families who are patients or staff members at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital is "in limbo," according to H.F. Ortmeyer of Ignacio, hospital administrator.

The Nixon Administration is considering closing the facility and seven other PHS hospitals that cost $71 million a year to operate. The Department of Health Education and Welfare submitted the closure recommendation to Nixon last week.

A decision had been expected by today, but congressional pressure resulted in new hearings, Ortmeyer explained.

The administrator said yesterday, "We figure 20 per cent of the hospital's employees, mostly doctors and dentists in the higher pay brackets, live in Marin." With the families of the 140 or 150 staff workers from Marin, "you're talking about 500 to 600 people directly affected" by the proposed closure, Ortmeyer said. The Marin payroll alone is $2.5 to $3 million a year, the official added.

The professional men are commissioned officers in the U.S. Public Health Service. Whether they might be reassigned, or simply laid off "is one of the questions no one has answered," Ortmeyer said. If all eight PHS hospitals were closed, there would be nowhere for them to go, Ortmeyer claimed.

The San Francisco hospital serves an average of 300 patients a day, mostly acute cases rather than patients with chronic illness. Two-thirds of the caseload are Merchant Marine members, but "all federal employees in the Bay Area are eligible if the injury or sickness is

FIRE MAKES WATER BED LEAKY MESS

Fire in a water bed?

Firemen said frame work and padding of the bed ignited from the heat of a device used to warm the bed water.

Firemen, who were not called until 10:21 a.m. yesterday, reported no one was in the bed when the blaze started in an upstairs bedroom. They said the spilling water at least helped to minimize fire damage, if it did not extinguish the blaze.

Seeping water caused damage to the downstairs living room and den, estimated at $500. Damage to the bed was placed at $300.

Bagley May Lose His Tax Post

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic Assemblyman Joe Gonsalves of La Mirada will become the new chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee, sources said today.

The sources said Gonsalves will replace Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, as chairman of the tax writing committee.

Bagley last year authored Gov. Ronald Reagan's unsuccessful tax revision plan. Gonsalves sponsored his own unsuccessful plan to set limits on homeowner property taxes.

Kentucky Blast Kills 38 Miners

HYDEN, Ky. (UPI)—A coal mine in which 38 miners were killed Wednesday in an explosion deep under ground was closed for three days last summer because of "dangerous" conditions resulting from violation of federal safety laws, the U. S. Bureau of Mines disclosed today.

The explosion, of unknown origin, ripped through two shafts of a Finley Coal Co. mine near this small mining village in the southeastern Kentucky coal fields, apparently killing the men instantly 1,600 feet inside the pit.

The blast, second worst mine disaster in Kentucky history, spewed a pillar of coal dust from the mine and the wind swept it "like a tornado" above a snow-covered mountainside.

U. S. Bureau of Mines records showed federal inspectors had ordered men out of the mine last June 19 because of "dangerous accumulation of loose coal and coal dust" and absence of proper tests for presence of gas.

Inspectors concluded there was "imminent danger" and closed the mine for three days until the conditions were corrected.

Another inspection of a portion of the mine Nov. 19 showed one violation—lack of face rescue devices for underground miners. The devices are similar to gas masks and are intended to protect men for up to an hour from deadly carbon monoxide gas formed by explosions.

Grieving relatives waited through the night at the mouths of the mine shafts as soot-covered rescue workers brought out the bodies and the victims' names were called out by Coroner Dwayne Miller.

Coony Couches waited 12 hours before he heard the name of his son, Alonzo, called.

No Angela Attorney; Magee Lawyer Hit?

While Angela Y. Davis still hadn't settled today on what attorneys are going to represent her, a lawyer appointed for her codefendant, Ruchell Magee, apparently was punched when he went to see the San Quentin inmate yesterday.

Prison officials and the attorney, A. Leonard Bjorklund, refused to discuss the incident, saying they were included in an order by Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court prohibiting pretrial publicity.

It was unclear whether Bjorklund was struck by Magee or another inmate at the prison's adjustment center, where the most unruly of the San Quentin convicts are housed. Sources said the attorney was hit as he reached out to shake hands.

Magee has objected strenuously in court appearances to any court-appointed lawyer, saying repeatedly that he wished to defend himself. After Appeal Court Justice Winslow Christian ruled on Dec. 22 that Magee was incapable of representing himself, Bjorklund, whose office is in Sausalito, was appointed.

Sausalito Asked To Reject Plan For Central Ferry Terminal

By PAT ANGLE

The Golden Gate Bridge district's plan for a single ferry terminal in central Sausalito came under fire yesterday from Sausalito's planning director, who contends the proposal is contrary to the best interests of the community.

In a report completed yesterday, H. Eric Borgwardt said the negative aspects of a permanent terminal, which the district is proposing for the area between Litho and Locust streets, "far outweigh any meaningful and positive results from its establishment."

Borgwardt called for the Sausalito City Council and Planning Commission to reject the bridge district's plan, which includes a 350-unit underground parking facility and park and commercial development. Much of the park and other facilities would be built on land which the district would fill.

According to the planning director, the city should hold the bridge district to its original commitment to construct a terminal in the Marin ship area in northern Sausalito and maintain a downtown whistle stop on weekdays and during the day.

In July, when the council granted the district a conditional use permit to operate ferry service in Sausalito, the two stops were part of the conditions imposed by the city.

In November, on the advice of Philip F. Spaulding, its consulting naval architect, directors of the district altered their earlier plans for two stops, including a northern facility. At that time, directors told the city council a central location was "more economically and practically feasible."

The district cited the cost of dredging and maintenance that would be needed for a channel at the northern site added and extra travel time from San Francisco.

And in recent weeks, the bridge district moved to seek federal assistance for a 600-car paking lot in the Marin ship area, in addition to the central parking facility.

In the strongly worded report, Borgwardt said a single central terminal would defeat much of the intent of the city's recently adopted central waterfront plan.

He explained the city's goals in adopting the plan included maintenance of the shoreline in its present form, with little or no fill permitted, and development of the Caledonia Street areas as a commercial district to serve residents. In addition, he said, Sausalito's plan for the central waterfront seeks to curtail parking in that area, to encourage small boat facilities, control auto access to the community and confine tourist-oriented business primarily to the downtown area.

The planning director

Paycheck Deductions Less Now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On New Years Day, the government begins a financial juggling act with the American worker's paycheck. Social Security taxes will increase, but income tax withholding rates decrease.

The break-even point is roughly $150 a week —$7,800 a year. Generally, if you make more than that, more money will disappear weekly from your paycheck than for the same salary last year. If you make less, your take home pay will increase.

Regardless of what Congress does with pending Social Security legislation, payroll deductions for Social Security and Medicare will rise automatically Jan. 1 from 4.8 to 5.2 per cent on both employes and employers. This increase is provided under existing law.

Those payingthe maximum payroll tax —$7,800 a year or more —will pay an additional $31.20 a year in Social Security taxes because of this 0.4 rise in the tax rate. Their employers also will be nicked for an additional $31.20.

Because the levy is collected at the rate of 5.2 per cent a week until the maximum is reached, a person earning $400 a week will find his payroll deduction increased by $1.60 a week until the new ceiling of $405.60 in deductions is reached.

A person earning exactly $7,800 a year will find his deduction increased by 60 cents a week. A person earning $5,000 a year will have a 38 cents per week boost in his payroll deduction.

But there is good news too for the harried taxpayer. It is

In a statement issued by her office she said "the Jewish people in Israel and throughout the world rejoice." She credited worldwide Jewish solidarity, appeals by governments and personalities and a "general humanitarian awakening across the world" with helping persuade the Kremlin to spare the two lives.)

The death sentences of Dymshits and defendant Eduard Kuznetsov came one day after Generalissimo Francisco Franco commuted to 30 years the death sentences imposed on six Basque nationalists convicted of murder and terrorism. It was not known if the Kremlin was moved by Franco's action but both cases produced worldwide furor.

The sentences of one of the Leningrad defendants was reduced from 15 to 12 years, another from 13 to 10 years and the third from 12 to 10. Sentences for the six others, including a woman, were confirmed.

Dymshits was ordered to serve his 15 years on "strict regime," the Soviet equivalent of hard labor and the longest sentence permitted under Soviet law. Kuznetsov's term was for "special regime," which is less rigorous. In the past such sentences usually have been commuted for good behavior at the end of seven years.

A Tass news agency report on the trial today repeated earlier official Soviet protests against "slanderers who are trying to create among gullible people the impression that the Soviet court tried the criminals not for the crimes they had committed but for their Jewish religion."

News of the trial has not been published in the main Soviet newspapers for the general public to read.

Western observers said the top Soviet political leadership apparently made the decision to commute the sentences long before the court completed its hearing. A Danish Communist correspondent, Palle Andersen of the Copenhagen newspaper Land og Folk wrote Wednesday that the sentences would be commuted to 15 years.

His story was in print hours before the court completed its deliberations. Since Andersen has close contacts with the Soviet Communist Party and would not write anything that would anger the Soviets, his "reliable sources" must have had top leadership approval to give him the information. It follows, Western observers said, that the leadership instructed the court to commute the death sentences.

The 11, in a trial in Leningrad last week, were convicted of plotting to hijack a commercial airliner and fly to the West, probably Scandinavia, from where they hoped to immigrate to Israel.

Tass, in a brief story, also announced the commutation of the death sentences. It said "in considering their appeals, the supreme court proceeded from the fact that the hijack attempt was timely averted and that under Soviet law the death penalty is an exceptional measure of punishment."

The Soviets had waged a

Hospital Future 'In Limbo'

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The future of several hundred Marin County residents and their families who are patients or staff members at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital is "in limbo," according to H.F. Ortmeyer of Ignacio, hospital administrator.

The Nixon Administration is considering closing the facility and seven other PHS hospitals that cost $71 million a year to operate. The Department of Health Education and Welfare submitted the closure recommendation to Nixon last week.

A decision had been expected by today, but congressional pressure resulted in new hearings, Ortmeyer explained.

The administrator said yesterday, "We figure 20 per cent of the hospital's employees, mostly doctors and dentists in the higher pay brackets, live in Marin." With the families of the 140 or 150 staff workers from Marin, "you're talking about 500 to 600 people directly affected" by the proposed closure, Ortmeyer said. The Marin payroll alone is $2.5 to $3 million a year, the official added.

The professional men are commissioned officers in the U.S. Public Health Service. Whether they might be reassigned, or simply laid off "is one of the questions no one has answered," Ortmeyer said. If all eight PHS hospitals were closed, there would be nowhere for them to go, Ortmeyer claimed.

The San Francisco hospital serves an average of 300 patients a day, mostly acute cases rather than patients with chronic illness. Two-thirds of the caseload are Merchant Marine members, but "all federal employees in the Bay Area are eligible if the injury or sickness is

Fire in a water bed?

Firemen said frame work and padding of the bed ignited from the heat of a device used to warm the bed water.

Firemen, who were not called until 10:21 a.m. yesterday, reported no one was in the bed when the blaze started in an upstairs bedroom. They said the spilling water at least helped to minimize fire damage, if it did not extinguish the blaze.

Seeping water caused damage to the downstairs living room and den, estimated at $500. Damage to the bed was placed at $300.

Bagley May Lose His Tax Post

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic Assemblyman Joe Gonsalves of La Mirada will become the new chairman of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee, sources said today.

The sources said Gonsalves will replace Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, as chairman of the tax writing committee.

Bagley last year authored Gov. Ronald Reagan's unsuccessful tax revision plan. Gonsalves sponsored his own unsuccessful plan to set limits on homeowner property taxes.

Kentucky Blast Kills 38 Miners

HYDEN, Ky. (UPI)—A coal mine in which 38 miners were killed Wednesday in an explosion deep under ground was closed for three days last summer because of "dangerous" conditions resulting from violation of federal safety laws, the U. S. Bureau of Mines disclosed today.

The explosion, of unknown origin, ripped through two shafts of a Finley Coal Co. mine near this small mining village in the southeastern Kentucky coal fields, apparently killing the men instantly 1,600 feet inside the pit.

The blast, second worst mine disaster in Kentucky history, spewed a pillar of coal dust from the mine and the wind swept it "like a tornado" above a snow-covered mountainside.

U. S. Bureau of Mines records showed federal inspectors had ordered men out of the mine last June 19 because of "dangerous accumulation of loose coal and coal dust" and absence of proper tests for presence of gas.

Inspectors concluded there was "imminent danger" and closed the mine for three days until the conditions were corrected.

Another inspection of a portion of the mine Nov. 19 showed one violation—lack of face rescue devices for underground miners. The devices are similar to gas masks and are intended to protect men for up to an hour from deadly carbon monoxide gas formed by explosions.

Grieving relatives waited through the night at the mouths of the mine shafts as soot-covered rescue workers brought out the bodies and the victims' names were called out by Coroner Dwayne Miller.

Coony Couches waited 12 hours before he heard the name of his son, Alonzo, called.

"I knew he was dead, but I

No Angela Attorney; Magee Lawyer Hit?

While Angela Y. Davis still hadn't settled today on what attorneys are going to represent her, a lawyer appointed for her codefendant, Ruchell Magee, apparently was punched when he went to see the San Quentin inmate yesterday.

Prison officials and the attorney, A. Leonard Bjorklund, refused to discuss the incident, saying they were included in an order by Judge E. Warren McGuire of Marin Superior Court prohibiting pretrial publicity.

It was unclear whether Bjorklund was struck by Magee or another inmate at the prison's adjustment center, where the most unruly of the San Quentin convicts are housed. Sources said the attorney was hit as he reached out to shake hands.

Magee has objected strenuously in court appearances to any court-appointed lawyer, saying repeatedly that he wished to defend himself. After Appeal Court Justice Winslow Christian ruled on Dec. 22 that Magee was incapable of representing himself, Bjorklund, whose office is in Sausalito, was appointed.

Bjorklund is scheduled to

By PAT ANGLE

The Golden Gate Bridge district's plan for a single ferry terminal in central Sausalito came under fire yesterday from Sausalito's planning director, who contends the proposal is contrary to the best interests of the community.

In a report completed yesterday, H. Eric Borgwardt said the negative aspects of a permanent terminal, which the district is proposing for the area between Litho and Locust streets, "far outweigh any meaningful and positive results from its establishment."

Borgwardt called for the Sausalito City Council and Planning Commission to reject the bridge district's plan, which includes a 350-unit underground parking facility and park and commercial development. Much of the park and other facilities would be built on land which the district would fill.

According to the planning director, the city should hold the bridge district to its original commitment to construct a terminal in the Marin ship area in northern Sausalito and maintain a downtown whistle stop on weekdays and during the day.

In July, when the council granted the district a conditional use permit to operate ferry service in Sausalito, the two stops were part of the conditions imposed by the city.

In November, on the advice of Philip F. Spaulding, its consulting naval architect, directors of the district altered their earlier plans for two stops, including a northern facility. At that time, directors told the city council a central location was "more economically and practically feasible."

The district cited the cost of dredging and maintenance that would be needed for a channel at the northern site added and extra travel time from San Francisco.

And in recent weeks, the bridge district moved to seek federal assistance for a 600-car paking lot in the Marin ship area, in addition to the central parking facility.

In the strongly worded report, Borgwardt said a single central terminal would defeat much of the intent of the city's recently adopted central waterfront plan.

He explained the city's goals in adopting the plan included maintenance of the shoreline in its present form, with little or no fill permitted, and development of the Caledonia Street areas as a commercial district to serve residents. In addition, he said, Sausalito's plan for the central waterfront seeks to curtail parking in that area, to encourage small boat facilities, control auto access to the community and confine tourist-oriented business primarily to the downtown area.

The planning director

Paycheck Deductions Less Now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On New Years Day, the government begins a financial juggling act with the American worker's paycheck. Social Security taxes will increase, but income tax withholding rates decrease.

The break-even point is roughly $150 a week —$7,800 a year. Generally, if you make more than that, more money will disappear weekly from your paycheck than for the same salary last year. If you make less, your take home pay will increase.

Regardless of what Congress does with pending Social Security legislation, payroll deductions for Social Security and Medicare will rise automatically Jan. 1 from 4.8 to 5.2 per cent on both employes and employers. This increase is provided under exisiing law.

Those payingthe maximum payroll tax —$7,800 a year or more —will pay an additional $31.20 a year in Social Security taxes because of this 0.4 rise in the tax rate. Their employers also will be nicked for an additional $31.20.

Because the levy is collected at the rate of 5.2 per cent a week until the maximum is reached, a person earning $400 a week will find his payroll deduction increased by $1.60 a week until the new ceiling of $405.60 in deductions is reached.

A person earning exactly $7,800 a year will find his deduction increased by 60 cents a week. A person earning $5,000 a year will have a 38 cents per week boost in his payroll deduction.

But there is good news too for the harried taxpayer. It is

Octane Order

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Federal Trade Commission says the average motorist pays $50 to $75 a year too much for gasoline by buying a higher octane fuel than his car needs.

The FTC Wednesday ordered major gasoline producers to post the octane ratings on their service station pumps by June 28, and said automakers have indicated they will publish in owners manuals the recommended octane ratings for various car engines.

But the American Petroleum Institute said the FTC rule would serve no constructive purpose and could prove misleading to the average motorist. The institute said octane was only one of several complex factors in the performance of a motor fuel.

Breaking Beatles

LONDON (UPI) —Paul McCartney, who said in April he would never again record with The Beatles, made it official today. He asked Britain's High Court to dissolve agreements under which the four boys from Liverpool rose to become millionaires and world figures.

An action filed in his name today sought to break up arrangements linking McCartney with John Lennon, George Harrison, Ringo Starr (whose real name is Richard Starkey) and The Beatles firm, Apple Corps, Ltd.

McCartney asked the court to order the affairs of "The Beatles And Co." partnership to be wound up, and for appointment of a receiver of partnership assets.

Bank Takeovers

SANTIAGO (UPI) —President Salvador Allende said Wednesday night his new Marxist government would nationalize Chile's banks, exempting foreign banks with Chilean branches from the takeover.

Allende made the announcement at the opening of a four-day year-end bank holiday and said bank stockholders would get a chance to sell shares to the government prior to the nationalization.

Allende said the nationalization of banks was necessary to end what he called skyrocketing interest rates and inability of small borrowers to get credit in Chile since his Socialist-Communist coalition government came to power Nov. 3.

Maid Of Cotton

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—A statuesque fencing enthusiast, Patricia Dianne Perry, 22, was named Wednesday night the 1971 Maid of Cotton—the first ever from Virginia.

The senior at Longwood College, who has light brown hair and blue eyes, was one of the favorites of the crowd at the auditorium.

First alternate was Judith Ann Friend, 20, Newport Beach, Calif. Second alternate was Martha Latimer, 20, Dallas, Tex.

Miss Perry, Danville, Va., is a home economics-education major, a member of the fencing team and a student of modern dance. She was also Miss Longwood College of 1968.

Jesse James

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Jesse James, 24, the great-great grandson of the bandit, is a minister.

James, a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago, acted as an organizer of an interdenominational Campus Crusade for Christ meeting that closes here tonight following a New Year's Eve celebration.

James said his name is useful as an "opener" for discussions about the relevancy of Jesus Christ to college students.

"I think it's a benefit to a certain extent . . . it's a natural opener," he said.

Occasionally, though, "it takes me 10 minutes to get me past my name before I can get to anything else ... I've had occasion where I've had to show my driver's license to prove my identity but it isn't something that bothers me," he said.

James, crusade director for the state of Delaware, said some 600 students from New England, Canada, New York, Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey attended the local conference.

Maria Callas Getting Divorce

BRESCIA, Italy (UPI) — Opera soprano Maria Callas has filed suit for divorce from her long-estranged husband, Giovanbattista Meneghini.

Court records showed a preliminary hearing on the case had been set for Jan. 15 and legal sources said it appeared the case could be settled rapidly.

Miss Callas announced when divorce was approved Dec. 1 by parliament that she would sue for divorce from the industrialist from whom she parted 11 years ago.

Hearing Slated In Theft Case

Preliminary hearing for Ronald Walker, 18, of San Rafael, charged with burglary, has been set in Marin Municipal Court for Tuesday.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. also set Tuesday for a probation department report on whether Walker is acceptable to Juvenile Court.

He is charged with four felony counts of burglary in connection with entering two San Rafael businesses Dec. 11 and two others on Dec. 26.

Beef Prices Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A top government economist has charged that the cost of beef at the supermarket is higher than necessary partially because of inept pricing policies of the food industry.

Don Paarlberg, director of economics in the Agriculture Department, said that because of those policies, current low prices for cattle were not being passed on to the housewife by the meat packers and grocery chains.

Paarlberg called for lower retail beef prices, an appeal similar to one he issued earlier this month on pork.

The official said some of the blame for high beef prices must lie with a traditional pricing policy of shrinking the profit margin on beef when wholesale meat prices rise and widening the margin when the wholesale price drops again. The effect is stable retail prices but doesn't give the housewife the savings from lower cattle prices.

Assets Disclosed

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, the nation's largest, made a public disclosure of its financial assets for the first time in history today.

The archdiocese said in a report—described as "among the most comprehensive statements presented by a major diocese of the Roman Catholic Church"—that its assets totaled $85,505,000.

The report, which covered the fiscal year ended June 30, listed the church's real estate holdings "exclusive of parish plants" at $6.5 million—mostly vacant property acquired for future parish sites and totaling 922 acres "spread throughout Cook and Lake counties."

Murphy Unsure If He'll Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., says the Senate's work schdule would "seem to preclude" his carrying out suggestions he resign to help the man who beat him in the November elections gain seniority.

Murphy indicated Tuesday he had decided to serve out the remaining days of his term because his vote might be needed for the supersonic transport (SST) plane. Murphy supports building the SST, while his victorious opponent, Democratic Rep. John V. Tunney, opposes it.

Earlier Murphy had said he might resign to allow Tunney to gain seniority over several other senators-elect who will be sworn into the Senate next month.

Fish Seized For Excessive DDT

It was the first federal action involving salt water fish, Dan Kleber of the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA), said Wednesday.

FATHER-TO-SON TRANSPLANT

The Rev. David Mann and his 17-month-old son Mark are undergoing preliminary tests in Columbus, Ohio, in preparation for an attempt to transplant the father's kidney to his son late next month. In Mann's hometown of Mansfield, Ohio, the Newville Baptist Church congregation is helping to raise $35,000 to finance the operation, the first of its kind at the University Hospital in Columbus. Cairo Says Peace Talks May Extend Cease-Fire

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian officials say they are optimistic that the Middle East peace talks expected to resume in January will make enough progress to allow an extension of the cease-fire.

The officials said Wednesday in Cairo that any progress in the talks, however slight, would be enough to justify an extension of the cease-fire past its Feb. 5 expiration date.

This appeared to be a softening of the previous Egyptian position that Israel must give a timetable for withdrawal of its troops from occupied Arab territory before the cease-fire can be extended.

Informed sources at the United Nations in New York said U.N. negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring tentatively plans to return to New York Saturday to confer with Secretary-General Thant, with the hope of beginning the talks Monday.

Israel is expected to lose its bid to have the talks held at the foreign minister level in a neutral country near the Middle East, rather than at the ambassadorial level in New York.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli military spokesman said Arab guerrilla infiltrators from Lebanon ambushed an army patrol near the Israeli frontier village of Avivim today and killed an Israeli soldier.

Guerrillas damaged an industrial building in the frontier town of Kiryat Shmona with time-fired explosive charges.

Cairo officials said the United States, through its influence with Israel, will be the key to the outcome of the peace talks.

They said they expect Israel to adopt a go-slow attitude and only U.S. pressure could lead it to adopt a compromise solution.

Cairo welcomes the visits of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, next month and possibly Secretary of State William P. Rogers later as opportunities to explain its position to the Americans, the officials said.

Other Egyptian officials said they had received Washington's assurances of support for Israeli withdrawal from Arab lands with possible minor border rectifications on both sides.

Loss Offer Made To Lockheed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Defense Department has offered financially troubled Lockheed Aircraft Corp. a chance to emerge from a contract to build the huge C5A transport planes with a $200 million "fixed loss."

The offer is contingent on Lockheed refraining from court action on contract disputes centered around the nearly tripled per-plane cost since the contract was let five years ago.

The $200 million loss offer is fixed. Regardless of how the eventual cost of the planes turns out—the most recent estimate is $3.7 billion for all but the engines—Lockheed's loss would be the same. Lockheed already has received $2.6 billion for 30 completed planes.

David Packard, deputy defense secretary, said the best Lockheed could hope for if it rejected the proposal and chose the court route would be a profit of $25 million. If it failed in court it could end up with a $480 million loss, Packard said. He gave Lockheed until the end of January to reply.

A spokesman for Lockheed, with headquarters in Burbank, Calif., said the company had received the government's offer. "We will study the effect of these proposals and are working toward an early response" to Packard, he said.

The government set no fixed date for payment of the $200 million loss Lockheed would sustain, plus interest.

President Nixon was expected to sign soon a bill providing a $200 million emergency loan to Lockheed to keep production of the C5A going past February. Packard said production couldn't continue without the contingency fund.

"We are aware that the course of action which we propose to follow does not guarantee that bankruptcy of Lockheed is precluded," Packard said in a letter to Congress explaining the problem.

"The uncertainty exists because overall financial stability of Lockheed is contingent not only on the financing of its defense programs, but also on further financial support from the private sector from its commercial programs."

He also said the survival of Lockheed, in financial straits for the past 10 months, was important for its effect on other defense suppliers.

Basques Still Vow Revolution Or Death

BURGOS, Spain (UPI)—A year-end act of clemency has averted both a domestic explosion and a crisis in Spain's international relations. But six Basque nationalists saved from execution vowed today to continue seeking "revolution or death."

Generalissimo Francisco Franco Wednesday commuted to 30 years in prison the death sentences ordered by a court-martial against the six Basques in what he described as an action demonstrating the strength of his 31-year-old regime.

The new sentences are not subject to amnesty.

Expressions of relief and gratification at the last-minute decision came from the Vatican and most of the European and Latin American governments that had criticized the death sentences and urged Franco to commute them.

Workers in the Basque provinces of northern Spain who had been on strike a few hours earlier danced in the streets to celebrate the commutations. One correspondent in San Sebastian said "people up here began their New Year's celebration a night early."

Feinstein Passes Issue To Reagan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The president of San Francisco's Board of Supervisors wrote Gov. Ronald Reagan on Monday seeking help in controlling the showing of pornographic motion pictures.

Mrs. Dianne Feinstein, the president, asked the governor's help in obtaining state legislation that would permit local governments to regulate obscene films and live performances.

She also asked that the State Legislature create a film review board as recommended by the President's Commission on Obscenity.

VW Outlook

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — Volkswagen of America, Inc., predicts it will have sales of 567,000 cars in 1971, an increase of about 3 per cent. At the same time the company asked owners of 79,000 recently purchased 1971 Volkswagens to bring their cars back to dealers for checking out possible defects in steering column locks, ignition switches and wiring harness.

Viet Cong Violates Own Truce

SAIGON (UPI)—New Year cease-fires went into force in South Vietnam today, but U.S. spokesmen said the Viet Cong immediately violated their own truce with a series of bloody attacks that killed 22 South Vietnamese and wounded 36.

With the war theoretically at a standstill the U.S. Command reported 41 Americans were killed in action the past week, up sharply from the 23 killed the previous week. Records showed 4,229 Americans died in Vietnam during 1970, a drop of 55 per cent from the 1969 toll of 9,256. South Vietnam deaths rose sharply, reflecting the Vietnamization program.

In Cambodia, South Vietnamese and Cambodian troops battled each other by mistake in the village of Bopol, 7 1-2 miles inside the Cambodian border. One man was killed on each side in the fire fight that apparently started when South Vietnamese opened fire on Cambodian commandos wearing black pajamas and North Vietnamese pith helmets, outfits frequently worn by Communist troops there.

Maid Of Cotton

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—A statuesque fencing enthusiast, Patricia Dianne Perry, 22, was named Wednesday night the 1971 Maid of Cotton—the first ever from Virginia.

The senior at Longwood College, who has light brown hair and blue eyes, was one of the favorites of the crowd at the auditorium.

First alternate was Judith Ann Friend, 20, Newport Beach, Calif. Second alternate was Martha Latimer, 20, Dallas, Tex.

Miss Perry, Danville, Va., is a home economics-education major, a member of the fencing team and a student of modern dance. She was also Miss Longwood College of 1968.

Jesse James

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Jesse James, 24, the great-great grandson of the bandit, is a minister.

James, a graduate of the Moody Bible Institute at Chicago, acted as an organizer of an interdenominational Campus Crusade for Christ meeting that closes here tonight following a New Year's Eve celebration.

James said his name is useful as an "opener" for discussions about the relevancy of Jesus Christ to college students.

"I think it's a benefit to a certain extent . . . it's a natural opener," he said.

Occasionally, though, "it takes me 10 minutes to get me past my name before I can get to anything else ... I've had occasion where I've had to show my driver's license to prove my identity but it isn't something that bothers me," he said.

James, crusade director for the state of Delaware, said some 600 students from New England, 'Canada, New York, Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Jersey attended the local conference.

Maria Callas Getting Divorce

BRESCIA, Italy (UPI) — Opera soprano Maria Callas has filed suit for divorce from her long-estranged husband, Giovanbattista Meneghini.

Court records showed a preliminary hearing on the case had been set for Jan. 15 and legal sources said it appeared the case could be settled rapidly.

Miss Callas announced when divorce was approved Dec. 1 by parliament that she would sue for divorce from the industrialist from whom she parted 11 years ago.

Hearing Slated In Theft Case

Preliminary hearing for Ronald Walker, 18, of San Rafael, charged with burglary, has been set in Marin Municipal Court for Tuesday.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. also set Tuesday for a probation department report on whether Walker is acceptable to Juvenile Court.

He is charged with four felony counts of burglary in connection with entering two San Rafael businesses Dec. 11 and two others on Dec. 26.

Beef Prices Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A top government economist has charged that the cost of beef at the supermarket is higher than necessary partially because of inept pricing policies of the food industry.

Don Paarlberg, director of economics in the Agriculture Department, said that because of those policies, current low prices for cattle were not being passed on to the housewife by the meat packers and grocery chains.

Paarlberg called for lower retail beef prices, an appeal similar to one he issued earlier this month on pork.

The official said some of the blame for high beef prices must lie with a traditional pricing policy of shrinking the profit margin on beef when wholesale meat prices rise and widening the margin when the wholesale price drops again. The effect is stable retail prices but doesn't give the housewife the savings from lower cattle prices.

Assets Disclosed

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, the nation's largest, made a public disclosure of its financial assets for the first time in history today.

The archdiocese said in a report—described as "among the most comprehensive statements presented by a major diocese of the Roman Catholic Church"—that its assets totaled $85,505,000.

The report, which covered the fiscal year ended June 30, listed the church's real estate holdings "exclusive of parish plants" at $6.5 million—mostly vacant property acquired for future parish sites and totaling 922 acres "spread throughout Cook and Lake counties."

Murphy Unsure If He'll Resign

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., says the Senate's work schdule would "seem to preclude" his carrying out suggestions he resign to help the man who beat him in the November elections gain seniority.

Murphy indicated Tuesday he had decided to serve out the remaining days of his term because his vote might be needed for the supersonic transport (SST) plane. Murphy supports building the SST, while his victorious opponent, Democratic Rep. John V. Tunney, opposes it.

Earlier Murphy had said he might resign to allow Tunney to gain seniority over several other senators-elect who will be sworn into the Senate next month.

Fish Seized For Excessive DDT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Federal authorities have seized some 8,000 pounds of salt water fish at Los Angeles Harbor because of excessive levels of DDT.

It was the first federal action involving salt water fish, Dan Kleber of the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA), said Wednesday.

FATHER-TO-SON TRANSPLANT

The Rev. David Mann and his 17-month-old son Mark are undergoing preliminary tests in Columbus, Ohio, in preparation for an attempt to transplant the father's kidney to his son late next month. In Mann's hometown of Mansfield, Ohio, the Newville Baptist Church congregation is helping to raise $35,000 to finance the operation, the first of its kind at the University Hospital in Columbus. The congregation voted to pay the cost of the life-and-death operation. (UPI Telephoto)

Cairo Says Peace Talks May Extend Cease-Fire

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian officials say they are optimistic that the Middle East peace talks expected to resume in January will make enough progress to allow an extension of the cease-fire.

The officials said Wednesday in Cairo that any progress in the talks, however slight, would be enough to justify an extension of the cease-fire past its Feb. 5 expiration date.

This appeared to be a softening of the previous Egyptian position that Israel must give a timetable for withdrawal of its troops from occupied Arab territory before the cease-fire can be extended.

Informed sources at the United Nations in New York said U.N. negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring tentatively plans to return to New York Saturday to confer with Secretary-General Thant, with the hope of beginning the talks Monday.

Israel is expected to lose its bid to have the talks held at the foreign minister level in a neutral country near the Middle East, rather than at the ambassadorial level in New York.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli military spokesman said Arab guerrilla infiltrators from Lebanon ambushed an army patrol near the Israeli frontier village of Avivim today and killed an Israeli soldier.

Guerrillas damaged an industrial building in the frontier town of Kiryat Shmona with time-fired explosive charges.

Cairo officials said the United States, through its influence with Israel, will be the key to the outcome of the peace talks.

They said they expect Israel to adopt a go-slow attitude and only U.S. pressure could lead it to adopt a compromise solution.

Cairo welcomes the visits of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, next month and possibly Secretary of State William P. Rogers later as opportunities to explain its position to the Americans, the officials said.

Other Egyptian officials said they had received Washington's assurances of support for Israeli withdrawal from Arab lands with possible minor border rectifications on both sides.

Foto-Mat Robbed

Cash and checks totaling $70 and two cameras valued at $34 were taken from the Foto-Mat, 535 Second Street, between 10 p.m. Monday and 10 a.m. Tuesday, according to San Rafael police.

Loss Offer Made To Lockheed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Defense Department has offered financially troubled Lockheed Aircraft Corp. a chance to emerge from a contract to build the huge C5A transport planes with a $200 million "fixed loss."

The offer is contingent on Lockheed refraining from court action on contract disputes centered around the nearly tripled per-plane cost since the contract was let five years ago.

The $200 million loss offer is fixed. Regardless of how the eventual cost of the planes turns out—the most recent estimate is $3.7 billion for all but the engines—Lockheed's loss would be the same. Lockheed already has received $2.6 billion for 30 completed planes.

David Packard, deputy defense secretary, said the best Lockheed could hope for if it rejected the proposal and chose the court route would be a profit of $25 million. If it failed in court it could end up with a $480 million loss, Packard said. He gave Lockheed until the end of January to reply.

A spokesman for Lockheed, with headquarters in Burbank, Calif., said the company had received the government's offer. "We will study the effect of these proposals and are working toward an early response" to Packard, he said.

The government set no fixed date for payment of the $200 million loss Lockheed would sustain, plus interest.

President Nixon was expected to sign soon a bill providing a $200 million emergency loan to Lockheed to keep production of the C5A going past February. Packard said production couldn't continue without the contingency fund.

"We are aware that the course of action which we propose to follow does not guarantee that bankruptcy of Lockheed is precluded," Packard said in a letter to Congress explaining the problem.

"The uncertainty exists because overall financial stability of Lockheed is contingent not only on the financing of its defense programs, but also on further financial support from the private sector from its commercial programs."

He also said the survival of Lockheed, in financial straits for the past 10 months, was important for its effect on other defense suppliers.

Basques Still Vow Revolution Or Death

BURGOS, Spain (UPI)—A year-end act of clemency has averted both a domestic explosion and a crisis in Spain's international relations. But six Basque nationalists saved from execution vowed today to continue seeking "revolution or death."

Generalissimo Francisco Franco Wednesday commuted to 30 years in prison the death sentences ordered by a court-martial against the six Basques in what he described as an action demonstrating the strength of his 31-year-old regime.

The new sentences are not subject to amnesty.

Expressions of relief and gratification at the last-minute decision came from the Vatican and most of the European and Latin American governments that had criticized the death sentences and urged Franco to commute them.

Workers in the Basque provinces of northern Spain who had been on strike a few hours earlier danced in the streets to celebrate the commutations. One correspondent in San Sebastian said "people up here began their New Year's celebration a night early."

Feinstein Passes Issue To Reagan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The president of San Francisco's Board of Supervisors wrote Gov. Ronald Reagan on Monday seeking help in controlling the showing of pornographic motion pictures.

Mrs. Dianne Feinstein, the president, asked the governor's help in obtaining state legislation that would permit local governments to regulate obscene films and live performances.

She also asked that the State Legislature create a film review board as recommended by the President's Commission on Obscenity.

VW Outlook

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — Volkswagen of America, Inc., predicts it will have sales of 567,000 cars in 1971, an increase of about 3 per cent. At the same time the company asked owners of 79,000 recently purchased 1971 Volkswagens to bring their cars back to dealers for checking out possible defects in steering column locks, ignition switches and wiring harness.

Viet Cong Violates Own Truce

SAIGON (UPI)—New Year cease-fires went into force in South Vietnam today, but U.S. spokesmen said the Viet Cong immediately violated their own truce with a series of bloody attacks that killed 22 South Vietnamese and wounded 36.

With the war theoretically at a standstill the U.S. Command reported 41 Americans were killed in action the past week, up sharply from the 23 killed the previous week. Records showed 4,229 Americans died in Vietnam during 1970, a drop of 55 per cent from the 1969 toll of 9,256. South Vietnam deaths rose sharply, reflecting the Vietnamization program.

In Cambodia, South Vietnamese and Cambodian troops battled each other by mistake in the village of Bopol, 7 1-2 miles inside the Cambodian border. One man was killed on each side in the fire fight that apparently started when South Vietnamese opened fire on Cambodian commandos wearing black pajamas and North Vietnamese pith helmets, outfits frequently worn by Communist troops there.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Dole Hopeful

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., said today he still was in the running for Republican National Chairman.

"I had fairly strong signals that I would be picked, and they have not been weakened by all the speculation in the press lately. In fact they may have been strengthened," Dole said in an interview.

The strong-spoken Kansan was among the first men prominently mentioned to succeed Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton of Maryland in the top party post.

Morton steps aside early next year to become secretary of interior.

Octane Order

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Federal Trade Commission says the average motorist pays $50 to $75 a year too much for gasoline by buying a higher octane fuel than his car needs.

The FTC Wednesday ordered major gasoline producers to post the octane ratings on their service station pumps by June 28, and said automakers have indicated they will publish in owners manuals the recommended octane ratings for various car engines.

But the American Petroleum Institute said the FTC rule would serve no constructive purpose and could prove misleading to the average motorist. The institute said octane was only one of several complex factors in the performance of a motor fuel.

Breaking Beatles

LONDON (UPI) —Paul McCartney, who said in April he would never again record with The Beatles, made it official today. He asked Britain's High Court to dissolve agreements under which the four boys from Liverpool rose to become millionaires and world figures.

An action filed in his name today sought to break up arrangements linking McCartney with John Lennon, George Harrison, Ringo Starr (whose real name is Richard Starkey) and The Beatles firm, Apple Corps, Ltd.

McCartney asked the court to order the affairs of "The Beatles And Co." partnership to be wound up, and for appointment of a receiver of partnership assets.

Bank Takeovers

SANTIAGO (UPI) —President Salvador Allende said Wednesday night his new Marxist government would nationalize Chile's banks, exempting foreign banks with Chilean branches from the takeover.

Allende made the announcement at the opening of a four-day year-end bank holiday and said bank stockholders would get a chance to sell shares to the government prior to the nationalization.

Allende said the nationalization of banks was necessary to end what he called skyrocketing interest rates and inability of small borrowers to get credit in Chile since his Socialist-Communist coalition government came to power Nov. 3.

Congress In Late Flurry Of Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hopes for a break in a congressional deadlock on financing the supersonic transport plane (SST) were dashed today when House negotiators refused even to show up for a requested meeting with their Senate counterparts.

"They've made their position clear," said Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., after he and other senators waited in a conference room for more than an hour. He said he did not expect any more meetings with House members.

Failure to break the deadlock made it likely that Congress may stay in session right up until its term expires at noon Sunday. Leaders had expressed some hope earlier of ending the session by New Year's Day, or even tonight.

The SST dispute arose after the House voted funds to continue development of the plane but the Senate voted to stop work. House-Senate conferees then agreed on $210 million for the plane, but refusal of some senators to accept this blocked action on a $2.6 billion Transportation Department appropriations bill that includes the SST funds.

One of the other obstacles to adjournment was removed today when the Senate killed President Nixon's seven-month-old proposal to grant $1.5 billion in emergency aid to school districts ordered to desegregate. Southerners blocked consideration of the measure.

These other issues also threatened to keep the 91st Congress working until its constitutional license to legislate expires at noon Sunday:

—Food stamps. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., complaining that "the will of the majority is once again thwarted," was ready to throw in the towel. He said he would accept a House-Senate compromise which continues the program lowering food costs for 8.8 million Americans but which cuts off food stamps for families if the head of the household refuses to take any job offered him paying at least $1.30 an hour. Passage of the compromise bill thus was assured.

—Foreign aid. The Senate, refusing to buy a compromise it says violates its principles, sent back to the House a $2.5 billion foreign aid appropriation bill with the stipulation that $200 million worth of foreign military sales credits could not be used until both houses had first enacted legislation authorizing such an expenditure. If the House balks at the Senate proviso, another impasse is threatened.

—Social Security. Despite an impassioned plea from Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., his House counterpart, Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., refused to meet to work out a compromise. At issue was a Senate bill providing a 10 per cent increase in benefits and a $100 minimum payment for persons on Social Security and a House bill providing a 5 per cent boost and a $67.20 minimum. It appeared there would be no legislation until next year, but any increases would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971.

—Federal pay. The House was expected to act today on a bill which cleared the Senate, 40-35 Wednesday, creating a system of automatic annual pay raises for all military and most federal civilan employes. The measure authorizes the President to grant a $2.5 billion boost for 4 million civilian and military personnel effective Friday with another boost on Jan. 1, 1972, before the new system becomes effective.

—School aid. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the administration's request for $1.5 billion to help school districts meet problems caused by desegregation was doomed by opposition from southern and civil rights senators alike.

In a session that lasted 13 hours, the Senate Wednesday reluctantly passed, 47-29, and sent to President Nixon emergency legislation authorizing federal guarantees of a $125 million loan to the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad: Its trustees said it would have to stop running Jan. 8 without the money. Several members said the bill marked "the first step toward nationalization" of the nation's money-losing railroads.

Also approved and sent to Nixon was an $18.9 billion appropriation for the nation's health, welfare and labor programs. This was $210 million more than Nixon asked for, but few expected a veto. In a bitter speech prepared for delivery today, McGovern said he reluctantly decided not to fight the compromise food stamp bill because doing so might jeopardize the entire program's survival. The food stamp law expires today.

"It is only the lateness of the hour that will allow the repressive provisions of the bill to become law," he said.

"One can only angrily contemplate the 15 months that the House Agriculture Committee let the Senate bill languish in its grip and the failure of this administration to use its influence to get a bill out of the House."

He recalled Nixon's pledge to "end hunger in America itself for all time" and said the administraton's behavior was "a most odd manner" to accomplish that goal.

FERRY

said the bridge district's current proposal calls for major fill along the bay and a major parking facility in the heart of the waterfront. He said the central terminal would result in a loss of bay views and vistas because of the parking facility which will project above the ground and the size and bulk of the required structure to accomodate the boats.

The proposed terminal's promimity to Caledonia Street would encourage an influx of tourist-oriented, rather than resident-oriented, businesses, Borgwardt feels. And he opined that continuous operation of ferry boats in that area would disrupt yacht harbors and the sailing of pleasure craft.

The city's plan for the eventual elimination of parking in the central district, coupled with the bridge district's reluctance to provide a downtown stop to accomodate visitors, would seriously hurt downtown businesses, he added.

Positive features of the bridge district's central terminal proposal include major development of an area which "is presently devoid of substantial improvement," relative convenience to Sausalito commuters and an increased park area, Bogwardt admitted.

But he rejected the district's contention that the time it would take a ferry to proceed to a northern terminal and make a second stop downtown was a major factor in its decision to opt for a central location and one terminal.

Dale E. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, said he and his staff were studying Borgwardt's report carefully "and reassessing the entire situation."

The bridge district's central terminal proposal is scheduled to be considered by the Sausalito Planning Commission Wednesday at 8 p.m. in city hall.

TRIAL

fierce propaganda campaign against the Basque trial as "legal persecution of patriots."

Moscow has never acknowledged any parallels between the Burgos and Leningrad death sentences and the Spanish commutation was greeted curtly with the statement that Spain was justly "pressured by world public opinion."

Fifteen to 20 Soviet Jews, denied entrance to the Russian Federation Supreme Court building, stood vigil outside Wednesday, and talked to Western newsmen in open defiance of police.

One woman, Mrs. Ester Mostkova, 46, was dragged screaming and struggling into a police car minutes after she had told newsmen of her 24-year struggle for permission to emigrate to Israel. She was released after about two hours but was finally walked away by a plainclothes policeman who scolded her for continuing to talk to the correspondents.

Nearly every man and woman in the group told stories similar to Mrs. Mostkova's, walking back and forth from corner to corner with correspondents to avoid the "congregating" forbidden by uniformed and plainclothes police.

HOSPITAL

job-related," Ortmeyer said.

Such cases range "down to the postman who gets bitten by a dog," Ortmeyer said. Coast Guard members and their dependants also may use the facility.

The administrator said he didn't know where the patients can go if the PHS hospital closes. "Fort Miley (the Veterans Administration hospital in San Francisco) cannot take them."

He said the 366-bed PHS hospital serves "people entitled by the law to free medical care from the federal government. Most of these people lack any form of health insurance" and would be hard-pressed financially to obtain treatment at private hospitals, Ortmeyer said.

The PHS hospital's outpatient clinics handle an average 500 to 600 visits per day. Another little-known service is the hospital's care for 300 Bay Area leprosy patients, Ortmeyer added.

The hospital has a heavier average caseload than the other seven PHS facilities. Its beds run 80 to 85 per cent filled. The eight hospitals total 2,484 beds with an average of 1,693 patients daily — or 70 per cent, according to figures quoted yesterday at hearings before the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee in Washington, D.C.

Elliot L. Richardson, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, branded the PHS hospitals "inefficient and outmoded" and argued that it was difficult to attract high-caliber staffs and provide "medical care of high quality."

Richardson told the congressman that "it is reasonable to assume that many if not all of the primary beneficiaries could be cared for in Veterans Administration facilities, although HEW might contract with other agencies to care for some of the cases.

No recommendations resulted from yesterday's Washington hearing.

"We're still in limbo," Ortmeyer said.

Trunk Line Action Is Taken

Novato Sanitary District directors last night took preliminary steps toward construction of a trunk line to San Pablo Bay, approved by voters Dec. 8.

Directors approved an agreement with Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. to cross the railroad near Highway 37, east of Novato Creek Bridge, Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph reported.

They also authorized trunk line right-of-way appraisals by John King of Petaluma at a cost of up to $1,000.

Novato Sanitary District directors also:

SAN MARIN — Received a sewer master plan for the San Marin East area submitted by Standard Growth Properties, owners of the site.

EXTENSION — Accepted a sewer main extension serving Oaks Unit 1, a 71-lot subdivision developed by Condiotti Enterprises.

SUBREGIONAL — Heard a report from Joseph that a technical committee mapping plans for a subregional sewage treatment study, covering northern Marin and southern Sonoma, is working out a method of selecting an engineer for the study and a method of cost-sharing among the agencies involved.

MEETINGS — Scheduled meetings for Jan. 11, 18 and 25, all at 6 p.m. at the North Marin County Water District office, 999 Atherton Avenue.

Chamber Selects Contest Chairman

Edward L. Davis III, former manager of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce, has been named chairman of the 1971 dairy princess contest.

The contest and ball are scheduled for May 8 at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. Assisting Davis will be chamber manager Patrick Shannon, Kenneth Baird of the Milk Advisory Board, Ted Shields of the California Milk Producers and Mrs. Leo Garzelli, president of the North Bay Dairy Women's Association.

TAXES

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 provided that, effective with the start of 1971, single persons will pay no more than 20 per cent higher taxes than a married couple with the same income. Under the old law, a bacheior paid as much as 40 per cent more than a married man with the same pay.

The reform measure also increased the standard deduction a taxpayer may claim if he does not itemize his deductible expenses on his tax return. The old standard deduction, which still applies to the 1970 tax returns due April 15, was 10 per cent of gross income up to a ceiling of $1,000. The new rate ia 13 per cent to a ceiling of $1,500.

Although many taxpayers itemize their returns, the standard deduction is used to determine all withholding rates. So the increase in the standard deduction means a little less money withheld beginning with the first payday of the new year.

Personal exemptions also increase to $700 each for a taxpayer and members of his household.

Of course, after the maximum amount of Social Security tax is deducted, even the high earning taxpayer will be better off because his income withholding rate will be less and no more Social Security taxes will be deducted until 1972.

For instance, a person earning $200 weekly in 1970 has not been paying Social Security taxes since sometime in October when his deductions reached this year's limit — $374.40.

Here are a couple of examples:

For a married man with two children earning $150 a week, income tax withholding will decline from $14.50 to $13.50 weekly. Offsetting that, the Social Security deduction will increase from $7.20 to $7.70 a week. The net change is 50 cents less in deductions.

For a single person with a $150 weekly pay, the saving is greater. His tax withholding will decline from $24.80 to $22.60. His Social Security deductions also will increase from $7.20 to $7.70. That makes his net saving $1.70 weekly.

A married man with two children earning $200 weekly would pay $21.50 in withholding taxes, down from $23 in 1970. But that $10.40 Social Security payment —compared with no payment at all for the last 11 weeks or so of the old year — will wash out the saving and then some. His check will be $8.90 smaller each week of the new year until the $7,800 Social Security ceiling is reached again next fall.

A single person with $200 weekly pay will have $33.10 withheld in the new year compared to $35.90 in 1970. But when Social Security deductions resume, he will have $7.60 less to spend each week until fall.

appear in court for the first time Tuesday along with the 31-year-old convict, who was gagged and bound at his last court appearance.

It is expected that Miss Davis will have a team of attorneys by the Tuesday court date in the Hall of Justice. She has conferred with Allan Brotsky of San Francisco, Dennis J. Roberts of Berkeley, John Thorne of San Jose and Michael Tigar of Los Angeles.

Miss Davis and Magee are accused in a grand jury indictment of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the shootout Aug. 7 at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died.

BLAST

felt like I had to wait to know for sure," Couches said.

"Oh, Lord, be with my boy! Oh, Lord, be with my boy!" a mother of one of the dead men wailed over and over.

One man, H. T. Collins, was just inside the mine, a few feet from the mouth of one of the shafts when he heard the blast. He survived. Had he been any deeper in the shaft he would have died, officials said.

State mining officials speculated a faulty dynamite charge or an electrical failure triggered the explosion, but it was reported the mine was closed three days in June because federal inspectors determined there were safety violations which needed to be corrected.

The state mining officials said the 38 men were killed instantly in the explosion, which sent out heavy concentrations of deadly carbon monoxide gas.

BAGLEY

er, is expected to announce new committee appointments after the 1971 legislative session convenes Monday.

Gonsalves, 51, was elected to the Assembly in 1962 and served as chairman of the Rules Committee when Democrats last controlled the Assembly two years ago.

Bagley, 42, served as chairman of the Judiciary Committee before becoming Revenue and Taxation Committee chairman when the Republicans took control of the Assembly in 1969.

(Bagley declined to comment on the report that he will be replaced as committee chairman. He did, however, tell the Independent-Journal that he had not yet discussed the matter with Moretti, and that "anything still was possible.")

Youth Arrested In Suspicion Of Burglary

A 14-year-old Larkspur youth has been arrested on suspicion of burglarizing the home of Clarin W. Zumwalt of Larkspur, police reported yesterday.

Officers said Tracy Calhoun of 35 Via La Cumbre was arrested last Thursday after police received an anonymous phone call.

Police Chief Howard C. Clark said young Calhoun was found hiding under a quilt in an upstairs room at his home. About $1,600 worth of rifles, pistols, camera and tape recording equipment was found in his bedroom. The items have been identified as those stolen the day before from Zumwalt's home at 73 Via La Cumbre, Clark said.

Calhoun, a student at Redwood High School, was booked into juvenile hall.

A "secret witness" letter concerning the crime was received after the arrest by the Independent-Journal, which turned the note over to officers.

Swearing-In At Sonoma Slated

New office holders will include Phillip L. Joerger, Southern Sonoma supervisor; Henry Spomer, Northern Sonoma supervisor; Donald Striepeke, Sheriff; Ernest L. Comalli, assessor, and Dr. Walter Eagan, superintendent schools. Those reelected who will be taking oaths are Kiernan Hyland, district attorney; Eugene D. Williams, county clerk; Andrew Johansen, coroner; William E. Fulwinder, auditor-controller; Hery Snyder Jr., recorder; Judge Alexander J. McMahon, Southern Judicial District; Judge Frank Passalacqua, Northern Judicial District, and Jimmie Anderson, tax collector.

Husband Jailed In Battery

Wilford Charles Graves, 37, of 1638 Waverly Drive, Petaluma, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of battery on a peace officer.

Petaluma patrolmen Robert J. Doughty and Wayne Minson went to Grave's home at the request of his wife, Betty, 40, to quell a domestic quarrel. They said Graves became argumentative and wrestled Doughty to the floor.

He was booked into the Sonoma County Jail for arraignment today before Judge James E. Jones Jr.

Two Plead Guilty To Trespassing

Susan Ellis, 24, and Linda Sue Burns, 22, both of Novato, have pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to reduced misdemeanor charges of trespassing and malicious mischief.

The women were originally charged with felony burglary of an unoccupied Novato house on Nov. 22. They will be sentenced Jan. 22.

Mayor's Golden Chain Stolen

A golden chain that cordons off the desk of Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam was stolen yesterday from city hall.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer told police that two suspicious young men had inquired about city council meetings in his office. Meyer said he followed them later into a hallway and found the $35 chain missing.

OBITUARIES

Emil Hansen Dies At 61

Emil Jurgen Hansen, 61, of San Anselmo, a tile layer, died yesterday after collapsing while working at a Tamalpais Valley residence.

Coroner's deputy Jack D. Darblay said that death apparently was due to natural causes. He said that firemen unsuccessfully attempted to revive Hansen, who was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital.

Hansen, a tile layer for the past 25 years, lived at 349 Butterfield Road. A native of Germany, he had lived in Marin County 29 years. He was a veteran of World War II, having served in the Army.

He is survived by his wife, Lillian; a son, Robert, also of the family home; a daughter, Lillian Kawai of San Rafael; two grandchildren, and other relatives in Germany.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

VENTRESS McGOWAN

Ventress Edwin McGowan, of 282 Panoramic Highway, Mill Valley, was found dead in the bedroom of his home yesterday, the Marin County Coroner's Office reported.

Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas said McGowan, 59, was discovered by his wife, Dixie. Death apparently was due to natural causes, he said.

Born in McComb, Miss., McGowan worked as an accountant and auditor in various cities in the south, including Memphis, Richmond and Atlanta before moving to Marin in 1960. He was deputy area manager for the internal audit division of the U.S. Post Office in San Francisco until his retirement in February.

McGowan was a member of the Optimist Club in Jackson, Miss.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Valerie Flatt of Redwood City and Gladys Adair Clay of Richmond, Va.; a son, Bill, of the Mill Valley address, and two brothers, C. L. McGowan, of Hammond, Ala., and E. L. McGowan, of New Orleans.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

JACOB FRIF

Funeral for Jacob Frif, 77, former Mill Valley resident, was held Saturday in Haledon, N.J., where the retired baker died last week.

Frif lived in Mill Valley about 15 years, moving to New Jersey about four years ago. He made his home there with his son, Jacob E. Frif, former owner of a Mill Valley refuse service.

He is also survived by a daughter, Alice Webber, who lives in New Hampshire, and a grandson. His wife, Minnie, died last year.

Frif was a native of Holland.

MAX WASSEM

Max Wassem, 47, a partner in the Kvalheim Machinery Co. of Petaluma, died today at his home.

The Sonoma County Coroner's Office said he had died of apparently of natural causes. A routine coroner's investigation will be conducted.

A native of Dover, Ohio, Wassem had lived in California for three years and in Sonoma County for nearly two years. He was a World War II Navy veteran.

He is survived by his wife, Helen; two sons, Christopher, with the armed forces in Panama; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wassem of New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at the Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

LORENE AMES

Priavet funeral for Mrs. Lorene Law Ames of Novato will be held Saturday. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Mrs. Ames, 65, died Tuesday in a local hospital after a brief illness. A native of Illinois, she had returned to Marin two months ago to reside with her son, James C. Law, 1265 Redwood Drive.

Mrs. Ames first came to Marin about 40 years ago, and lived in San Rafael with her first husband, Clarence Law. They established the San Rafael women's apparel store, Trend O'Fashion, with branches in Redwood City and Santa Rosa. She moved to Crescent City 20 years ago and, with her second husband, the late Kenneth E. Ames, developed the Kenlor City Center Motel in that city.

She also is survived by a daughter, Doris Law Bagley of San Rafael; a second son, Robert D. Law of Trinidad, Humboldt County; a stepson, Nils Ames of Oregon; her mother, Edith Thompson of Pasadena; a sister, Lois Campbell of Garden Grove; 11 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Her family asked that memorial contributions go to the American Cancer Society.

Sanitation Bids Are Rejected

San Rafael Sanitation District directors rejected bids on two sewer projects yesterday and called for new bids.

Only one bid was received for pumping equipment at the proposed Francisco Boulevard pumping station, reported Virginia Congdon, district secretary.

The lone bidder was Pump Repair Service of San Francisco, with a bid of $112,00.

There were 10 bids received on a proposed administration building at the main treatment plant, but the low bidder Ronald F. Antonioli of San Rafael, who bid $28,069, failed to include a bond in his bid envelope.

Directors could have waived this irregularity, but other bidders objected and the board decided to reject all bids and call for new ones, Mrs. Congdon said.

The new bids are scheduled to be presented to the board Jan. 20. Directors adjourned until 5 p.m. Wednesday at city hall.

Congress In Late Flurry Of Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hopes for a break in a congressional deadlock on financing the supersonic transport plane (SST) were dashed today when House negotiators refused even to show up for a requested meeting with their Senate counterparts.

"They've made their position clear," said Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., after he and other senators waited in a conference room for more than an hour. He said he did not expect any more meetings with House members.

Failure to break the deadlock made it likely that Congress may stay in session right up until its term expires at noon Sunday. Leaders had expressed some hope earlier of ending the session by New Year's Day, or even tonight.

The SST dispute arose after the House voted funds to continue development of the plane but the Senate voted to stop work. House-Senate conferees then agreed on $210 million for the plane, but refusal of some senators to accept this blocked action on a $2.6 billion Transportation Department appropriations bill that includes the SST funds.

One of the other obstacles to adjournment was removed today when the Senate killed President Nixon's seven-month-old proposal to grant $1.5 billion in emergency aid to school districts ordered to desegregate. Southerners blocked consideration of the measure.

These other issues also threatened to keep the 91st Congress working until its constitutional license to legislate expires at noon Sunday:

—Food stamps. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., complaining that "the will of the majority is once again thwarted," was ready to throw in the towel. He said he would accept a House-Senate compromise which continues the program lowering food costs for 8.8 million Americans but which cuts off food stamps for families if the head of the household refuses to take any job offered him paying at least $1.30 an hour. Passage of the compromise bill thus was assured.

—Foreign aid. The Senate, refusing to buy a compromise it says violates its principles, sent back to the House a $2.5 billion foreign aid appropriation bill with the stipulation that $200 million worth of foreign military sales credits could not be used until both houses had first enacted legislation authorizing such an expenditure. If the House balks at the Senate proviso, another impasse is threatened.

—Social Security. Despite an impassioned plea from Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., his House counterpart, Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., refused to meet to work out a compromise. At issue was a Senate bill providing a 10 per cent increase in benefits and a $100 minimum payment for persons on Social Security and a House bill providing a 5 per cent boost and a $67.20 minimum. It appeared there would be no legislation until next year, but any increases would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971.

—Federal pay. The House was expected to act today on a bill which cleared the Senate, 40-35 Wednesday, creating a system of automatic annual pay raises for all military and most federal civilan employes. The measure authorizes the President to grant a $2.5 billion boost for 4 million civilian and military personnel effective Friday with another boost on Jan. 1, 1972, before the new system becomes effective.

—School aid. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the administration's request for $1.5 billion to help school districts meet problems caused by desegregation was doomed by opposition from southern and civil rights senators alike.

In a session that lasted 13 hours, the Senate Wednesday reluctantly passed, 47-29, and sent to President Nixon emergency legislation authorizing federal guarantees of a $125 million loan to the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad: Its trustees said it would have to stop running Jan. 8 without the money. Several members said the bill marked "the first step toward nationalization" of the nation's money-losing railroads.

Also approved and sent to Nixon was an $18.9 billion appropriation for the nation's health, welfare and labor programs. This was $210 million more than Nixon asked for, but few expected a veto. In a bitter speech prepared for delivery today, McGovern said he reluctantly decided not to fight the compromise food stamp bill because doing so might jeopardize the entire program's survival. The food stamp law expires today.

"It is only the lateness of the hour that will allow the repressive provisions of the bill to become law," he said.

"One can only angrily contemplate the 15 months that the House Agriculture Committee let the Senate bill languish in its grip and the failure of this administration to use its influence to get a bill out of the House."

He recalled Nixon's pledge to "end hunger in America itself for all time" and said the administraton's behavior was "a most odd manner" to accomplish that goal.

FERRY

said the bridge district's current proposal calls for major fill along the bay and a major parking facility in the heart of the waterfront. He said the central terminal would result in a loss of bay views and vistas because of the parking facility which will project above the ground and the size and bulk of the required structure to accomodate the boats.

The proposed terminal's promimity to Caledonia Street would encourage an influx of tourist-oriented, rather than resident-oriented, businesses, Borgwardt feels. And he opined that continuous operation of ferry boats in that area would disrupt yacht harbors and the sailing of pleasure craft.

The city's plan for the eventual elimination of parking in the central district, coupled with the bridge district's reluctance to provide a downtown stop to accomodate visitors, would seriously hurt downtown businesses, he added.

Positive features of the bridge district's central terminal proposal include major development of an area which "is presently devoid of substantial improvement," relative convenience to Sausalito commuters and an increased park area, Bogwardt admitted.

But he rejected the district's contention that the time it would take a ferry to proceed to a northern terminal and make a second stop downtown was a major factor in its decision to opt for a central location and one terminal.

Dale E. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, said he and his staff were studying Borgwardt's report carefully "and reassessing the entire situation."

The bridge district's central terminal proposal is scheduled to be considered by the Sausalito Planning Commission Wednesday at 8 p.m. in city hall.

TRIAL

fierce propaganda campaign against the Basque trial as "legal persecution of patriots."

Moscow has never acknowledged any parallels between the Burgos and Leningrad death sentences and the Spanish commutation was greeted curtly with the statement that Spain was justly "pressured by world public opinion."

Fifteen to 20 Soviet Jews, denied entrance to the Russian Federation Supreme Court building, stood vigil outside Wednesday, and talked to Western newsmen in open defiance of police.

One woman, Mrs. Ester Mostkova, 46, was dragged screaming and struggling into a police car minutes after she had told newsmen of her 24-year struggle for permission to emigrate to Israel. She was released after about two hours but was finally walked away by a plainclothes policeman who scolded her for continuing to talk to the correspondents.

Nearly every man and woman in the group told stories similar to Mrs. Mostkova's, walking back and forth from corner to corner with correspondents to avoid the "congregating" forbidden by uniformed and plainclothes police.

HOSPITAL

job-related," Ortmeyer said.

Such cases range "down to the postman who gets bitten by a dog," Ortmeyer said. Coast Guard members and their dependants also may use the facility.

The administrator said he didn't know where the patients can go if the PHS hospital closes. "Fort Miley (the Veterans Administration hospital in San Francisco) cannot take them."

He said the 366-bed PHS hospital serves "people entitled by the law to free medical care from the federal government. Most of these people lack any form of health insurance" and would be hard-pressed financially to obtain treatment at private hospitals, Ortmeyer said.

The PHS hospital's outpatient clinics handle an average 500 to 600 visits per day. Another little-known service is the hospital's care for 300 Bay Area leprosy patients, Ortmeyer added.

The hospital has a heavier average caseload than the other seven PHS facilities. Its beds run 80 to 85 per cent filled. The eight hospitals total 2,484 beds with an average of 1,693 patients daily — or 70 per cent, according to figures quoted yesterday at hearings before the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee in Washington, D.C.

Elliot L. Richardson, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, branded the PHS hospitals "inefficient and outmoded" and argued that it was difficult to attract high-caliber staffs and provide "medical care of high quality."

Richardson told the congressman that "it is reasonable to assume that many if not all of the primary beneficiaries could be cared for in Veterans Administration facilities, although HEW might contract with other agencies to care for some of the cases.

No recommendations resulted from yesterday's Washington hearing.

"We're still in limbo," Ortmeyer said.

Trunk Line Action Is Taken

Novato Sanitary District directors last night took preliminary steps toward construction of a trunk line to San Pablo Bay, approved by voters Dec. 8.

Directors approved an agreement with Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. to cross the railroad near Highway 37, east of Novato Creek Bridge, Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph reported.

They also authorized trunk line right-of-way appraisals by John King of Petaluma at a cost of up to $1,000.

Novato Sanitary District directors also:

SAN MARIN — Received a sewer master plan for the San Marin East area submitted by Standard Growth Properties, owners of the site.

EXTENSION — Accepted a sewer main extension serving Oaks Unit 1, a 71-lot subdivision developed by Condiotti Enterprises.

SUBREGIONAL — Heard a report from Joseph that a technical committee mapping plans for a subregional sewage treatment study, covering northern Marin and southern Sonoma, is working out a method of selecting an engineer for the study and a method of cost-sharing among the agencies involved.

MEETINGS — Scheduled meetings for Jan. 11, 18 and 25, all at 6 p.m. at the North Marin County Water District office, 999 Atherton Avenue.

Chamber Selects Contest Chairman

Edward L. Davis III, former manager of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce, has been named chairman of the 1971 dairy princess contest.

The contest and ball are scheduled for May 8 at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. Assisting Davis will be chamber manager Patrick Shannon, Kenneth Baird of the Milk Advisory Board, Ted Shields of the California Milk Producers and Mrs. Leo Garzelli, president of the North Bay Dairy Women's Association.

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 provided that, effective with the start of 1971, single persons will pay no more than 20 per cent higher taxes than a married couple with the same income. Under the old law, a bachelor paid as much as 40 per cent more than a married man with the same pay.

The reform measure also increased the standard deduction a taxpayer may claim if he does not itemize his deductible expenses on his tax return. The old standard deduction, which still applies to the 1970 tax returns due April 15, was 10 per cent of gross income up to a ceiling of $1,000. The new rate ia 13 per cent to a ceiling of $1,500.

Although many taxpayers itemize their returns, the standard deduction is used to determine all withholding rates. So the increase in the standard deduction means a little less money withheld beginning with the first payday of the new year.

Personal exemptions also increase to $700 each for a taxpayer and members of his household.

Of course, after the maximum amount of Social Security tax is deducted, even the high earning taxpayer will be better off because his income withholding rate will be less and no more Social Security taxes will be deducted until 1972.

For instance, a person earning $200 weekly in 1970 has not been paying Social Security taxes since sometime in October when his deductions reached this year's limit — $374.40.

Here are a couple of examples:

For a married man with two children earning $150 a week, income tax withholding will decline from $14.50 to $13.50 weekly. Offsetting that, the Social Security deduction will increase from $7.20 to $7.70 a week. The net change is 50 cents less in deductions.

For a single person with a $150 weekly pay, the saving is greater. His tax withholding will decline from $24.80 to $22.60. His Social Security deductions also will increase from $7.20 to $7.70. That makes his net saving $1.70 weekly.

A married man with two children earning $200 weekly would pay $21.50 in withholding taxes, down from $23 in 1970. But that $10.40 Social Security payment —compared with no payment at all for the last 11 weeks or so of the old year — will wash out the saving and then some. His check will be $8.90 smaller each week of the new year until the $7,800 Social Security ceiling is reached again next fall.

A single person with $200 weekly pay will have $33.10 withheld in the new year compared to $35.90 in 1970. But when Social Security deductions resume, he will have $7.60 less to spend each week until fall.

It is expected that Miss Davis will have a team of attorneys by the Tuesday court date in the Hall of Justice. She has conferred with Allan Brotsky of San Francisco, Dennis J. Roberts of Berkeley, John Thorne of San Jose and Michael Tigar of Los Angeles.

Miss Davis and Magee are accused in a grand jury indictment of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the shootout Aug. 7 at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died.

felt like I had to wait to know for sure," Couches said.

"Oh, Lord, be with my boy! Oh, Lord, be with my boy!" a mother of one of the dead men wailed over and over.

One man, H. T. Collins, was just inside the mine, a few feet from the mouth of one of the shafts when he heard the blast. He survived. Had he been any deeper in the shaft he would have died, officials said.

State mining officials speculated a faulty dynamite charge or an electrical failure triggered the explosion, but it was reported the mine was closed three days in June because federal inspectors determined there were safety violations which needed to be corrected.

The state mining officials said the 38 men were killed instantly in the explosion, which sent out heavy concentrations of deadly carbon monoxide gas.

er, is expected to announce new committee appointments after the 1971 legislative session convenes Monday.

Gonsalves, 51, was elected to the Assembly in 1962 and served as chairman of the Rules Committee when Democrats last controlled the Assembly two years ago.

Bagley, 42, served as chairman of the Judiciary Committee before becoming Revenue and Taxation Committee chairman when the Republicans took control of the Assembly in 1969.

(Bagley declined to comment on the report that he will be replaced as committee chairman. He did, however, tell the Independent-Journal that he had not yet discussed the matter with Moretti, and that "anything still was possible.")

Youth Arrested In Suspicion Of Burglary

A 14-year-old Larkspur youth has been arrested on suspicion of burglarizing the home of Clarin W. Zumwalt of Larkspur, police reported yesterday.

Officers said Tracy Calhoun of 35 Via La Cumbre was arrested last Thursday after police received an anonymous phone call.

Police Chief Howard C. Clark said young Calhoun was found hiding under a quilt in an upstairs room at his home. About $1,600 worth of rifles, pistols, camera and tape recording equipment was found in his bedroom. The items have been identified as those stolen the day before from Zumwalt's home at 73 Via La Cumbre, Clark said.

Calhoun, a student at Redwood High School, was booked into juvenile hall.

A "secret witness" letter concerning the crime was received after the arrest by the Independent-Journal, which turned the note over to officers.

He was booked into the Sonoma County Jail for arraignment today before Judge James E. Jones Jr.

A golden chain that cordons off the desk of Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam was stolen yesterday from city hall.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer told police that two suspicious young men had inquired about city council meetings in his office. Meyer said he followed them later into a hallway and found the $35 chain missing.

There were 10 bids received on a proposed administration building at the main treatment plant, but the low bidder Ronald F. Antonioli of San Rafael, who bid $28,069, failed to include a bond in his bid envelope.

Directors could have waived this irregularity, but other bidders objected and the board decided to reject all bids and call for new ones, Mrs. Congdon said.

The new bids are scheduled to be presented to the board Jan. 20. Directors adjourned until 5 p.m. Wednesday at city hall.

Congress In Late Flurry Of Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hopes for a break in a congressional deadlock on financing the supersonic transport plane (SST) were dashed today when House negotiators refused even to show up for a requested meeting with their Senate counterparts.

"They've made their position clear," said Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., after he and other senators waited in a conference room for more than an hour. He said he did not expect any more meetings with House members.

Failure to break the deadlock made it likely that Congress may stay in session right up until its term expires at noon Sunday. Leaders had expressed some hope earlier of ending the session by New Year's Day, or even tonight.

The SST dispute arose after the House voted funds to continue development of the plane but the Senate voted to stop work. House-Senate conferees then agreed on $210 million for the plane, but refusal of some senators to accept this blocked action on a $2.6 billion Transportation Department appropriations bill that includes the SST funds.

One of the other obstacles to adjournment was removed today when the Senate killed President Nixon's seven-month-old proposal to grant $1.5 billion in emergency aid to school districts ordered to desegregate. Southerners blocked consideration of the measure.

These other issues also threatened to keep the 91st Congress working until its constitutional license to legislate expires at noon Sunday:

—Food stamps. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., complaining that "the will of the majority is once again thwarted," was ready to throw in the towel. He said he would accept a House-Senate compromise which continues the program lowering food costs for 8.8 million Americans but which cuts off food stamps for families if the head of the household refuses to take any job offered him paying at least $1.30 an hour. Passage of the compromise bill thus was assured.

—Foreign aid. The Senate, refusing to buy a compromise it says violates its principles, sent back to the House a $2.5 billion foreign aid appropriation bill with the stipulation that $200 million worth of foreign military sales credits could not be used until both houses had first enacted legislation authorizing such an expenditure. If the House balks at the Senate proviso, another impasse is threatened.

—Social Security. Despite an impassioned plea from Senate Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., his House counterpart, Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., refused to meet to work out a compromise. At issue was a Senate bill providing a 10 per cent increase in benefits and a $100 minimum payment for persons on Social Security and a House bill providing a 5 per cent boost and a $67.20 minimum. It appeared there would be no legislation until next year, but any increases would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971.

—Federal pay. The House was expected to act today on a bill which cleared the Senate, 40-35 Wednesday, creating a system of automatic annual pay raises for all military and most federal civilan employes. The measure authorizes the President to grant a $2.5 billion boost for 4 million civilian and military personnel effective Friday with another boost on Jan. 1, 1972, before the new system becomes effective.

—School aid. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the administration's request for $1.5 billion to help school districts meet problems caused by desegregation was doomed by opposition from southern and civil rights senators alike.

In a session that lasted 13 hours, the Senate Wednesday reluctantly passed, 47-29, and sent to President Nixon emergency legislation authorizing federal guarantees of a $125 million loan to the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad: Its trustees said it would have to stop running Jan. 8 without the money. Several members said the bill marked "the first step toward nationalization" of the nation's money-losing railroads.

Also approved and sent to Nixon was an $18.9 billion appropriation for the nation's health, welfare and labor programs. This was $210 million more than Nixon asked for, but few expected a veto. In a bitter speech prepared for delivery today, McGovern said he reluctantly decided not to fight the compromise food stamp bill because doing so might jeopardize the entire program's survival. The food stamp law expires today.

"It is only the lateness of the hour that will allow the repressive provisions of the bill to become law," he said.

"One can only angrily contemplate the 15 months that the House Agriculture Committee let the Senate bill languish in its grip and the failure of this administration to use its influence to get a bill out of the House."

He recalled Nixon's pledge to "end hunger in America itself for all time" and said the administraton's behavior was "a most odd manner" to accomplish that goal.

said the bridge district's current proposal calls for major fill along the bay and a major parking facility in the heart of the waterfront. He said the central terminal would result in a loss of bay views and vistas because of the parking facility which will project above the ground and the size and bulk of the required structure to accomodate the boats.

The proposed terminal's promimity to Caledonia Street would encourage an influx of tourist-oriented, rather than resident-oriented, businesses, Borgwardt feels. And he opined that continuous operation of ferry boats in that area would disrupt yacht harbors and the sailing of pleasure craft.

The city's plan for the eventual elimination of parking in the central district, coupled with the bridge district's reluctance to provide a downtown stop to accomodate visitors, would seriously hurt downtown businesses, he added.

Positive features of the bridge district's central terminal proposal include major development of an area which "is presently devoid of substantial improvement," relative convenience to Sausalito commuters and an increased park area, Bogwardt admitted.

But he rejected the district's contention that the time it would take a ferry to proceed to a northern terminal and make a second stop downtown was a major factor in its decision to opt for a central location and one terminal.

Dale E. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, said he and his staff were studying Borgwardt's report carefully "and reassessing the entire situation."

The bridge district's central terminal proposal is scheduled to be considered by the Sausalito Planning Commission Wednesday at 8 p.m. in city hall.

TRIAL

fierce propaganda campaign against the Basque trial as "legal persecution of patriots."

Moscow has never acknowledged any parallels between the Burgos and Leningrad death sentences and the Spanish commutation was greeted curtly with the statement that Spain was justly "pressured by world public opinion."

Fifteen to 20 Soviet Jews, denied entrance to the Russian Federation Supreme Court building, stood vigil outside Wednesday, and talked to Western newsmen in open defiance of police.

One woman, Mrs. Ester Mostkova, 46, was dragged screaming and struggling into a police car minutes after she had told newsmen of her 24-year struggle for permission to emigrate to Israel. She was released after about two hours but was finally walked away by a plainclothes policeman who scolded her for continuing to talk to the correspondents.

Nearly every man and woman in the group told stories similar to Mrs. Mostkova's, walking back and forth from corner to corner with correspondents to avoid the "congregating" forbidden by uniformed and plainclothes police.

HOSPITAL

job-related," Ortmeyer said.

Such cases range "down to the postman who gets bitten by a dog," Ortmeyer said. Coast Guard members and their dependants also may use the facility.

The administrator said he didn't know where the patients can go if the PHS hospital closes. "Fort Miley (the Veterans Administration hospital in San Francisco) cannot take them."

He said the 366-bed PHS hospital serves "people entitled by the law to free medical care from the federal government. Most of these people lack any form of health insurance" and would be hard-pressed financially to obtain treatment at private hospitals, Ortmeyer said.

The PHS hospital's outpatient clinics handle an average 500 to 600 visits per day. Another little-known service is the hospital's care for 300 Bay Area leprosy patients, Ortmeyer added.

The hospital has a heavier average caseload than the other seven PHS facilities. Its beds run 80 to 85 per cent filled. The eight hospitals total 2,484 beds with an average of 1,693 patients daily — or 70 per cent, according to figures quoted yesterday at hearings before the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee in Washington, D.C.

Elliot L. Richardson, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, branded the PHS hospitals "inefficient and outmoded" and argued that it was difficult to attract high-caliber staffs and provide "medical care of high quality."

Richardson told the congressman that "it is reasonable to assume that many if not all of the primary beneficiaries could be cared for in Veterans Administration facilities, although HEW might contract with other agencies to care for some of the cases.

No recommendations resulted from yesterday's Washington hearing.

"We're still in limbo," Ortmeyer said.

Trunk Line Action Is Taken

Novato Sanitary District directors last night took preliminary steps toward construction of a trunk line to San Pablo Bay, approved by voters Dec. 8.

Directors approved an agreement with Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. to cross the railroad near Highway 37, east of Novato Creek Bridge, Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph reported.

They also authorized trunk line right-of-way appraisals by John King of Petaluma at a cost of up to $1,000.

Novato Sanitary District directors also:

SAN MARIN — Received a sewer master plan for the San Marin East area submitted by Standard Growth Properties, owners of the site.

EXTENSION — Accepted a sewer main extension serving Oaks Unit 1, a 71-lot subdivision developed by Condiotti Enterprises.

SUBREGIONAL — Heard a report from Joseph that a technical committee mapping plans for a subregional sewage treatment study, covering northern Marin and southern Sonoma, is working out a method of selecting an engineer for the study and a method of cost-sharing among the agencies involved.

MEETINGS — Scheduled meetings for Jan. 11, 18 and 25, all at 6 p.m. at the North Marin County Water District office, 999 Atherton Avenue.

Chamber Selects Contest Chairman

Edward L. Davis III, former manager of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce, has been named chairman of the 1971 dairy princess contest.

The contest and ball are scheduled for May 8 at the Petaluma Veterans Memorial Building. Assisting Davis will be chamber manager Patrick Shannon, Kenneth Baird of the Milk Advisory Board, Ted Shields of the California Milk Producers and Mrs. Leo Garzelli, president of the North Bay Dairy Women's Association.

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 provided that, effective with the start of 1971, single persons will pay no more than 20 per cent higher taxes than a married couple with the same income. Under the old law, a bachelor paid as much as 40 per cent more than a married man with the same pay.

The reform measure also increased the standard deduction a taxpayer may claim if he does not itemize his deductible expenses on his tax return. The old standard deduction, which still applies to the 1970 tax returns due April 15, was 10 per cent of gross income up to a ceiling of $1,000. The new rate ia 13 per cent to a ceiling of $1,500.

Although many taxpayers itemize their returns, the standard deduction is used to determine all withholding rates. So the increase in the standard deduction means a little less money withheld beginning with the first payday of the new year.

Personal exemptions also increase to $700 each for a taxpayer and members of his household.

Of course, after the maximum amount of Social Security tax is deducted, even the high earning taxpayer will be better off because his income withholding rate will be less and no more Social Security taxes will be deducted until 1972.

For instance, a person earning $200 weekly in 1970 has not been paying Social Security taxes since sometime in October when his deductions reached this year's limit — $374.40.

Here are a couple of examples:

For a married man with two children earning $150 a week, income tax withholding will decline from $14.50 to $13.50 weekly. Offsetting that, the Social Security deduction will increase from $7.20 to $7.70 a week. The net change is 50 cents less in deductions.

For a single person with a $150 weekly pay, the saving is greater. His tax withholding will decline from $24.80 to $22.60. His Social Security deductions also will increase from $7.20 to $7.70. That makes his net saving $1.70 weekly.

A married man with two children earning $200 weekly would pay $21.50 in withholding taxes, down from $23 in 1970. But that $10.40 Social Security payment —compared with no payment at all for the last 11 weeks or so of the old year — will wash out the saving and then some. His check will be $8.90 smaller each week of the new year until the $7,800 Social Security ceiling is reached again next fall.

A single person with $200 weekly pay will have $33.10 withheld in the new year compared to $35.90 in 1970. But when Social Security deductions resume, he will have $7.60 less to spend each week until fall.

appear in court for the first time Tuesday along with the 31-year-old convict, who was gagged and bound at his last court appearance.

It is expected that Miss Davis will have a team of attorneys by the Tuesday court date in the Hall of Justice. She has conferred with Allan Brotsky of San Francisco, Dennis J. Roberts of Berkeley, John Thorne of San Jose and Michael Tigar of Los Angeles.

Miss Davis and Magee are accused in a grand jury indictment of murder, kidnapping and conspiracy stemming from the shootout Aug. 7 at the Civic Center in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others died.

BLAST

felt like I had to wait to know for sure," Couches said.

"Oh, Lord, be with my boy! Oh, Lord, be with my boy!" a mother of one of the dead men wailed over and over.

One man, H. T. Collins, was just inside the mine, a few feet from the mouth of one of the shafts when he heard the blast. He survived. Had he been any deeper in the shaft he would have died, officials said.

State mining officials speculated a faulty dynamite charge or an electrical failure triggered the explosion, but it was reported the mine was closed three days in June because federal inspectors determined there were safety violations which needed to be corrected.

The state mining officials said the 38 men were killed instantly in the explosion, which sent out heavy concentrations of deadly carbon monoxide gas.

BAGLEY

er, is expected to announce new committee appointments after the 1971 legislative session convenes Monday.

Gonsalves, 51, was elected to the Assembly in 1962 and served as chairman of the Rules Committee when Democrats last controlled the Assembly two years ago.

Bagley, 42, served as chairman of the Judiciary Committee before becoming Revenue and Taxation Committee chairman when the Republicans took control of the Assembly in 1969.

(Bagley declined to comment on the report that he will be replaced as committee chairman. He did, however, tell the Independent-Journal that he had not yet discussed the matter with Moretti, and that "anything still was possible.")

Youth Arrested In Suspicion Of Burglary

A 14-year-old Larkspur youth has been arrested on suspicion of burglarizing the home of Clarin W. Zumwalt of Larkspur, police reported yesterday.

Officers said Tracy Calhoun of 35 Via La Cumbre was arrested last Thursday after police received an anonymous phone call.

Police Chief Howard C. Clark said young Calhoun was found hiding under a quilt in an upstairs room at his home. About $1,600 worth of rifles, pistols, camera and tape recording equipment was found in his bedroom. The items have been identified as those stolen the day before from Zumwalt's home at 73 Via La Cumbre, Clark said.

Calhoun, a student at Redwood High School, was booked into juvenile hall.

A "secret witness" letter concerning the crime was received after the arrest by the Independent-Journal, which turned the note over to officers.

Swearing-In At Sonoma Slated

New office holders will include Phillip L. Joerger, Southern Sonoma supervisor; Henry Spomer, Northern Sonoma supervisor; Donald Striepeke, Sheriff; Ernest L. Comalli, assessor, and Dr. Walter Eagan, superintendent schools. Those reelected who will be taking oaths are Kiernan Hyland, district attorney; Eugene D. Williams, county clerk; Andrew Johansen, coroner; William E. Fulwinder, auditor-controller; Hery Snyder Jr., recorder; Judge Alexander J. McMahon, Southern Judicial District; Judge Frank Passalacqua, Northern Judicial District, and Jimmie Anderson, tax collector.

Husband Jailed In Battery

Wilford Charles Graves, 37, of 1638 Waverly Drive, Petaluma, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of battery on a peace officer.

Petaluma patrolmen Robert J. Doughty and Wayne Minson went to Grave's home at the request of his wife, Betty, 40, to quell a domestic quarrel. They said Graves became argumentative and wrestled Doughty to the floor.

He was booked into the Sonoma County Jail for arraignment today before Judge James E. Jones Jr.

Two Plead Guilty To Trespassing

Susan Ellis, 24, and Linda Sue Burns, 22, both of Novato, have pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to reduced misdemeanor charges of trespassing and malicious mischief.

The women were originally charged with felony burglary of an unoccupied Novato house on Nov. 22. They will be sentenced Jan. 22.

Mayor's Golden Chain Stolen

A golden chain that cordons off the desk of Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam was stolen yesterday from city hall.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer told police that two suspicious young men had inquired about city council meetings in his office. Meyer said he followed them later into a hallway and found the $35 chain missing.

OBITUARIES

Emil Hansen Dies At 61

Emil Jurgen Hansen, 61, of San Anselmo, a tile layer, died yesterday after collapsing while working at a Tamalpais Valley residence.

Coroner's deputy Jack D. Darblay said that death apparently was due to natural causes. He said that firemen unsuccessfully attempted to revive Hansen, who was dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital.

Hansen, a tile layer for the past 25 years, lived at 349 Butterfield Road. A native of Germany, he had lived in Marin County 29 years. He was a veteran of World War II, having served in the Army.

He is survived by his wife, Lillian; a son, Robert, also of the family home; a daughter, Lillian Kawai of San Rafael; two grandchildren, and other relatives in Germany.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Sanitation Bids Are Rejected

San Rafael Sanitation District directors rejected bids on two sewer projects yesterday and called for new bids.

Only one bid was received for pumping equipment at the proposed Francisco Boulevard pumping station, reported Virginia Congdon, district secretary.

The lone bidder was Pump Repair Service of San Francisco, with a bid of $112.00.

There were 10 bids received on a proposed administration building at the main treatment plant, but the low bidder Ronald F. Antonioli of San Rafael, who bid $28,069, failed to include a bond in his bid envelope.

Directors could have waived this irregularity, but other bidders objected and the board decided to reject all bids and call for new ones, Mrs. Congdon said.

The new bids are scheduled to be presented to the board Jan. 20. Directors adjourned until 5 p.m. Wednesday at city hall.

Youth Arraigned For Assault

Richie Dave Hollingsworth, 19, of 2372 Dominic Drive, Novato, has been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on two felony charges of assaulting a police officer and a misdemeanor charge of resisting arrest.

Preliminary hearing was set for Wednesday.

Hollingsworth was arrested Dec. 19 at a Novato restaurant after he began banging on a window with a cup. When three California Highway Patrol officers asked him to step outside, Hollingsworth struck two of them, the officers said.

Petaluma Notes Crime Increase

Petaluma police report investigating 118 major offenses during November, an increase of 36 over November of 1969.

Major offenses included an unsolved robbery; two aggravated assaults with one solved; 25 burglaries, three solved; seven stolen cars, two solved; 41 thefts of more than $50 in value and 42 thefts under $50, with 12 solved.

The department received a total of 137 felony and theft reports, issued 222 moving citations and investigated 21 injury accidents.

VENTRESS McGOWAN

Ventress Edwin McGowan, of 282 Panoramic Highway, Mill Valley, was found dead in the bedroom of his home yesterday, the Marin County Coroner's Office reported.

Deputy Coroner Bill J. Thomas said McGowan, 59, was discovered by his wife, Dixie. Death apparently was due to natural causes, he said.

Born in McComb, Miss., McGowan worked as an accountant and auditor in various cities in the south, including Memphis, Richmond and Atlanta before moving to Marin in 1960. He was deputy area manager for the internal audit division of the U.S. Post Office in San Francisco until his retirement in February.

McGowan was a member of the Optimist Club in Jackson, Miss.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Valerie Flatt of Redwood City and Gladys Adair Clay of Richmond, Va.; a son, Bill, of the Mill Valley address, and two brothers, C. L. McGowan, of Hammond, Ala., and E. L. McGowan, of New Orleans.

Funeral arrangements were pending at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

JACOB FRIF

Funeral for Jacob Frif, 77, former Mill Valley resident, was held Saturday in Haledon, N.J., where the retired baker died last week.

Frif lived in Mill Valley about 15 years, moving to New Jersey about four years ago. He made his home there with his son, Jacob E. Frif, former owner of a Mill Valley refuse service.

He is also survived by a daughter, Alice Webber, who lives in New Hampshire, and a grandson. His wife, Minnie, died last year.

Frif was a native of Holland.

MAX WASSEM

Max Wassem, 47, a partner in the Kvalheim Machinery Co. of Petaluma, died today at his home.

The Sonoma County Coroner's Office said he had died of apparently of natural causes. A routine coroner's investigation will be conducted.

A native of Dover, Ohio, Wassem had lived in California for three years and in Sonoma County for nearly two years. He was a World War II Navy veteran.

He is survived by his wife, Helen; two sons, Christopher, with the armed forces in Panama; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wassem of New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at the Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

LORENE AMES

Priavet funeral for Mrs. Lorene Law Ames of Novato will be held Saturday. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Mrs. Ames, 65, died Tuesday in a local hospital after a brief illness. A native of Illinois, she had returned to Marin two months ago to reside with her son, James C. Law, 1265 Redwood Drive.

Mrs. Ames first came to Marin about 40 years ago, and lived in San Rafael with her first husband, Clarence Law. They established the San Rafael women's apparel store, Trend O'Fashion, with branches in Redwood City and Santa Rosa. She moved to Crescent City 20 years ago and, with her second husband, the late Kenneth E. Ames, developed the Kenlor City Center Motel in that city.

She also is survived by a daughter, Doris Law Bagley of San Rafael; a second son, Robert D. Law of Trinidad, Humboldt County; a stepson, Nils Ames of Oregon; her mother, Edith Thompson of Pasadena; a sister, Lois Campbell of Garden Grove; 11 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

PASSIONATE PURPLE GONE FOREVER

Owners of the controversial Pepperland rock palace on Francisco Boulevard in San Rafael yesterday made good their promise to city fathers to tone down the exterior color. Twenty gallons of paint described as a "subdued gold" color were applied yesterday to cover the purple found offensive by city officials. The palace has been variously described as a gathering place for dope smokers and a healthy outlet for Marin youth and their rock music.

Missing Person Found Safe

Janet Ann Stillson, 20, of Peacock Gap, missing since before Christmas, was found safe in Santa Barbara and is driving home, her father reported today.

Miss Stillson's father, Paul, of 373 Riviera Drive, said he received a call from his daughter yesterday indicating she is well and will be driving home.

Through police in Santa Barbara, Stillson said he got this fragmentary account: Her purse was found at Laguna Beach, turned in to police and reclaimed by Janet. Stillson said he did not know whether his daughter was there to attend the Laguna Beach rock festival.

An unidentified newspaper reporter later located her and notified her that a missing persons bulletin had been issued for her. She then called home. A police sergeant in Santa Barbara talked to the girl and reported she seemed well and could drive home herself.

Blaze In Store Called Arson

A fire in a Larkspur furniture store early yesterday apparently was the work of an arsonist, Chief William C. Schurtz said today.

The blaze at Saltzman of Marin Furniture, 1011 Magnolia Avenue, caused $7,000 damage to the building and $20,000 smoke damage to merchandise, according to Schurtz. The fire broke out on the mezzanine floor at about 3:17 a.m., and took 21 firemen 30 minutes to control.

Schurtz said that investigators found that entry had been forced into the building, and that three separate places were found inside where fire was set. The case is under investigation, he said.

Gatov Leaving PUC As His Term Ends

Albert W. Gatov of Kentfield will leave his post as a state public utilities commissioner tomorrow when his six-yearterm ends.

Gatov, appointed to the commission by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown in January, 1965, will leave the $30,000-a-year job to return to work as a consultant in the field of industrial and governmental affairs in San Francisco.

He started as a member of a Democratic majority on the commission and wound up as a minority of one surrounded by four Reagan appointees.

Gatov, known for his tough stances while on the commission, particularly on rate increase proposals, was the lone dissenter on Pacific Gas and Electric Co's. gas rate boost last year.

Gatov, 52, and his wife, the former Elizabeth Rudel Smith, former United States treasurer, have been active in Democratic affairs, working in the successful campaigns of Sen. Alan Cranston and Sen.-elect John V. Tunney.

Gatov has had several careers associated with ocean shipping, from the docks of San Pedro, where he started at 17, to chairman of the Federal Maritime Board at 45.

Last month the Marin County Board of Supervisors appointed Gatov as the county's representative on the Bay Area Metropolitan Transportation Commission, created by the Legislature this year.

Gatov also is president of the San Francisco Maritime Museum, and a former president of Pacific American Steamship Association.

ALBERT W. GATOV
Leaving PUC

From 1963-65 he was chairman of the San Francisco Bay Area Transportation Study Commission.

During World War II Gatov served in the Army Transportation Corps and was assigned to cargo and troop movements in the United States and in the Persian Command.

After serving on the Federal Maritime Board, he was appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy to the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission, serving on the four-member U.S. section of the commission.

Gatov also served on the Board of Pilot Commissioners for San Francisco, Suisun and San Pablo bays.

A native of New York, he has lived in California for 59 years and resides at 21 Rancheria Road.

Wholesale Prices Rose 2.3 Per Cent During 1970

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices rose 2.3 per cent during 1970, compared to 4.9 per cent in 1969, the Labor Department reported today.

The index increased 0.1 per cent in December to 117.8 per cent of the 1957-59 average. That was 2.3 per cent higher than 115.1 index for December a year ago and was the smallest 12-month advance since the period that ended in June, 1968.

The figures mean that it cost $117.80 to buy the same quantity of wholesale goods in December that could have been obtained for $117.70 in November, $115.10 in December, 1969, and $100 a little more than a decade ago.

The Labor Department said that with adjustments for usual seasonal changes in prices, the December index was unchanged from November. The November index was 0.1 per cent below October.

The figures were greeted with some satisfaction by government inflation fighters. However, prices for industrial commodities increased 0.3 per cent in December (0.2 per cent after seasonal adjustments).

The industrial commodities report is considered the most accurate barometer of overall wholesale prices. Farm prices make up the rest of the index and they are subject to wide swings.

The industrial commodities index did not change in November but rose at a sharp 0.8 per cent rate in October.

Men's Bridge Opener Jan. 12

The newly formed Marin Mens' Bridge Bridge Club will hold its first session Jan. 12 at 12:45 p.m. in the old County Courthouse in San Rafael.

Membership in the club is limited to retired men who have an average knowledge of contract bridge.

$1 Billion Antismog Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today signed into law far-reaching antipollution legislation which orders the auto industry to produce a virtually emission free car by 1976.

The new law states that the industry come up with an engine, by Jan. 1, 1975, that will reduce emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons by 90 per cent from the maximum 1970 permissible levels.

The administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency is empowered to grant a one-year extension but after that no new cars could be sold that did not meet the new standards unless Congress extended the deadline.

The industry may apply for the one-year extension by Jan. 1, 1972. There is no doubt that the industry will ask for the extra time. Even that is not enough, its spokesmen have contended.

The year's extension would provide a 28-month lead time to engineer an antipollution device into the car.

The 1970 levels were set administratively by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

In addition to the auto features, the clean air act authorizes $1.1 billion over three years for research and aid to states on air and noise pollution problems.

It also provides for establishment of national air quality standards and requires states, over the next four to six years, to establish and enforce clean air programs to meet national standards.

Other key provisions:

—Major new factories and power plants, and similar stationary sources of pollution, must install the best available clean-air devices. Citizens' suits are provided for enforcement—including suits to compel enforcement by lax administrators.

—Fines of $25,000 and up to one year imprisonment as a first penalty for deliberate violations.

Judge Overturns Ruling On Elks

RUMFORD, Maine (UPI)— Some Elks' lodges in Maine got their liquor licenses in time for New Year's Eve under a temporary order from Oxford County Superior Court.

The Maine Liquor Commission had denied liquor licenses to the lodges effective Jan. 1 because the Elks' bylaws limit membership to white male Americans and, therefore, violate a new antidiscrimination law.

Judge Ralph McCarthy ruled Wednesday night the liquor commission did not follow correct procedures in denying the licenses. It must, said Elks lawyer Alviin Beliveau, have evidence of an alleged violation, a series of hearings, and an order by the administrative hearing commissioner.

Relaxing Of Stop, Search Seen

A relaxation in stop-and-search procedures at the Marin Civic Center was predicted today for early 1971 as three county supervisors appeared on the KTIM "Sounding Board" program.

Chairman John F. McInnis and Supervisors William A. Gnoss and Michael Wornum gave a year-end summary and predictions for 1971.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Louis H. Baar were unable to attend the discussion.

Supervisors defended the present body search at the Civic Center as a necessary evil but promised that this and other security measures were only temporary and would be relaxed as soon as possible.

Since the Aug. 7 shoot-out and the Oct. 8 bombing of a courtroom, supervisors have approved new security measures which include searches of persons entering the buildings, as well as their belongings.

Additional personnel have been added to the sheriff's department, and a roving group of deputies guards courtrooms. Formerly open doors are now locked, and the Civic Center is closed at night and on the weekends.

"We will be continuing our rethinking on the need for the security measures," said McInnis.

Wornum agreed that the body search was distasteful, but if it is to be done at all, it should be applied equally to all — from judges to janitors. He said closing the building to night meetings was especially regretful. "I think that in the new year, we will have it open at night as soon as possible."

Gnoss expressed hope that through the use of devices such as metal detectors, body searches could be relaxed in a few more weeks.

The panelists agreed that problems faced in Marin in 1970 would continue to be major concerns in 1971. They include flooding, crime, preserving natural beauty, transportation and welfare cost.

Supervisor Gnoss, who is retiring Tuesday and will be succeeded by Arnold M. Baptiste, asked the new board of supervisors to consider these suggestions:

Complete a master plan for the entire county, develop present county parks like McNears and Stafford Lake before new parks are acquired, get the Army Engineers to widen and dredge Novato Creek, and add a half-day to the weekly supervisors' meeting schedule.

Man Jailed As Suspect In Burglary

A 25-year-old San Francisco man was arrested early today on suspicion of burglarizing Eubank's Florist in Larkspur, police said.

Paul Waldmar Brust turned himself in to Novato police after "hearing a rumor" he was wanted, Novato police said.

Larkspur police said an all-points bulletin was issued for Brust after about 20 hours of investigation into the florist shop burglary yesterday.

Officers said an owner of the store, Dale Eubank, went to his shop early yesterday morning and observed a man inside. The burglar fled through a side door, leaving behind a partly damaged safe.

Brust was in Marin County Jail today with no bail set. He was to appear later in Marin Municipal Court.

Homestead Home Gutted By Fire

A fire, which apparently began in a bedroom, raced through a one-story residence in Homestead Valley last night, gutting the structure in a matter of minutes.

By the time Tamalpais Valley Firemen reached the Carl W. Anderson home at 521 Montford Avenue, the entire two-bedroom house was involved in flames, firemen said.

Anderson called the department at 10:52 p.m. to report the residence was filling with smoke. Cause of the blaze was still under investigation and no estimate of damage was available.

Reagan Picks New Welfare Director

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has replaced his controversial welfare director and reshuffled his own personal staff as he prepares for a second term.

The governor announced Wednesday that Robert Carleson, 39, a former city manager of Pico Rivera in Los Angeles County, will take over directorship of the State Department of Social Welfare.

Reagan simultaneously announced he has accepted the resignation of Robert Martin, who had presided over the troubled department for a year through several fiscal and legal crises.

The Republican governor reportedly has been dissatisfied with the progress of his administration in controlling runaway welfare costs and implementing his policies. He has announced a determination to reform the welfare system during his second and final four-year term which commences Monday.

Reagan also announced these administration changes Wednesday:

—George Steffes, 35, who has been the governor's chief legislative lobbyist, was transferred to a newly created post in "program planning and policy development."

—John T. Kehoe, 39, an educational consultant, will team with William A. Evans, 32, an assistant legislative secretary, to divide Steffes' former lobbying duties. Kehoe will work with the senate and Evans with the Assembly.

Martin, 48, joined the Reagan Administration in 1967 as chief counsel to the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board. He became welfare director last December, succeeding John Montgomery who joined the Nixon Administration.

Martin headed up the department during one of its most tumultuous periods. Acting under Reagan's orders, he fought Nixon Administration welfare regulations in and out of court. He also reduced welfare services but was forced to restore them after social workers protested.

Carleson, who will receive $30,000 in his new job, joined the Reagan Administration in 1968 as chief deputy director of the State Department of Public Works. While there he worked under Hall, who again will become his boss.

Ex-Marinite In Bomb Plot Probe Released By Court

I-J Special Report

TUCSON, Ariz. — Former Novato student Karen Duncan, 25, has been released from federal custody here pending appeal hearings.

She had been sent to jail Dec. 3 for refusing to testify before a secret federal grand jury investigation, reportedly relating to bomb plots by activist groups in California and the Southwest.

Ann Bowen, assistant U.S. attorney, said yesterday Miss Duncan was released to the custody of her attorney, W. Edward Morgano of Tucson, on Christmas Eve.

Morgan had won an order from the U.S. Ninth District Court of Appeals directing the federal district court in Tucson to set bail for her. The court released her without bail, pending further hearings on her appeal against the comtempt sentence for which she was jailed. No hearing date has been set, Miss Bowen said.

When Miss Duncan was subpoenaed to the secret investigation in Tucson, she lived in Venice, Los Angeles County, and was employed in a bookstore there. Four other Venice residents also were jailed for refusing to testify.

Miss Duncan's district court sentence was indeterminate and it could have lasted until the federal grand jury goes out of existence March 31, 1971.

Miss Duncan was graduated from Novato High School and became involved in civil rights work in Mississippi in 1964. She later was a staff worker for the National Students Association, then dropped out of college.

The bomb plot investigation by the federal jury was to have resumed Tuesday, but Miss Bowen said the next meeting had been postponed to the end of January.

Attorney Loses Appeal On Clothes

A Mill Valley attorney, fined $100 in October for appearing tieless and in dungarees before Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court, lost an appeal of the fine today in superior court.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ruled that Judge Goldstein had jurisdiction when he fined Peter Pipe, 28, for "disrespect to the court" for wearing jeans, corduroy jacket, sport shirt and no tie in the courtroom.

Judge Gardiner, however, stayed the fine and contempt order for 30 days to allow Pipe to appeal to a higher court. Pipe said he will take his case to the District Court of Appeal.

Pipe was dressed in the same corduroy jacket today, but wore light colored pants and a tie as he argued that he didn't think, as he said some people do, that "a certain type of clothes makes a person better."

He said he dressed as he did the day he was fined "not because my clients do, but because it is reasonable."

"If clothes are clean and they cover your body, why discriminate?" he asked.

But Judge Gardiner ruled courts have the power to demand certain standards of dress, adding that an attorney representing a nudist colony could not come to court nude or an attorney representing a scavengers' association could not appear in court covered with garbage.

'Night In Old Vienna Sparkles

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — A Vienna-born maestro with wit and style was just what was needed last night to make the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra's annual "Night in Old Vienna" a sparkling presentation of the frothy music of La Belle Epoque around the turn of the century.

Making his San Francisco debut as guest conductor, Henry Krips, youngest brother of the orchestra's conductor emeritus, Josef Krips, directed with much greater freedom, mobile grace and humor than his more tightly disciplined brother.

Henry is currently conductor of the West Australian Symphony Orchestra.

He made the melodies of the famed waltzes and other selections from operettas as luscious as Viennese cream puff pastries and their rhythms as ebullient as champagne.

Admirably arranged were the first five selections from the works of Johann Strauss Jr.: the overture to "Die Fledermaus," "Artists' Life" waltz, Pizzicato polka, "Thunder and Lightning" polka and the "On the Beautiful Blue Danube" waltz.

These led up to the piece de resistance, the singing by New York City Opera soprano Maralin Niska of two arias from operettas. This was a pleasant surprise, for I had been very much disappointed on learning that Metropolitan Opera soprano Anna Moffo, originally scheduled as guest artist, had been forced to cancel because of a slipped disc — the same ailment that afflicts Seiji Ozawa!

The substitution of Miss Niska, however, was eminently satisfactory, for she had the required coloratura dexterity to handle the laughing song from "Die Fledermaus," a lovely tone for the lyrical beauty of Vilia from Lehar's "The Merry Widow" and dramatic flair for the Czardas from "Die Fledermaus," which she sang as her last number in the second half of theprogram.

She was attractive and the near hour-glass silhouette of her gown was perfect for the period of the music.

Highlight of the second half of the program, which included Suppe's "Light Cavalry" overture, the gavotte of Hellmesberger and Waldteufel's "The Skater's" waltz, was the finale consisting of Schonherr's intriguing orchestration in a suite of six Austrian peasant tunes.

Though, as Krips explained in his thick accent, they are primitive music built around a little village brass band, they were fascinating because they were humorous and provided the only fresh material on the program. Everything else was music that has been popular for many years.

The same program will be presented tonight at 9 o'clock at the Opera House.

Raft Drifter To Try Again

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Devere Baker, a man fascinated by rafts, says he has a new one under construction at Redondo Beach.

Baker, who returned by steamship from Australia, told a reporter Wednesday he expects the Lehi VI to cost around $250,000 and that he doesn't know from where the money is coming.

On five previous rafts he tried to drift from California to the Red Sea. But this time he hopes to try drifting from the Red Sea this way.

Lehi III left Bodega Bay in 1957 and after three months landed permanently at Redondo Beach.

Lehi IV disappeared over the horizon from Redondo Beach and turned up 69 days later at Maui.

Lehi V made it from Redondo Beach to Guatemala.

Gatov Leaving PUC As His Term Ends

Albert W. Gatov of Kentfield will leave his post as a state public utilities commissioner tomorrow when his six-yearterm ends.

Gatov, appointed to the commission by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown in January, 1965, will leave the $30,000-a-year job to return to work as a consultant in the field of industrial and governmental affairs in San Francisco.

He started as a member of a Democratic majority on the commission and wound up as a minority of one surrounded by four Reagan appointees.

ALBERT W. GATOV
Leaving PUC

Gatov, known for his tough stances while on the commission, particularly on rate increase proposals, was the lone dissenter on Pacific Gas and Electric Co's. gas rate boost last year.

Gatov, 52, and his wife, the former Elizabeth Rudel Smith, former United States treasurer, have been active in Democratic affairs, working in the successful campaigns of Sen. Alan Cranston and Sen.-elect John V. Tunney.

Gatov has had several careers associated with ocean shipping, from the docks of San Pedro, where he started at 17, to chairman of the Federal Maritime Board at 45.

Last month the Marin County Board of Supervisors appointed Gatov as the county's representative on the Bay Area Metropolitan Transportation Commission, created by the Legislature this year.

Gatov also is president of the San Francisco Maritime Museum, and a former president of Pacific American Steamship Association.

From 1963-65 he was chairman of the San Francisco Bay Area Transportation Study Commission.

During World War II Gatov served in the Army Transportation Corps and was assigned to cargo and troop movements in the United States and in the Persian Command.

After serving on the Federal Maritime Board, he was appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy to the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission, serving on the four-member U.S. section of the commission.

Gatov also served on the Board of Pilot Commissioners for San Francisco, Suisun and San Pablo bays.

A native of New York, he has lived in California for 59 years and resides at 21 Rancheria Road.

Wholesale Prices Rose 2.3 Per Cent During 1970

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices rose 2.3 per cent during 1970, compared to 4.9 per cent in 1969, the Labor Department reported today.

The index increased 0.1 per cent in December to 117.8 per cent of the 1957-59 average. That was 2.3 per cent higher than 115.1 index for December a year ago and was the smallest 12-month advance since the period that ended in June, 1963.

The figures mean that it cost $117.80 to buy the same quantity of wholesale goods in December that could have been obtained for $117.70 in November, $115.10 in December, 1969, and $100 a little more than a decade ago.

The Labor Department said that with adjustments for usual seasonal changes in prices, the December index was unchanged from November. The November index was 0.1 per cent below October.

The figures were greeted with some satisfaction by government inflation fighters. However, prices for industrial commodities increased 0.3 per cent in December (0.2 per cent after seasonal adjustments).

The industrial commodities report is considered the most accurate barometer of overall wholesale prices. Farm prices make up the rest of the index and they are subject to wide swings.

The industrial commodities index did not change in November but rose at a sharp 0.8 per cent rate in October.

$1 Billion Antismog Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today signed into law far-reaching antipollution legislation which orders the auto industry to produce a virtually emission free car by 1976.

The new law states that the industry come up with an engine, by Jan. 1, 1975, that will reduce emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons by 90 per cent from the maximum 1970 permissible levels.

The administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency is empowered to grant a one-year extension but after that no new cars could be sold that did not meet the new standards unless Congress extended the deadline.

The industry may apply for the one-year extension by Jan. 1, 1972. There is no doubt that the industry will ask for the extra time. Even that is not enough, its spokesmen have contended.

The year's extension would provide a 28-month lead time to engineer an antipollution device into the car.

The 1970 levels were set administratively by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

In addition to the auto features, the clean air act authorizes $1.1 billion over three years for research and aid to states on air and noise pollution problems.

It also provides for establishment of national air quality standards and requires states, over the next four to six years, to establish and enforce clean air programs to meet national standards.

Other key provisions:

—Major new factories and power plants, and similar stationary sources of pollution, must install the best available clean-air devices. Citizens' suits are provided for enforcement—including suits to compel enforcement by lax administrators.

—Fines of $25,000 and up to one year imprisonment as a first penalty for deliberate violations.

Judge Overturns Ruling On Elks

RUMFORD, Maine (UPI)—Some Elks' lodges in Maine got their liquor licenses in time for New Year's Eve under a temporary order from Oxford County Superior Court.

The Maine Liquor Commission had denied liquor licenses to the lodges effective Jan. 1 because the Elks' bylaws limit membership to white male Americans and, therefore, violate a new antidiscrimination law.

Judge Ralph McCarthy ruled Wednesday night the liquor commission did not follow correct procedures in denying the licenses. It must, said Elks lawyer Alviin Beliveau, have evidence of an alleged violation, a series of hearings, and an order by the administrative hearing commissioner.

Relaxing Of Stop, Search Seen

A relaxation in stop-and-search procedures at the Marin Civic Center was predicted today for early 1971 as three county supervisors appeared on the KTIM "Sounding Board" program.

Chairman John F. McInnis and Supervisors William A. Gnoss and Michael Wornum gave a year-end summary and predictions for 1971.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Louis H. Baar were unable to attend the discussion.

Supervisors defended the present body search at the Civic Center as a necessary evil but promised that this and other security measures were only temporary and would be relaxed as soon as possible.

Since the Aug. 7 shoot-out and the Oct. 8 bombing of a courtroom, supervisors have approved new security measures which include searches of persons entering the buildings, as well as their belongings.

Additional personnel have been added to the sheriff's department, and a roving group of deputies guards courtrooms. Formerly open doors are now locked, and the Civic Center is closed at night and on the weekends.

"We will be continuing our rethinking on the need for the security measures," said McInnis.

Wornum agreed that the body search was distasteful, but if it is to be done at all, it should be applied equally to all — from judges to janitors. He said closing the building to night meetings was especially regretful. "I think that in the new year, we will have it open at night as soon as possible."

Gnoss expressed hope that through the use of devices such as metal detectors, body searches could be relaxed in a few more weeks.

The panelists agreed that problems faced in Marin in 1970 would continue to be major concerns in 1971. They include flooding, crime, preserving natural beauty, transportation and welfare cost.

Supervisor Gnoss, who is retiring Tuesday and will be succeeded by Arnold M. Baptiste, asked the new board of supervisors to consider these suggestions:

Complete a master plan for the entire county, develop present county parks like McNears and Stafford Lake before new parks are acquired, get the Army Engineers to widen and dredge Novato Creek, and add a half-day to the weekly supervisors' meeting schedule.

Man Jailed As Suspect In Burglary

A 25-year-old San Francisco man was arrested early today on suspicion of burglarizing Eubank's Florist in Larkspur, police said.

Paul Waldmar Brust turned himself in to Novato police after "hearing a rumor" he was wanted, Novato police said.

Larkspur police said an all-points bulletin was issued for Brust after about 20 hours of investigation into the florist shop burglary yesterday.

Officers said an owner of the store, Dale Eubank, went to his shop early yesterday morning and observed a man inside. The burglar fled through a side door, leaving behind a partly damaged safe.

Brust was in Marin County Jail today with no bail set. He was to appear later in Marin Municipal Court.

Homestead Home Gutted By Fire

A fire, which apparently began in a bedroom, raced through a one-story residence in Homestead Valley last night, gutting the structure in a matter of minutes.

By the time Tamalpais Valley Firemen reached the Carl W. Anderson home at 521 Montford Avenue, the entire two-bedroom house was involved in flames, firemen said.

Anderson called the department at 10:52 p.m. to report the residence was filling with smoke. Cause of the blaze was still under investigation and no estimate of damage was available.

Blaze In Store Called Arson

A fire in a Larkspur furniture store early yesterday apparently was the work of an arsonist, Chief William C. Schurtz said today.

The blaze at Saltzman of Marin Furniture, 1011 Magnolia Avenue, caused $7,000 damage to the building and $20,000 smoke damage to merchandise, according to Schurtz. The fire broke out on the mezzanine floor at about 3:17 a.m., and took 21 firemen 30 minutes to control.

Schurtz said that investigators found that entry had been forced into the building, and that three separate places were found inside where fire was set. The case is under investigation, he said.

Gatov Leaving PUC As His Term Ends

ALBERT W. GATOV
Leaving PUC

Albert W. Gatov of Kentfield will leave his post as a state public utilities commissioner tomorrow when his six-yearterm ends.

Gatov, appointed to the commission by former Gov. Edmund G. Brown in January, 1965, will leave the $30,000-a-year job to return to work as a consultant in the field of industrial and governmental affairs in San Francisco.

He started as a member of a Democratic majority on the commission and wound up as a minority of one surrounded by four Reagan appointees.

Gatov, known for his tough stances while on the commission, particularly on rate increase proposals, was the lone dissenter on Pacific Gas and Electric Co's. gas rate boost last year.

Gatov, 52, and his wife, the former Elizabeth Rudel Smith, former United States treasurer, have been active in Democratic affairs, working in the successful campaigns of Sen. Alan Cranston and Sen.-elect John V. Tunney.

Gatov has had several careers associated with ocean shipping, from the docks of San Pedro, where he started at 17, to chairman of the Federal Maritime Board at 45.

Last month the Marin County Board of Supervisors appointed Gatov as the county's representative on the Bay Area Metropolitan Transportation Commission, created by the Legislature this year.

Gatov also is president of the San Francisco Maritime Museum, and a former president of Pacific American Steamship Association.

From 1963-65 he was chairman of the San Francisco Bay Area Transportation Study Commission.

During World War II Gatov served in the Army Transportation Corps and was assigned to cargo and troop movements in the United States and in the Persian Command.

After serving on the Federal Maritime Board, he was appointed by the late President John F. Kennedy to the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission, serving on the four-member U.S. section of the commission.

Gatov also served on the Board of Pilot Commissioners for San Francisco, Suisun and San Pablo bays.

A native of New York, he has lived in California for 59 years and resides at 21 Rancheria Road.

Wholesale Prices Rose 2.3 Per Cent During 1970

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices rose 2.3 per cent during 1970, compared to 4.9 per cent in 1969, the Labor Department reported today.

The index increased 0.1 per cent in December to 117.8 per cent of the 1957-59 average. That was 2.3 per cent higher than 115.1 index for December a year ago and was the smallest 12-month advance since the period that ended in June, 1963.

The figures mean that it cost $117.80 to buy the same quantity of wholesale goods in December that could have been obtained for $117.70 in November, $115.10 in December, 1969, and $100 a little more than a decade ago.

The Labor Department said that with adjustments for usual seasonal changes in prices, the December index was unchanged from November. The November index was 0.1 per cent below October.

The figures were greeted with some satisfaction by government inflation fighters. However, prices for industrial commodities increased 0.3 per cent in December (0.2 per cent after seasonal adjustments).

The industrial commodities report is considered the most accurate barometer of overall wholesale prices. Farm prices make up the rest of the index and they are subject to wide swings.

The industrial commodities index did not change in November but rose at a sharp 0.8 per cent rate in October.

$1 Billion Antismog Bill Signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today signed into law far-reaching antipollution legislation which orders the auto industry to produce a virtually emission free car by 1976.

The new law states that the industry come up with an engine, by Jan. 1, 1975, that will reduce emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons by 90 per cent from the maximum 1970 permissible levels.

The administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency is empowered to grant a one-year extension but after that no new cars could be sold that did not meet the new standards unless Congress extended the deadline.

The industry may apply for the one-year extension by Jan. 1, 1972. There is no doubt that the industry will ask for the extra time. Even that is not enough, its spokesmen have contended.

The year's extension would provide a 28-month lead time to engineer an antipollution device into the car.

The 1970 levels were set administratively by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

In addition to the auto features, the clean air act authorizes $1.1 billion over three years for research and aid to states on air and noise pollution problems.

It also provides for establishment of national air quality standards and requires states, over the next four to six years, to establish and enforce clean air programs to meet national standards.

Other key provisions:

—Major new factories and power plants, and similar stationary sources of pollution, must install the best available clean-air devices. Citizens' suits are provided for enforcement—including suits to compel enforcement by lax administrators.

—Fines of $25,000 and up to one year imprisonment as a first penalty for deliberate violations.

Judge Overturns Ruling On Elks

RUMFORD, Maine (UPI)—Some Elks' lodges in Maine got their liquor licenses in time for New Year's Eve under a temporary order from Oxford County Superior Court.

The Maine Liquor Commission had denied liquor licenses to the lodges effective Jan. 1 because the Elks' bylaws limit membership to white male Americans and, therefore, violate a new antidiscrimination law.

Judge Ralph McCarthy ruled Wednesday night the liquor commission did not follow correct procedures in denying the licenses. It must, said Elks lawyer Alviin Beliveau, have evidence of an alleged violation, a series of hearings, and an order by the administrative hearing commissioner.

Relaxing Of Stop, Search Seen

A relaxation in stop-and-search procedures at the Marin Civic Center was predicted today for early 1971 as three county supervisors appeared on the KTIM "Sounding Board" program.

Chairman John F. McInnis and Supervisors William A. Gnoss and Michael Wornum gave a year-end summary and predictions for 1971.

Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Louis H. Baar were unable to attend the discussion.

Supervisors defended the present body search at the Civic Center as a necessary evil but promised that this and other security measures were only temporary and would be relaxed as soon as possible.

Since the Aug. 7 shoot-out and the Oct. 8 bombing of a courtroom, supervisors have approved new security measures which include searches of persons entering the buildings, as well as their belongings.

Additional personnel have been added to the sheriff's department, and a roving group of deputies guards courtrooms. Formerly open doors are now locked, and the Civic Center is closed at night and on the weekends.

"We will be continuing our rethinking on the need for the security measures," said McInnis.

Wornum agreed that the body search was distasteful, but if it is to be done at all, it should be applied equally to all — from judges to janitors. He said closing the building to night meetings was especially regretful. "I think that in the new year, we will have it open at night as soon as possible."

Gnoss expressed hope that through the use of devices such as metal detectors, body searches could be relaxed in a few more weeks.

The panelists agreed that problems faced in Marin in 1970 would continue to be major concerns in 1971. They include flooding, crime, preserving natural beauty, transportation and welfare cost.

Supervisor Gnoss, who is retiring Tuesday and will be succeeded by Arnold M. Baptiste, asked the new board of supervisors to consider these suggestions:

Complete a master plan for the entire county, develop present county parks like McNears and Stafford Lake before new parks are acquired, get the Army Engineers to widen and dredge Novato Creek, and add a half-day to the weekly supervisors' meeting schedule.

Man Jailed As Suspect In Burglary

A 25-year-old San Francisco man was arrested early today on suspicion of burglarizing Eubank's Florist in Larkspur, police said.

Paul Waldmar Brust turned himself in to Novato police after "hearing a rumor" he was wanted, Novato police said.

Larkspur police said an all-points bulletin was issued for Brust after about 20 hours of investigation into the florist shop burglary yesterday.

Officers said an owner of the store, Dale Eubank, went to his shop early yesterday morning and observed a man inside. The burglar fled through a side door, leaving behind a partly damaged safe.

Brust was in Marin County Jail today with no bail set. He was to appear later in Marin Municipal Court.

Homestead Home Gutted By Fire

A fire, which apparently began in a bedroom, raced through a one-story residence in Homestead Valley last night, gutting the structure in a matter of minutes.

By the time Tamalpais Valley Firemen reached the Carl W. Anderson home at 521 Montford Avenue, the entire two-bedroom house was involved in flames, firemen said.

Anderson called the department at 10:52 p.m. to report the residence was filling with smoke. Cause of the blaze was still under investigation and no estimate of damage was available.

Reagan Picks New Welfare Director

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan has replaced his controversial welfare director and reshuffled his own personal staff as he prepares for a second term.

The governor announced Wednesday that Robert Carleson, 39, a former city manager of Pico Rivera in Los Angeles County, will take over directorship of the State Department of Social Welfare.

Reagan simultaneously announced he has accepted the resignation of Robert Martin, who had presided over the troubled department for a year through several fiscal and legal crises.

The Republican governor reportedly has been dissatisfied with the progress of his administration in controlling runaway welfare costs and implementing his policies. He has announced a determination to reform the welfare system during his second and final four-year term which commences Monday.

Reagan also announced these administration changes Wednesday:

—George Steffes, 35, who has been the governor's chief legislative lobbyist, was transferred to a newly created post in "program planning and policy development."

—John T. Kehoe, 39, an educational consultant, will team with William A. Evans, 32, an assistant legislative secretary, to divide Steffes' former lobbying duties. Kehoe will work with the senate and Evans with the Assembly.

Martin, 48, joined the Reagan Administration in 1967 as chief counsel to the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board. He became welfare director last December, succeeding John Montgomery who joined the Nixon Administration.

Martin headed up the department during one of its most tumultuous periods. Acting under Reagan's orders, he fought Nixon Administration welfare regulations in and out of court. He also reduced welfare services but was forced to restore them after social workers protested.

Carleson, who will receive $30,000 in his new job, joined the Reagan Administration in 1968 as chief deputy director of the State Department of Public Works. While there he worked under Hall, who again will become his boss.

1971 Property Tax Rates: Up To $14

Bay Area property tax rates for fiscal 1971 range from just under $4 per $100 assessed valuation to almost $20, according to a research report of the Bay Area Council.

These high and low rate areas of the nine-county region are both located within the unincorporated sector of Sonoma County. The common rate for the region is about $12.50 per $100 assessed valuation.

Total tax rates in Marin County range from $8.57 to $14.01 per $100 of assessed valuation, both also in sectors of the county's unincorporated area. Per capita valuation of total taxable property in Marin is $13,315, compared to $12,074 for the total Bay Area. Marin property is assessed at 22.2 per cent of full market value, compared to 23.4 per cent for the region as a whole.

Sonoma County property is also assessed at 22.2 per cent of full market value.

In other counties of the Bay Area, San Francisco is assessed at $12.82 per $100 assessed valuation. San Mateo County taxes range from $8.23 to $14.44 per $100, at 22.7 per cent of full market value. Santa Clara County taxes, $8.30 — $13.86 per $100 are at 24.4 per cent of full value. Alameda County taxes $8.12 — $15.49, are at 25 per cent of full value. Contra Costa County taxes, $7.95 — $15.55, are at 23.5 per cent. Napa County taxes, $6.99 — $18.78, assessed at 19.6 per cent. Solano County taxes, $6.84 — $11.72, assessed at 24.3 per cent of full value.

Total assessed value of taxable property in the Bay Area is nearly $13 billion, representing an actual market value of more than $55 billion.

Ex-Marinite In Bomb Plot Probe Released By Court

I-J Special Report

TUCSON, Ariz. — Former Novato student Karen Duncan, 25, has been released from federal custody here pending appeal hearings.

She had been sent to jail Dec. 3 for refusing to testify before a secret federal grand jury investigation, reportedly relating to bomb plots by activist groups in California and the Southwest.

Ann Bowen, assistant U.S. attorney, said yesterday Miss Duncan was released to the custody of her attorney, W. Edward Morgano of Tucson, on Christmas Eve.

Morgan had won an order from the U.S. Ninth District Court of Appeals directing the federal district court in Tucson to set bail for her. The court released her without bail, pending further hearings on her appeal against the comtempt sentence for which she was jailed. No hearing date has been set, Miss Bowen said.

When Miss Duncan was subpoenaed to the secret investigation in Tucson, she lived in Venice, Los Angeles County, and was employed in a bookstore there. Four other Venice residents also were jailed for refusing to testify.

Miss Duncan's district court sentence was indeterminate and it could have lasted until the federal grand jury goes out of existence March 31, 1971.

Miss Duncan was graduated from Novato High School and became involved in civil rights work in Mississippi in 1964. She later was a staff worker for the National Students Association, then dropped out of college.

The bomb plot investigation by the federal jury was to have resumed Tuesday, but Miss Bowen said the next meeting had been postponed to the end of January.

'Earth II'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Gary Merrill and Edward Bell will star in "Earth II," an MGM television movie for ABC.

Attorney Loses Appeal On Clothes

A Mill Valley attorney, fined $100 in October for appearing tieless and in dungarees before Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court, lost an appeal of the fine today in superior court.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner ruled that Judge Goldstein had jurisdiction when he fined Peter Pipe, 28, for "disrespect to the court" for wearing jeans, corduroy jacket, sport shirt and no tie in the courtroom.

Judge Gardiner, however, stayed the fine and contempt order for 30 days to allow Pipe to appeal to a higher court. Pipe said he will take his case to the District Court of Appeal.

Pipe was dressed in the same corduroy jacket today, but wore light colored pants and a tie as he argued that he didn't think, as he said some people do, that "a certain type of clothes makes a person better."

He said he dressed as he did the day he was fined "not because my clients do, but because it is reasonable."

"If clothes are clean and they cover your body, why discriminate?" he asked.

But Judge Gardiner ruled courts have the power to demand certain standards of dress, adding that an attorney representing a nudist colony could not come to court nude or an attorney representing a scavengers' association could not appear in court covered with garbage.

MUSIC REVIEW

'Night In Old Vienna Sparkles

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

SAN FRANCISCO — A Vienna-born maestro with wit and style was just what was needed last night to make the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra's annual "Night in Old Vienna" a sparkling presentation of the frothy music of La Belle Epoque around the turn of the century.

Making his San Francisco debut as guest conductor, Henry Krips, youngest brother of the orchestra's conductor emeritus, Josef Krips, directed with much greater freedom, mobile grace and humor than his more tightly disciplined brother.

Henry is currently conductor of the West Australian Symphony Orchestra.

He made the melodies of the famed waltzes and other selections from operettas as luscious as Viennese cream puff pastries and their rhythms as ebullient as champagne.

Admirably arranged were the first five selections from the works of Johann Strauss Jr.: the overture to "Die Fledermaus," "Artists' Life" waltz, Pizzicato polka, "Thunder and Lightning" polka and the "On the Beautiful Blue Danube" waltz.

These led up to the piece de resistance, the singing by New York City Opera soprano Maralin Niska of two arias from operettas. This was a pleasant surprise, for I had been very much disappointed on learning that Metropolitan Opera soprano Anna Moffo, originally scheduled as guest artist, had been forced to cancel because of a slipped disc — the same ailment that afflicts Seiji Ozawa!

The substitution of Miss Niska, however, was eminently satisfactory, for she had the required coloratura dexterity to handle the laughing song from "Die Fledermaus," a lovely tone for the lyrical beauty of Vilia from Lehar's "The Merry Widow" and dramatic flair for the Czardas from "Die Fledermaus," which she sang as her last number in the second half of theprogram.

She was attractive and the near hour-glass silhouette of her gown was perfect for the period of the music.

Highlight of the second half of the program, which included Suppe's "Light Cavalry" overture, the gavotte of Hellmesberger and Waldteufel's "The Skater's" waltz, was the finale consisting of Schonherr's intriguing orchestration in a suite of six Austrian peasant tunes.

Though, as Krips explained in his thick accent, they are primitive music built around a little village brass band, they were fascinating because they were humorous and provided the only fresh material on the program. Everything else was music that has been popular for many years.

The same program will be presented tonight at 9 o'clock at the Opera House.

Raft Drifter To Try Again

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Devere Baker, a man fascinated by rafts, says he has a new one under construction at Redondo Beach.

Baker, who returned by steamship from Australia, told a reporter Wednesday he expects the Lehi VI to cost around $250,000 and that he doesn't know from where the money is coming.

On five previous rafts he tried to drift from California to the Red Sea. But this time he hopes to try drifting from the Red Sea this way.

Lehi III left Bodega Bay in 1957 and after three months landed permanently at Redondo Beach.

Lehi IV disappeared over the horizon from Redondo Beach and turned up 69 days later at Maui.

Lehi V made it from Redondo Beach to Guatemala.

Marin Dining And Wining

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Happy New Year, One And All! Marin Dineries Plan Varied Fare

The horns will blow at midnight tonight at most dineries throughout the county, though the blaring may be somewhat muted at some, for all of them do not celebrate New Year's Eve with equal abandon.

The past year has been a spotty one in dining out business, reflecting the times, with a few "growth" places reporting new highs. But most have been content to emerge with modest profits and others to break even There have been a few closings — not many, and about 10 new openings.

The most recent of these is a little Viennese restaurant, which opened only a few days ago at 508 Third Street, San Rafael (across from the United Market), called the OLD VIENNA.

Owners Karl and Edith Klauda have been in this country less than three years from Vienna. Both are Austrians. Karl was apprenticed and trained in Vienna as a professional chef and for two years was executive chef at the Coq d'Or in San Francisco. They live in Santa Venetia.

Complete dinners at the Old Vienna are $3.50, including soup, salad, dessert and coffee. Entree choices are filet of sole amandine, boneless fried chicken, wienerschnitzel, pork tenderloin Hungarian style, gypsy goulash, a farmers plate of grilled ham, pork and frankfurters with sauerkraut and potatoes — and a top sirloin steak. There are also a daily special and a number of a la carte items, along with omelets, sandwiches, Viennaburgers and diet plate. Fresh applestrudel is made daily.

An application has been made for a wine and beer license, but this has not yet been activated.

Hours are from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays. The Klaudas were not planning to be open tomorrow, New Year's Day, but try them Saturday.

This is the location of the former Mr. Scallopini, but the restaurant has been redecorated and is neat and clean.

BY THE TIME you are likely to read this, it will be almost the "11th hour" as far as reservations are concerned at some of the Marin night spots — many of which have been mentioned in recent columns.

Still — if your plans have been too much up in the air to make a firm commitment, it's worth trying for a reservation even now. Some places possibly have had cancellations and may be able to take you. Others may not be completely booked.

Here are a few more additions to the list of those already submitted during the last three or four weeks:

THE SPINNAKER in Sausalito has been taking reservations, but up to two days ago could squeeze in a few more. Although the picture may have changed since then, try anyway.

This is a dinner house. Do not expect entertainment and dancing. But facilities are on the elegant side with a pleasing outlook over the bay waters. Service and food is good.

Regular menu and prices will prevail.

PEACOCK GAP COUNTRY CLUB is having a New Year's Eve party tonight. It's a big place and will take many reservations to fill it. Try for one by calling Lois Mason there.

The cocktail lounge will be serving drinks from 8 to 10 p.m. Dinner starts at 10. There's a special menu at $27.50 per couple, which includes midnight champagne, favors and dancing from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

There's lots of room for parking.

THERE'S A CHOICE of prime rib or lobster on the special menu being prepared tonight at Black Point Inn by chef Jack Cardini. The $18 per couple Jess Fisher is charging includes dancing, entertainment and party favors. Call ahead for reservations.

NERO'S RESTAURANT at Nave Lanes, Ignacio plans on having a New Year's Eve champagne dinner party tonight, with favors and dancing.

The tab is $25 per couple, plus tax and tip. Be sure to call for reservations as this may be booked up.

DOWN IN TIBURON, both the Windjammer and the Dockwere still taking reservations for tonight when I checked Tuesday. Call ahead at one or the other to be sure of space.

TIBURON TOMMIE'S MAI TAI has large dining areas upstairs and down to fill, but usually keeps busy on New Year's Eve in spite of the fact thatTommie Cox has given up featuring a special year-end party with entertainment.

Regular hours, regular menu and regular prices will prevail. Reservations are advisable to shorten your waiting period.

THE RAFTERS at the Edgewater Inn in Corte Madera may take a few more reservations for dinners tonight. It was still accepting them the last time I talked to manager Alfred Kendlinger). This restaurant will serve from 6 p.m. in the regular dining room, using the regular menu at no increase in prices. No entertainment schedule was planned.

JEAN DOBSON will be celebrating completion of her fourth successful year at Jean's Kitchen in Ross from Jan. 6 through Jan. 9 — next Wednesday through Saturday. Though small, this is one of the places in Marin which enjoyed a good year in 1970.

Dinner special those days will be prime rib, backed up with relishes, soup, salad, ravioli and baked potato at $4.

Jean planned to close at 6 tonight and remain closed over the entire weekend. Open again Monday.

RUBINI'S IN FAIRFAX is holding a "January White Sale" on its dinners next month — that is, for Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday nights.

On those evenings, complete dinner prices on the regular menu will be reduced by $1. (This reduction will not apply where two-for-one coupon books are involved).

Incidentally, Rubini's offers another possibility for tonight. As of Tuesday, there were still a few tables available. The policy here for New Year's Eve is to take advance reservations but if the table is not claimed at the time for which it was reserved it will be forfeited. The reason is that many people fail to phone in cancellations and simply don't show up, leaving a table open that could be used. Most all restaurants experience this.

At Rubini's, dinners start at 6 tonight. There will be seven entree choices on the menu. Lowell Hawk is providing the entertainment.

A TUESDAY REPORT from the Ghiringhellis at Deer Park Villa, Fairfax was that this restaurant still had a few tables left for tonight. Call before going there, however.

An early dinner period will be held from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. There should be about 12 entree choices, with prices ranging from $5.50 to $7.50 for complete dinner. Most of your favorites will be served.

From 9 p.m. to midnight will be the evening's champagne dinner, with an equal number of choices. Prices will be from $10 to $12, including favors and dancing. Organist Bernie Whaley will play here.

Tomorrow, New Year's Day, the regular dinner menu will be served from 4 p.m.

WHEREEVER YOU GO, may your evening be an enjoyable one and the new year even better for you than 1970.

Rubella Make-Up Clinics

Marin youngsters who missed the recent rubella vaccination drive will be able to receive shots at a series of make-up clinics beginning Monday.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said the clinics, for children 1 to 11, are an extension of the school vaccination program held during the last two months. "No fee will be charged for vaccination, but donations of up to $1 to the Marin Medical Society rubella fund would be appreciated from any parents who have not already made a contribution through the schools," said Dr. Albrecht.

Children who are allergic to eggs, chicken, duck or feathers will not be vaccinated at these clinics. However, at a later date, the health department may have a different brand of vaccine that can be given to allergic children, said Dr. Albrecht.

On a countywide basis, almost 42 per cent of eligible children were vaccinated during the school program in November and December. "We cannot slacken our efforts to vaccinate preschool and elementary grade children, if we are to prevent another epidemic of rubella with its devastating effects on unborn infants," Dr. Albrecht concluded.

Jan. 11 — 1:30 to 4 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue.

Jan. 13 — 4 to 7 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue.

Jan. 15 — 4 to 7 p.m. at Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Jan. 18 — 1 to 4 p.m., Manzanita Center, Marin City.

Jan. 19 — 2 to 4 p.m. at Bolinas Community House.

Jan. 21 — 4 to 7 p.m. at Novato Community Center.

Jan. 25 — 1:30 to 4 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue.

Jan. 26 — 4 to 7 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue.

Burglar Leaves Strange Trace

Police said someone broke into the home of Robert L. Campbell, 158 Ridgewood Road, between Dec. 21 and Monday, but took nothing except wine.

Police said he apparently lay on the bed drinking wine and smoking, then forgot his gold ring and a piece of paper with a phone number when he left.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Happy New Year, One And All! Marin Dineries Plan Varied Fare

The horns will blow at midnight tonight at most dineries throughout the county, though the blaring may be somewhat muted at some, for all of them do not celebrate New Year's Eve with equal abandon.

The past year has been a spotty one in dining out business, reflecting the times, with a few "growth" places reporting new highs. But most have been content to emerge with modest profits and others to break even. There have been a few closings — not many, and about 10 new openings.

The most recent of these is a little Viennese restaurant, which opened only a few days ago at 508 Third Street, San Rafael (across from the United Market), called the OLD VIENNA.

Owners Karl and Edith Klauda have been in this country less than three years from Vienna. Both are Austrians. Karl was apprenticed and trained in Vienna as a professional chef and for two years was executive chef at the Coq d'Or in San Francisco. They live in Santa Venetia.

Complete dinners at the Old Vienna are $3.50, including soup, salad, dessert and coffee. Entree choices are filet of sole amandine, boneless fried chicken, wienerschnitzel, pork tenderloin Hungarian style, gypsy goulash, a farmers plate of grilled ham, pork and frankfurters with sauerkraut and potatoes — and a top sirloin steak. There are also a daily special and a number of a la carte items, along with omelets, sandwiches, Viennaburgers and diet plate. Fresh applestrudel is made daily.

An application has been made for a wine and beer license, but this has not yet been activated.

Hours are from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays. The Klaudas were not planning to be open tomorrow, New Year's Day, but try them Saturday.

This is the location of the former Mr. Scallopini, but the restaurant has been redecorated and is neat and clean.

BY THE TIME you are likely to read this, it will be almost the "11th hour" as far as reservations are concerned at some of the Marin night spots — many of which have been mentioned in recent columns.

Still — if your plans have been too much up in the air to make a firm commitment, it's worth trying for a reservation even now. Some places possibly have had cancellations and may be able to take you. Others may not be completely booked.

Here are a few more additions to the list of those already submitted during the last three or four weeks:

THE SPINNAKER in Sausalito has been taking reservations, but up to two days ago could squeeze in a few more. Although the picture may have changed since then, try anyway.

This is a dinner house. Do not expect entertainment and dancing. But facilities are on the elegant side with a pleasing outlook over the bay waters. Service and food is good.

Regular menu and prices will prevail.

PEACOCK GAP COUNTRY CLUB is having a New Year's Eve party tonight. It's a big place and will take many reservations to fill it. Try for one by calling Lois Mason there.

The cocktail lounge will be serving drinks from 8 to 10 p.m. Dinner starts at 10. There's a special menu at $27.50 per couple, which includes midnight champagne, favors and dancing from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

There's lots of room for parking.

THERE'S A CHOICE of prime rib or lobster on the special menu being prepared tonight at Black Point Inn by chef Jack Cardini. The $18 per couple Jess Fisher is charging includes dancing, entertainment and party favors. Call ahead for reservations.

NERO'S RESTAURANT at Nave Lanes, Ignacio plans on having a New Year's Eve champagne dinner party tonight, with favors and dancing.

The tab is $25 per couple, plus tax and tip. Be sure to call for reservations as this may be booked up.

DOWN IN TIBURON, both the Windjammer and the Dockwere still taking reservations for tonight when I checked Tuesday. Call ahead at one or the other to be sure of space.

TIBURON TOMMIE'S MAI TAI has large dining areas upstairs and down to fill, but usually keeps busy on New Year's Eve in spite of the fact that Tommie Cox has given up featuring a special year-end party with entertainment.

Regular hours, regular menu and regular prices will prevail. Reservations are advisable to shorten your waiting period.

THE RAFTERS at the Edgewater Inn in Corte Madera may take a few more reservations for dinners tonight. It was still accepting them the last time I talked to manager Alfred Kendlinger). This restaurant will serve from 6 p.m. in the regular dining room, using the regular menu at no increase in prices. No entertainment schedule was planned.

JEAN DOBSON will be celebrating completion of her fourth successful year at Jean's Kitchen in Ross from Jan. 6 through Jan. 9 — next Wednesday through Saturday. Though small, this is one of the places in Marin which enjoyed a good year in 1970.

Dinner special those days will be prime rib, backed up with relishes, soup, salad, ravioli and baked potato at $4.

Jean planned to close at 6 tonight and remain closed over the entire weekend. Open again Monday.

RUBINI'S IN FAIRFAX is holding a "January White Sale" on its dinners next month — that is, for Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday nights.

On those evenings, complete dinner prices on the regular menu will be reduced by $1. (This reduction will not apply where two-for-one coupon books are involved).

Incidentally, Rubini's offers another possibility for tonight. As of Tuesday, there were still a few tables available. The policy here for New Year's Eve is to take advance reservations but if the table is not claimed at the time for which it was reserved it will be forfeited. The reason is that many people fail to phone in cancellations and simply don't show up, leaving a table open that could be used. Most all restaurants experience this.

At Rubini's, dinners start at 6 tonight. There will be seven entree choices on the menu. Lowell Hawk is providing the entertainment.

A TUESDAY REPORT from the Ghiringhellis at Deer Park Villa, Fairfax was that this restaurant still had a few tables left for tonight. Call before going there, however.

An early dinner period will be held from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. There should be about 12 entree choices, with prices ranging from $5.50 to $7.50 for complete dinner. Most of your favorites will be served.

From 9 p.m. to midnight will be the evening's champagne dinner, with an equal number of choices. Prices will be from $10 to $12, including favors and dancing. Organist Bernie Whaley will play here.

Tomorrow, New Year's Day, the regular dinner menu will be served from 4 p.m.

WHEREEVER YOU GO, may your evening be an enjoyable one and the new year even better for you than 1970.

Rubella Make-Up Clinics

Marin youngsters who missed the recent rubella vaccination drive will be able to receive shots at a series of make-up clinics beginning Monday.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said the clinics, for children 1 to 11, are an extension of the school vaccination program held during the last two months. "No fee will be charged for vaccination, but donations of up to $1 to the Marin Medical Society rubella fund would be appreciated from any parents who have not already made a contribution through the schools," said Dr. Albrecht.

Children who are allergic to eggs, chicken, duck or feathers will not be vaccinated at these clinics. However, at a later date, the health department may have a different brand of vaccine that can be given to allergic children, said Dr. Albrecht.

On a countywide basis, almost 42 per cent of eligible children were vaccinated during the school program in November and December. "We cannot slacken our efforts to vaccinate preschool and elementary grade children, if we are to prevent another epidemic of rubella with its devastating effects on unborn infants," Dr. Albrecht concluded.

Monday — 1:30 to 4 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue, San Rafael.

Jan. 11 — 1:30 to 4 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue.

Jan. 13 — 4 to 7 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue.

Jan. 15 — 4 to 7 p.m. at Corte Madera Recreation Center.

Jan. 18 — 1 to 4 p.m., Manzanita Center, Marin City.

Jan. 18 — 1:30 to 4 p.m., at 920 Grand Avenue, San Rafael.

Jan. 19 — 2 to 4 p.m. at Bolinas Community House.

Jan. 21 — 4 to 7 p.m. at Novato Community Center.

Jan. 25 — 1:30 to 4 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue.

Jan. 26 — 4 to 7 p.m. at 920 Grand Avenue.

Petaluman Denies Carrying Weapon

Edward M. Upchurch, 18, of Petaluma, has pleaded innocent in Southern Sonoma Municipal court to charges of carrying a concealed weapon and violating probation.

Visiting Judge Frank Passalacqua set trial for Feb. 9 at 3 p.m. Upchurch was arrested Dec. 10 when police said they found a knife hidden in his vest.

Burglar Leaves Strange Trace

Police said someone broke into the home of Robert L. Campbell, 158 Ridgewood Road, between Dec. 21 and Monday, but took nothing except wine.

Police said he apparently lay on the bed drinking wine and smoking, then forgot his gold ring and a piece of paper with a phone number when he left.

U.S. - Taiwan Trade Hits $1 Billion

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist China's trade with the United States will hit $1 billion this year, with a favorable balance of $100 milion, a government spokesmen said today. The two-way volume totaled $942 million from January to November, he said, an increase of $279 million over the same period last year.

Exports amounted to $521 million and imports $421 million.

Adult Education Classes Scheduled

Adult education classes scheduled to start next week in the San Rafael School District's winter program include three new language classes.

An English class for foreign-born persons will begin at 10 a.m. Thursday at San Rafael High School and will be taught by a woman who is fluent in five languages.

Two daytime French classes will be offered, both at Terra Linda High School.

Another new class will be Languages and Tips for Travelers Abroad, to be taught at San Rafael High School by a travel reporter who is also a language teacher. Prospective travelers will be taught not only basic French, Spanish and German but also to make good use of their time and money.

Additional information about these and other adult classes may be obtained by calling the adult education department at San Rafael High School.

Hearing Waived On Drug Charge

Douglas R. Farley, 19, of Petaluma, has waived a preliminary hearing in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court and was bound over to superior court on a charge of possessing dangerous drugs.

Visiting Judge Frank Passalacqua scheduled him to appear in Superior Court Tuesday at 9 a.m. Farley was arrested Dec. 20 when police said they found him carrying capsules containing drugs.

U.S. Editors Rank Apollo, Kent Tops

NEW YORK (UPI) —The flight of Apollo 13, in which three U.S. astronauts brought their crippled moonship safely home after an explosion deep in space, was the top news story of 1970.

For the second year in a row the U.S. moon exploration program was ranked No. 1 by American editors participating in the annual poll by United Press International to select the news stories with the most headline impact. This time it was the abortive flight last April which kept the world in suspense for four days until the three astronauts landed safely in the Pacific Ocean. A year ago, the top story was the successful first moon landing by the men of Apollo 11.

UPI asked the editors to mark a second ballot to select the stories they felt had the most long-range significance. This list was headed by the sluggish U.S. economy which covered the declining stock market, inflation, unemployment and numerous other business developments including a strike against General Motors.

Under the listing for "headline value" the editors ranked the deaths of four Kent State University students, killed by National Guardsmen during a confrontation on the campus in Ohio, as the No. 2 story.

The invasion of Cambodia by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops in May, which provoked a wave of student protests in the United States, including the one at Kent State, was ranked as the No. 3 story in the headline category. It was No. 2 in the most significant category.

Nursing Homes' Suit Brought

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A suit to halt the Reagan administration's 10 per cent Medi-Cal cut in nursing home fees was taken under consideration Tuesday by Superior Court Judge William Gallagher.

The reduction was part of a 10 per cent cutback in payments to Medi-Cal providers, including druggists and doctors, which went into effect Dec. 15. The administration took the action to avoid a threatened $140 million deficit in the current Medi-Cal budget.

The suit was filed Dec. 14 by the California Association of Nursing Homes in an effort to prevent the nursing home fee cut which decreases rates for patients from $14 a day to $12.60.

A CHRISTMAS DAY walk through the town inspired the song "Mill Valley" and Rita Abrams wrote it that evening, little guessing that it would be recorded and hit the national pop music charts. Here she records it with her kindergarten class at Strawberry Point School, but the sound was not quite right. The hit record features teacher Abrams and Strawberry Point third graders, recorded in a San Francisco studio. After her fame she found herself blamed for the influx of hippies and others to Mill Valley, but, as she points out, that was going on long before her song publicized the city.

THE SUPER STAR of rock — Janis Joplin — is gone, found dead at 27 in a Hollywood motel where she was staying during a recording session. Janis chose the Baltimore Canyon area in Larkspur to build her redwood and glass dream house and live the free life. Earthy, sometimes shy, she found in singing "a supreme emotional and physical experience," and fans who had seen her sing "Ball and Chain" believed it when she said, "It's my song."

THE WOMEN'S STRIKE for equality Aug. 26 was carried home to Marin when the Marin Chapter of the National Organization for Women assisted by other women's liberation supporters picketed the Marin Civic Center and passed out leaflets charging the county with sex discrimination in hiring and promotion of its employees.

Women Have Themselves Big Year

By BARBARA HOSMER

"Don't iron while the strike is hot!"

Slogans of the New Feminism reverberated throughout the nation during this first year of the new decade, and the women's liberation movement put on a nationwide strike of women on the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage.

American women marched, picketed and held teach-ins across the country and hardly a household was unaware that women were on the move in a renewed bid for equality and freedom. Terms such as "sex object" and "male Chauvinist" and "sexism" became part of the new language of the seventies.

Betty Friedan, founder of NOW and author the "The Feminine Mystique," announced she'd run for President in '72 if no sympathetic candidate is in sight by then, and two women were elected Congress this year. One, Bella Abzug of New York City's West Side, campaigned on an equality-and-child-care-for-all platform.

The Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution looked like a possibility and then went down to virtual defeat in the Senate at the last minute, though women's rights champions hope to resuscitate it next year.

But in California women scored a victory when AB 22 was passed and became law last month, outlawing discrimination on the basis of sex by any employer of five or more persons. In line with this, the Marin Chapter of the National Organization for Women leveled the charge of discrimination against women in employment practices of the County of Marin, finding a wide discrepancy in average male and female salaries among county employees and in many departments no women at all in the more responsible, well-paid jobs. The NOW chapter vowed to file a complaint with the state Fair Employment Practices Commission urging an investigation of Marin's largest employer.

PICKETING THROUGH the Civic Center on Women's Strike Day was the second time during the year that Marin NOW Chapter took to the streets in the cause of women's rights. In mid-June they turned out with signs to picket and leaflet the Harbor Shopping Center in behalf of a woman barber.

Also rapidly forming in small discussion groups were women's liberationists who met in Southern Marin living rooms. In a short time the new Feminist movement got itself together in Marin and promises much more for 1971.

Meantime, across the country small gains and a few larger ones were made by women, thanks in large part to the new movement for women's rights. In fact, a rash of token gains such as were made in the 1960s by the black movement may become fashionable, but the women vow they won't be satisfied until full equality for all is achieved. All-male professional organizations have been under attack throughout the year by women and barriers are beginning to come down. Demands for child care and job equality were uniting points for the Aug. 26 nationwide rallies.

And just Monday a federal judge ruled that California's weight-lifting limit for women on the job is invalid because it and other sections of the state protective laws for women contradict federal laws prohibiting job discrimination against women.

OTHER RALLYING points for women in general this year were consumer interests, spurred by rising food prices and living costs in a slack economy, and the revolt against the midi-maxi hemline, noisy in some cities and tacit throughout the country. Just as they had cried out against the mini a few years ago, they cried out in its behalf in 1970.

Marin Women

MOUTHY MARTHA Mitchell grabbed headlines all year with her straight-from-the-shoulder opinions on nearly everything, often made through late night phone calls to the press in Washington, D.C. The wife of the U.S. attorney general added much-needed color to the Washington scene, whatever her views.

And while it had nothing to do with liberation, the younger generation adipted the sans-bra style for comfort and continued light on the cosmetics.

"The Pill" came in for a hard rap for its possible dangerous side effects in some scientific studies and many women became leery of what they once had been told was their liberation from fear of unwanted pregnancy. Locally Marin Planned Parenthood Agency found four times as many women seeking its assistance in the first quarter of the year, after the Senate subcommittee hearings created a pill scare.

However, as the year finished millions of women remained on the pill, which marked its 10th birthday, incidentally.

POPULATION AND pollution were key issues brought before the public this year, and "ecology" became a household word and "bio-degradable" joined the laundry soap lexicon. Phosphates were out, re-cycling was in. Nader and his Raiders were more popular than John Lennon, and they pointed out that big industry was far more to blame for U.S. pollution than the American housewife's soapsuds.

There was a big flap among the breakfast food folks when the government hearings revealed that the Breakfast of Champions and many of its competitors would more likely produce 90 pound weaklings nutrionally speaking. This gave an added boost to the natural, organic food folks, who countered with solid economic gains, leaving the scientific nutritionists pointing doggedly to their Basic Four food groups charts and hoping for public enlightenment in that perennial never-never land of Food Myth.

So went 1970. Hardly anyone talked about natural childbirth, or beards.

People got elected. A few more women than usual ran for public office. A survey showed housewives today spend just as much time in housework as their grandmothers did 50 years ago, speculating that children helped less and household help was scarce.

Marin people watched "The Forsyte Saga" on Sundays and they went to Osaka for Expo '70. Prince Charles and Princess Anne visited the U.S. for the first time. Women put clogs on their feet, fed the family crunchy Granola, chose pantsuits, talked about Angela Davis, set their children down at the TV to watch "Sesame Street" to keep up with the ghetto kids it was created to teach.

More women went to work — comprising 40 per cent of the total labor force. And a greater per cent of women is expected to be working in the future as women outnumber men and barriers begin to fall in their employment.

Women scientists proved their mettle by living for 14 days in isolation from the world on the ocean floor to perform marine research under stress conditions.

SOME COLLEGES and universities offered women's studies programs for the first time, focussing on women's history, status, exploitation, and relationship in the family. Dr. Spock rewrote a chapter of his latest book because Feminists objected to it.

Indian women began to find their voice, and in San Francisco organized the National Indian Women's Action Group in October.

THE FIRST group of volunteer nature trail guides — 36 women — finished long months of special training to be able to take large groups of Bay Area children on exciting and instructive tours through the Audubon Canyon Ranch in Bolinas. Here they show youngsters the tree-top nesting places of the Great Blue Heron and Egrets.

PRINCESS MARGARET whipped up critical tongues in the already hot mini-midi skirt controversy when she wore the new midi look. Frumpy and dumpy howled some, while others declared that it surely spelled death for the midi. The British Princess and Lord Snowden marked their 10th wedding anniversary this year, despite rumors of their possible separation.

Women Have Big Newsmaking Year

PARENTS CLUB housewives met the hip culture head-on when they put on a style show of far-out creations from three San Anselmo boutiques at Hidden Valley Intermediate School. ernor's mansion in Sacramento, broken foot and all, to pay a visit to Marin when the local women's clubs hosted the Golden Gate District convention of the California Federation of Women's Clubs in April, and she proved willing to answer questions that "were non-political."

Also in April one of the big stories found its way home to Marin. Svetlana Stalin, Soviet immigrant, was married to noted architect William Wesley Peters of the Frank Lloyd Wright staff at Laliesin West. Peters is no stranger to Marin, having been here often to work on the Marin Civic Center and to visit his sister, Mrs. S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley.

AN IMPORTANT "first" for women winning responsibility in church life was the election of Mrs. A. Crawford Greene Jr. of Ross as president of the board of the Graduate Theological Seminary, a major theological seminary located in Berkeley. A Catholic, Daphne Greene was first appointed to the board a year ago by Episcopal Bishop C. Kilmer Myers, and she became president this November, one of two women in the nation heading major theological institutions. (The other is Mrs. Horace Havemeyer Jr. of New York, who is president of the Union Theological Seminary there.) Daughter of the social Dibble family of Woodside, Daphne Greene has done time in a variety of volunteer activities from den mother to women's volunteer boards while rearing her own four children. Now she has a great, new responsibility.

A LITTLE girl who grew up in Marin has gone on to become the director of the U.S. Navy WAVES. She's Robin Lindsay Quigley, (now Captain Quigley) Dominican College class of 1951. "She's probably our most successful graduate" comments Sister Marie, Dominican director of admissions. Captain Quigley gets her new job Monday.

A "name" came dropping in the mail of the Ross Hospital Volunteers in the form of a thank-you note from Patricia Nixon from the White House in response to the personalized totebag the Volunteers made for the First Lady.

ONE OF THE traditions that seems to have passed out of the Marin social scene is the formal ball. The Charity Ball is no more, after 24 years as a traditional October social event to benefit Sunny Hills. Anight of dominoes replaced it as a fund-raiser. And the Candlelight Ball, too, seems headed for extinction, as does the Marin Debutante Ball. High expense and lack of interest in formal do's are reasons given.

VOLUNTEERS trained to guide children on nature walks took to the trails at the Audubon Canyon Ranch in Bolinas to convey classes of school children from throughout the Bay Area.

Mrs. Girldine Fallon Merrill's primitive style painting, "Sunday Supper at Grandma's House," was chosen to be placed in the summer White House at San Clemente. Winifred Bridge Allen Day was celebrated in Belvedere to recognize her dedication to community betterment and civic improvement. Mrs. Allen is a 78 year resident of Golden Gate Avenue.

1970 was the year of the census, and while the community of Dillon Beach got overlooked, it did provide lots of employment for women, retired folks and young ones. Feminists complained that census forms implied that the man "head of household" in its wording.

It was also the year that golden wedding celebrations were legion in Marin. 1920 must have been a post-war boom wedding time. And 1970 marked the 10th birthday of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers, the 10th year of the Novato Newcomers Club, and the 25th year of Marin's Ballet Aquacade. It was the year that saw Mrs. Walther Buchen of Belvedere become head of the League of Women Voters of the Bay Area; the year that Mill Valley had its 70th birthday and descendents of old families and its former public officials were honored at a reception at the Outdoor Art Club. The League of Women Voters had its national golden anniversary.

It saw College of Marin student nurse Carole Graham chosen Student Nurse of the Year among nine Northern California nursing schools, while Mrs. Allen P. Lovejoy of San Rafael was named Volunteer of the Year by the Volunteer Bureau of Marin for a wide variety of activities.

THIS YEAR, saw coloratura soprano Alma Wells of Marin City become a member of the San Francisco Opera Chorus, while she continued her work as a nursing supervisor at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Terra Linda. And in women's yachting circles Martha McDougle Martin sailed under the burgee of the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere representing California in the competition in Victoria, B.C., for the Adams Cup, yachtswomen's most coveted trophy.

This year, more than in many past, women were on the move.

THE FIRST of her sex to be a commercial pilot with Scandinavian Airlines was Turi Wideroe, a 1970 newsmaker. She's one among 1,150 pilots.

RUNNING THEIR own small exchange program, the youngsters from Bel Aire School visited Chinatown in San Francisco during Chinese New Year last February as guests of Chinese children, their parents and teachers to learn about Chinese culture and customs. The Bel Aire children had invited the Chinese children to visit their class for a Thanksgiving celebration of traditional American customs last fall.

Heavy Furniture Will Give Way To Strongly Modern

CHICAGO (UPI) —Mediterranean furniture, the massive, dark, heavy and carved blend from several countries, held the spotlight of style in 1970 for the third consecutive year.

A combination of styles from Spain, Portugal, Italy, France, Mexico, Brazil, Peru and other countries, Mediterranean dominated the furniture market from the time of its inception.

It entered fashion on the heels of Spanish furniture, which was even more massive and even darker.

Next, furniture makers say, modern will be the style.

Chicago's Furniture Mart, the furniture store for furniture stores, says the trend for the year ahead is "very strongly modern."

"It's been heavily Mediterranean for so many years" that the change won't show in the stores immediately, the spokesman said. Stores are still well-stocked with Mediterranean and will sell out their stocks before modern hits the display rooms.

Modern design actually dates to the 1920s when the Bauhaus school began to design furniture that is now considered classic.

Appearance range from chunky and square to the nebulous.

It's the cube and tables. The bean-bag sofa and chair. "Self-shaping" occasional chairs. Some look like back-breakers but are, in fact, designed with the help of orthopedists for both comfort and health.

Early American and French Provincial, fashions which predate Mediterranean in their current favor, will continue to be popular, according to the Mart.

Both frequently are mixed with antiques. Or their owners hope they will "pass" for antiques.

French Provincial, in particular, is used for accent. It provides a bright touch in rooms which have a great deal of Mediterranean or modern furniture.

Velvets remained the strong fabric in 1970 and they probably will continue as strong in 1971, the Mart said. Floral prints also are holding on in popularity.

Synthetics and vinyls —with their easy adaptation to Mediterranean as well as modern —remain well-used and well-liked covers.

But fake furs may have had a one-year stand. Their use in 1971 is in doubt, the Mart said.

A resolution we love to keep

Our resolution for the New Year is all for you . . . for we resolve to make fashion do for you what fashion should. To wit: show that nice clothes are nicest when they radiate your personal "you-ness" . . . when style, color and fit join happily to create individuality. This is why we are terribly choosy about selecting our new dresses, suits, coats, sweaters, all our outer – and under-things. We don't want you looking like someone else! Even our handbags, hats and gloves bear that little difference which makes you different – and delightful. You'll see our "resolution" in the new Spring fashions, fresh as April on the bough. Do come in and let us show you the Happy New Year of fashion!

Modern Eve

A CHRISTMAS DAY walk through the town inspired the song "Mill Valley" and Rita Abrams wrote it that evening, little guessing that it would be recorded and hit the national pop music charts. Here she records it with her kindergarten class at Strawberry Point School, but the sound was not quite right. The hit record features teacher Abrams and Strawberry Point third graders, recorded in a San Francisco studio. After her fame she found herself blamed for the influx of hippies and others to Mill Valley, but, as she points out, that was going on long before her song publicized the city.

THE SUPER STAR of rock — Janis Joplin — is gone, found dead at 27 in a Hollywood motel where she was staying during a recording session. Janis chose the Baltimore Canyon area in Larkspur to build her redwood and glass dream house and live the free life. Earthy, sometimes shy, she found in singing "a supreme emotional and physical experience," and fans who had seen her sing "Ball and Chain" believed it when she said, "It's my song."

Women Have Themselves Big Year

By BARBARA HOSMER

"Don't iron while the strike is hot!"

Slogans of the New Feminism reverberated throughout the nation during this first year of the new decade, and the women's liberation movement put on a nationwide strike of women on the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage.

American women marched, picketed and held teach-ins across the country and hardly a household was unaware that women were on the move in a renewed bid for equality and freedom. Terms such as "sex object" and "male Chauvinist" and "sexism" became part of the new language of the seventies.

Betty Friedan, founder of NOW and author the "The Feminine Mystique," announced she'd run for President in '72 if no sympathetic candidate is in sight by then, and two women were elected Congress this year. One, Bella Abzug of New York City's West Side, campaigned on an equality-and-child-care-for-all platform.

The Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution looked like a possibility and then went down to virtual defeat in the Senate at the last minute, though women's rights champions hope to resuscitate it next year.

But in California women scored a victory when AB 22 was passed and became law last month, outlawing discrimination on the basis of sex by any employer of five or more persons. In line with this, the Marin Chapter of the National Organization for Women leveled the charge of discrimination against women in employment practices of the County of Marin, finding a wide discrepancy in average male and female salaries among county employees and in many departments no women at all in the more responsible, well-paid jobs. The NOW chapter vowed to file a complaint with the state Fair Employment Practices Commission urging an investigation of Marin's largest employer.

PICKETING THROUGH the Civic Center on Women's Strike Day was the second time during the year that Marin NOW Chapter took to the streets in the cause of women's rights. In mid-June they turned out with signs to picket and leaflet the Harbor Shopping Center in behalf of a woman barber.

Also rapidly forming in small discussion groups were women's liberationists who met in Southern Marin living rooms. In a short time the new Feminist movement got itself together in Marin and promises much more for 1971.

Meantime, across the country small gains and a few larger ones were made by women, thanks in large part to the new movement for women's rights. In fact, a rash of token gains such as were made in the 1960s by the black movement may become fashionable, but the women vow they won't be satisfied until full equality for all is achieved. All-male professional organizations have been under attack throughout the year by women and barriers are beginning to come down. Demands for child care and job equality were uniting points for the Aug. 26 nationwide rallies.

And just Monday a federal judge ruled that California's weight-lifting limit for women on the job is invalid because it and other sections of the state protective laws for women contradict federal laws prohibiting job discrimination against women.

OTHER RALLYING points for women in general this year were consumer interests, spurred by rising food prices and living costs in a slack economy, and the revolt against the midi-maxi hemline, noisy in some cities and tacit throughout the country. Just as they had cried out against the mini a few years ago, they cried out in its behalf in 1970.

And while it had nothing to do with liberation, the younger generation adipted the sans-bra style for comfort and continued light on the cosmetics.

"The Pill" came in for a hard rap for its possible dangerous side effects in some scientific studies and many women became leery of what they once had been told was their liberation from fear of unwanted pregnancy. Locally Marin Planned Parenthood Agency found four times as many women seeking its assistance in the first quarter of the year, after the Senate subcommittee hearings created a pill scare.

However, as the year finished millions of women remained on the pill, which marked its 10th birthday, incidentally.

POPULATION AND pollution were key issues brought before the public this year, and "ecology" became a household word and "bio-degradable" joined the laundry soap lexicon. Phosphates were out, re-cycling was in. Nader and his Raiders were more popular than John Lennon, and they pointed out that big industry was far more to blame for U.S. pollution than the American housewife's soapsuds.

There was a big flap among the breakfast food folks when the government hearings revealed that the Breakfast of Champions and many of its competitors would more likely produce 90 pound weaklings nutrionally speaking. This gave an added boost to the natural, organic food folks, who countered with solid economic gains, leaving the scientific nutritionists pointing doggedly to their Basic Four food groups charts and hoping for public enlightenment in that perennial never-never land of Food Myth.

So went 1970. Hardly anyone talked about natural childbirth, or beards.

People got elected. A few more women than usual ran for public office. A survey showed housewives today spend just as much time in housework as their grandmothers did 50 years ago, speculating that children helped less and household help was scarce.

Marin people watched "The Forsyte Saga" on Sundays and they went to Osaka for Expo '70. Prince Charles and Princess Anne visited the U.S. for the first time. Women put clogs on their feet, fed the family crunchy Granola, chose pantsuits, talked about Angela Davis, set their children down at the TV to watch "Sesame Street" to keep up with the ghetto kids it was created to teach.

More women went to work — comprising 40 per cent of the total labor force. And a greater per cent of women is expected to be working in the future as women outnumber men and barriers begin to fall in their employment.

Women scientists proved their mettle by living for 14 days in isolation from the world on the ocean floor to perform marine research under stress conditions.

SOME COLLEGES and universities offered women's studies programs for the first time, focussing on women's history, status, exploitation, and relationship in the family. Dr. Spock rewrote a chapter of his latest book because Feminists objected to it.

Indian women began to find their voice, and in San Francisco organized the National Indian Women's Action Group in October.

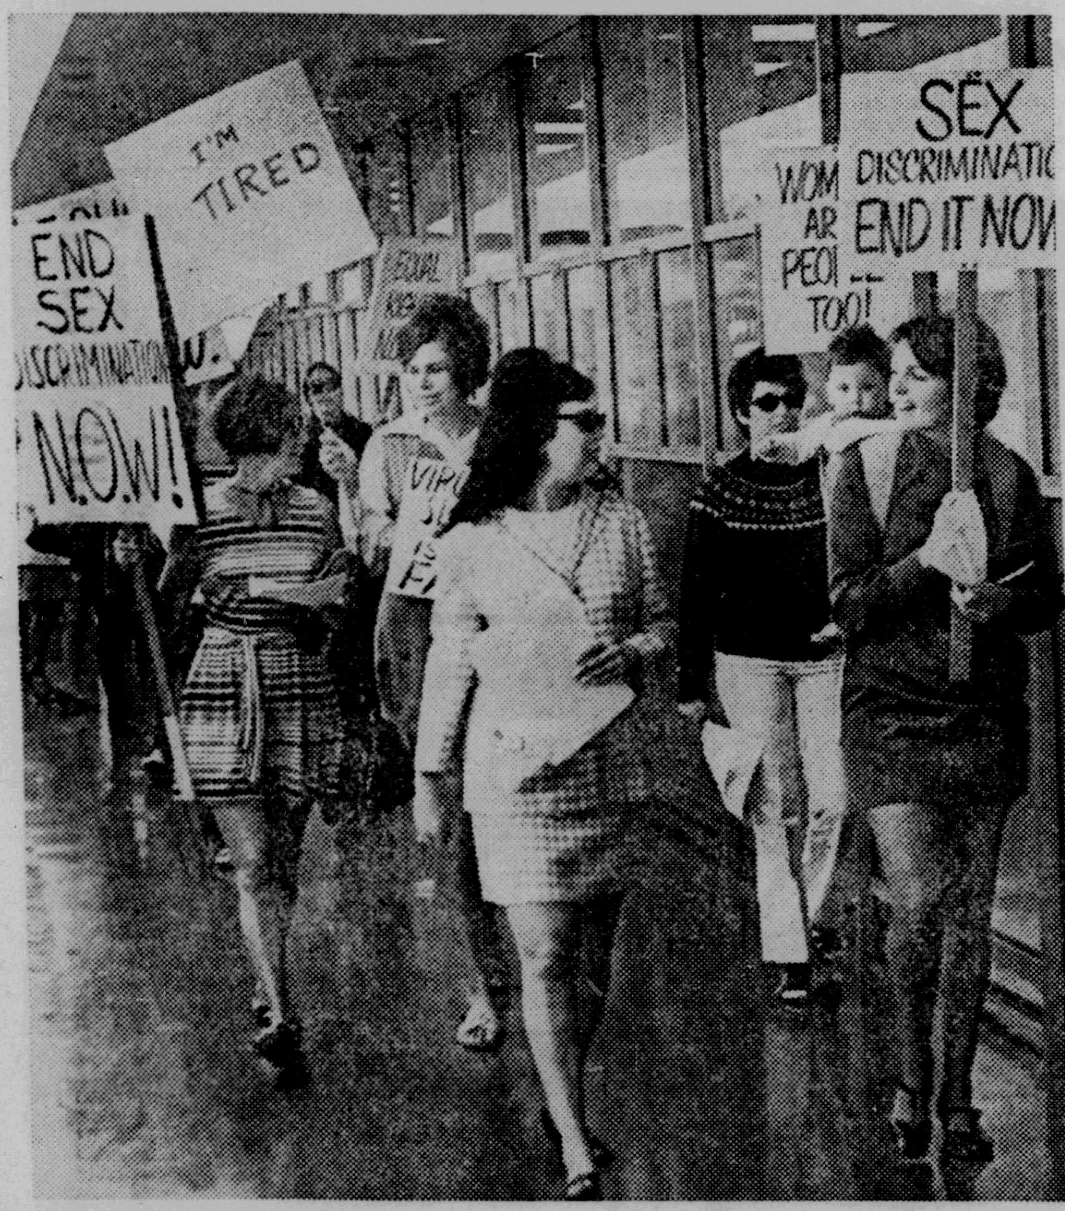
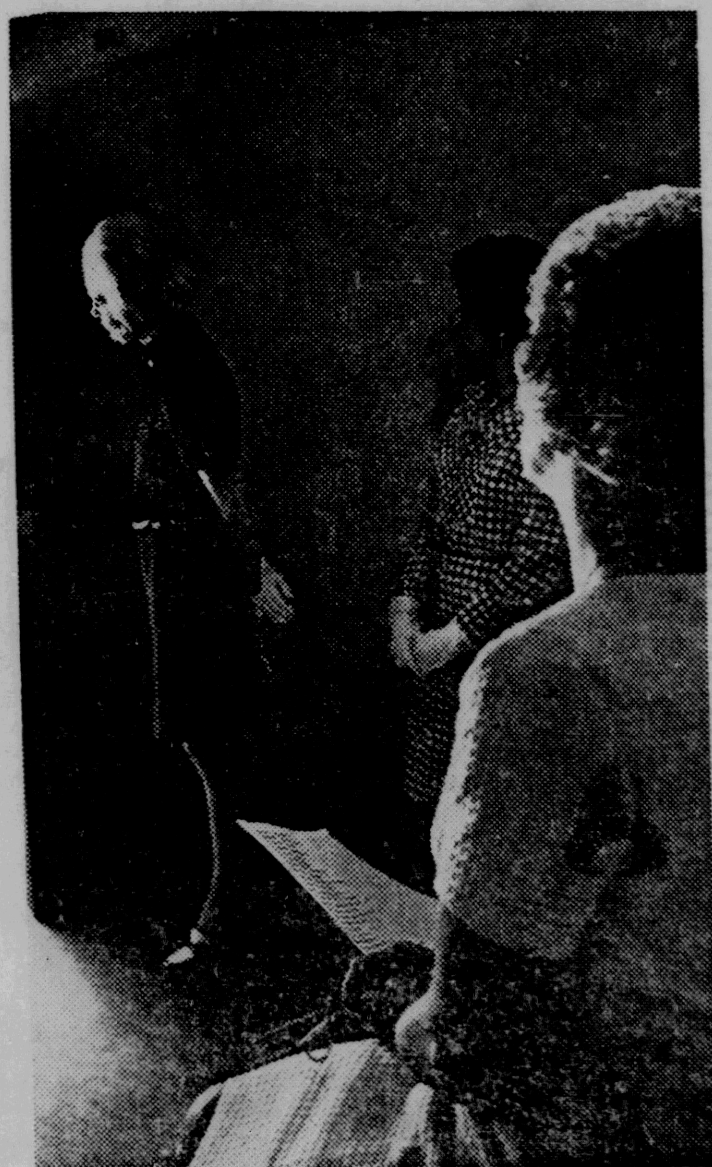
MOUTHY MARTHA Mitchell grabbed headlines all year with her straight-from-the-shoulder opinions on nearly everything, often made through late night phone calls to the press in Washington, D.C. The wife of the U.S. attorney general added much-needed color to the Washington scene, whatever her views.



THE WOMEN'S STRIKE for equality Aug. 26 was carried home to Marin when the Marin Chapter of the National Organization for Women assisted by other women's liberation supporters picketed the Marin Civic Center and passed out leaflets charging the county with sex discrimination in hiring and promotion of its employees.

THE FIRST group of volunteer nature trail guides — 36 women — finished long months of special training to be able to take large groups of Bay Area children on exciting and instructive tours through the Audubon Canyon Ranch in Bolinas. Here they show youngsters the tree-top nesting places of the Great Blue Heron and Egrets.

PRINCESS MARGARET whipped up critical tongues in the already hot mini-midi skirt controversy when she wore the new midi look. Frumpy and dumpy howled some, while others declared that it surely spelled death for the midi. The British Princess and Lord Snowden marked their 10th wedding anniversary this year, despite rumors of their possible separation.



THE BACKSTAGE mood of many a fashion show is captured here in a peek behind the scenes at one of the popular Northgate fashion luncheons at the Marin Art and Garden Center. Along with this summer series, fashion shows maintained their popularity as fund-raisers for Marin organizations this year.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Fly Now And Live A Little Decide About Marriage Later

DEAR HELEN:

I'm the luckiest girl in the world and the most miserable. You see, I love two boys equally as well. Both want to marry me, and —this sounds crazy, Helen, but I could be happy all the rest of my life with either one of them!

John is in the service and won't be home for a year. Dave is here, has a good job and says I have to make up my mind or he won't be around much longer. John gave me his ring. Dave wants me to send it back.

They're both wonderful guys. But here's another complication: I want to be an airline stewardess and live a little before I settle down. I've already passed my preliminary test and have a good chance.

What shall I do, toss a three-sided coin?

PUSHED, PULLED AND UNPERSUADED

DEAR P.P. AND U.:

Fly now, decide later, say I. . .And if you don't like my advice, well — you're that much closer to a decision, right? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You gave girls a list of "poor risk" qualities to watch out for in males. How about doing the same for guys? — DEKE

DEKE

We-l-l-l, maybe you should think twice about marriage if she —

1. Has nothing, but nothing, good to say about her family.
2. Orders the most expensive dinner on the menu and then leaves half of it.
3. On a picnic, won't go swimming because she might ruin her hair-do or makeup.
4. Makes fun of your friends.
5. Thinks all your former girl friends are creeps.
6. Wants things her way or not at all.
7. Figures she can win any argument with a tear.
8. Considers herself a sex symbol.
9. Can't understand your jokes.
10. Is catty about her girl friends.
11. Bores you (when you switch to conversation).
12. Doesn't know what's happening in the world and cares less.
13. Puts you down, or finds constant fault.
14. Can't talk intelligently about anything but clothes or herself.
15. Would be lost without a mirror.
16. Thinks your time is her time — every minute of it.
17. Hates sports (if you like them) or loves sports (if you dislike them).
18. At a party, either sticks to you like glue, or disappears completely.
19. Goes for "high" society — either kind.
20. Drinks too much.

If she qualifies on more than five of these points — you're taking a big chance. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In our paper, the APO number of the American Division (which wants mail) was evidently wrong, as my letter was returned. Could you give the address again? — DIANE

DEAR DIANE:

Letters to servicemen can be sent to AMERICA DIVISION, B Btry., 3d Bn., 16th Arty, APO San Francisco, 96374. Also to Vietnam Mail Call, Box 3104-A, Columbus, Georgia. — H.

Proper Flame

When a range is adjusted properly, gas burns with a clear, blue flame and a sharply defined inner cone. There should be no traces of yellow in the gas flame. If there are, the American Gas Association suggests you try cleaning the burner. If the yellow persists, call your service representative or local utility company.

ON BEING BLACK

In 1971 Remember That 'Rain Doesn't Fall On One Roof Alone'

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

Like you, I somehow managed to survive 1970 — a year filled with pollution and antipollution, Women's Lib, black mobility and black immobility, honesty and dishonesty, deprivation and plenty, success and failure.

Another year and another chance is again before us. As a woman, a wife, a mother, a sister, a friend, an enemy, a neighbor, a consumer and a columnist, for 1971, I resolve:

To be calm (not have a nervous breakdown) as I watch my 7-year-old daughter, Kendall, disappear around the corner every morning on her way to school. She will go around many corners in her lifetime — alone.

TO PAY special attention to such details as the difference between an umpire and a referee.

To be patient with those who still do not understand the significance of the word black as opposed to colored and Negro. To "keep the faith" and realize that some good resulted from the contemporary black blitz and that it was not simply a case of water running off a duck's back.

To meet copy deadlines.

To listen attentively and even reflect as 4-year-old Gillian comes out with such question-statements as: "Did you know that porcupines pork you? And that Doberman pinschers pinch you? And that bees live on 'B' street in Hayward?"

TO BE alert when Coach Haggerty makes reference to the team — not to ask how many touchdowns the basketball team made.

To view letters without return addresses with a little less suspicion. Not only hate mail is unsigned.

To stop robbing my brother of column ideas (except in cases of urgency). Can I help it if he always seems to have a good idea?

To note that my next-door neighbor is probably not moving at 3 o'clock in the morning — only his television and stereo set are.

To not be surprised when my 7-year-old answers my idle question "How did I get a kid like you?" with the calm statement, "You know — sex."

TO ASK, from the get-go, whom I'm speaking with when attempting to attend to some business via the telephone. Dealing with an anonymous voice can accomplish just about nothing.

To rejoin my family and relatives via cards and letters.

To get myself organized. An African proverb states that, "Preparation does not spoil the journey." So far, I wouldn't know.

To give obviously racist sales people and public servants every opportunity to "do their job" before demanding to see the manager or owner.

To try to temper (at least) my unequivocal love for Muhammad Ali and Oscar Brown Jr. (Ah, joy.) After all, they are both married to lovely black women. Not only that, I've yet to meet either of them.

TO CONTINUE to strive to stand with those adults who view all children as their children and all people as their people, for (another African proverb), "Rain does not fall on one roof alone."

To accomplish at least one recognizable task, be it a mental resolvement or a physical undertaking, each day.

To realize that my daughter is growing up when she shrugs her shoulders and says matter-of-factly, "I don't know how the other kids do it, but this is the way I'm going to do mine."

My list, could go on and on, but if I at least scratch the surface of my resolutions, 1971 has a chance of being a good year.

Anti-War Youth Wins Court Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has ruled that the University of Arizona cannot prohibit Ashton Jones from passing out anti-war pamphlets on the campus.

The appellate court reversed a district court decision that said the university was within its rights to prohibit the handing out of all material on the part of the Tucson campus that is open to the public.

In November of 1965 Jones wore onto the campus a sandwich sign saying "Help Spot Viet Nam War Now. For Peace and Freedom." He also handed out literature critical of the war.

Two bystanders tore the signs from his back and campus police received telephone calls saying that if police did not remove Jones from the campus, the callers would. The next day when Jones returned to the campus, he was twice removed by campus police.

SUES UNIVERSITY

Jones then instituted suit on grounds his civil rights were violated and asked an injunction to keep the University of Arizona Board of Regents from interfering with his freedom of speech on the public part of the Tucson campus.

In overturning the district court decision in favor of the regents, the circuit court said that "once a state has made public property generally available to the public, it may not arbitrarily restrict the freedom of individuals, lawfully on that property, to exercise their first amendment rights."

"The challenged regulation completely prohibits the distribution of any handbills, at any time, in places open to the public generally," the appeals court said. "Such a blanket prohibition is clearly unrelated to any valid regulatory purpose..."

COURT REJECTS

The court rejected the contention that such a prohibition was justified since two members of the crowd tore the signs from Jones' back.

"It is clear to us that the police had the obligation of affording (Jones) the same protection they would have surely provided an innocent individual threatened,for example, by a hoodlum on the streets.

"A politically motivaged assault is no less illegal than assaults inspired by personal vengeance or by any other unlawful motive," the court said.

The court ordered the district court to issue an injunction "permanently restraining the Board of Regents of the University and State Colleges of Arizona from interfering with Jones' right to speak and to distribute handbills on areas of the Tucson campus which are open to the public generally."

Outside Help For Cities Ruled In

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch ruled yesterday that police and firemen from other areas can be called in to a city where there is a strike involving local police or firemen.

The opinion, written by deputy William M. Goode at the request of Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan of South San Francisco, said such aid is not prohibited when it is required to meet serious threats to public life, health or property.

The opinion said since public employes do not have the legal right to strike, such a strike would not be a labor controversy under the meaning of the California Disaster Act or the California Emergency Service Act.

Army Leads I-J Astray On Soldier

The adjutant general at the Army discharging station, Fort Hamilton, N.Y., told the I-J that Sharpe left his post in Milan, Italy, on Dec. 18 although his orders clearly stated he was not to leave until on or after Dec. 29.

However, a copy of Sharpe's orders supplied to the Independent-Journal clearly indicates he was to report on Dec. 18 at 11 a.m. to an airline ticket office in Milan for transfer to Fort Hamilton.

The adjutant general, who had declined to release his name, said Sharpe had wrapped up his duties early and usurped rules by leaving early.

However, Sharpe did precisely as his orders indicated and was released Dec. 23. The adjutant said the post commander was concerned about the plight of Sharpe and others who would have had to spend Christmas at the post and so released them without urging from anybody.

However, Sharpe's orders also bear a note that the discharge was in compliance with a phone conversation and he was called in for discharge after normal discharging hours.

Driver Injured When Car Flips

A Corte Madera woman was injured Tuesday at 11:20 a.m. in a single-car accident on the Golden Gate Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Jupiter Katahira, 21, of 1 Palm Avenue, was treated at Park Emergency Hospital in San Francisco for scrapes and bruises.

Officers said her car, southbound on the bridge near mid-span, rammed the west railing and overturned.

Probation Report In Drug Arrest

The case of Timothy Patrick Yarish, 20, of Fairfax, has been referred to the probation department to see if he is acceptable to Marin Juvenile Court.

Yarish was arrested Dec. 10 in a drug raid on a Santa Venetia house and accused of a misdemeanor count of being in a place where drugs are used.

STRANGERS ASK

How's Barry Now? Winning His Fight

People haven't forgotten Barry Hollingworth.

Friends and strangers alike have created a special place in their hearts for the 9-year-old San Anselmo boy who has been fighting — and winning — a battle for life since August.

According to his mother, Patricia, Barry was given little chance by his doctors of surviving a severe head injury sustained when his bicycle malfunctioned and crashed. The boy, thrown from the bike, struck his head on a utility pole guy wire.

Since then, Barry has had three brain operations and today lies in a semicoma in Center Medical Hospital, Kentfield. However, his condition is improving, his mother said yesterday.

He still doesn't recognize his family, she said, but is responding to therapy treatment.

Mrs. Hollingworth, who has four other children ranging in age from 18 to 7, said the response from friends and strangers has been overwhelming.

"I don't know how to thank people whose names I don't even know," she said. Her son has received many anonymous gifts, she said.

They range from a television donated by a San Francisco dealer to cards and notes dropped by at her home.

Mrs. Hollingworth also had special praise for two of Barry's teachers at Isabel Cook School, Jeanne Wilson and Barbara Romaneck, who have repeatedly visited him and brought gifts, and Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, who was confined to Marin General's intensive care unit with the boy while recuperating from gunshot wounds suffered in the August Hall of Justice shootout.

Barry was transferred to Center Medical a month ago.

She said the Parent-Teacher Association has set up a special fund for Barry.

"It's nice to know people really do concern themselves with people they don't know," she said. "There are just so many," Mrs. Hollingworth said.

FAMILY

"Aristocats" — Very clever, delightful musical animated feature in the best Disney tradition about a high society cat who inherits a fortune and the villainous butler and his plans.

"Boy Named Charlie Brown" — Delightful story of Peanuts, the comic strip character enhanced by outstanding music and unusual creative animation.

"Cockeyed Cowboys of Calico County" — Amusing comedy about a "mail-order-bride-- who fails to arrive and the clever hoax devised by the cowboys to make a happy ending.

"Scrooge" — Modern musical interpretation of Dicken's "A Christmas Carol". Even sophisticated viewers who know the story backwards will find this sumptuous British production in bright new wrappings with inspired talent and wit, clever songs and dance numbers a delight.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Tristana" — A slow moving study of the cynical development of a 16-year-old orphan who becomes the mistress of the man who pretends to be her protector. English subtitles.

"Monte Walsh" — That time in history when Eastern progress came rolling over the old West. Work for the cowboy disappears and hungry men turn to violence. It is s serio-comic study of two cowboys in this situation.

"Patton" — Excellent characterization by George C. Scott who portrays an indomitable spirit that could achieve its destiny only in wartime. A strong film makes use of violence and frequent profanity.

"Rio Lobo" — A typical John Wayne vehicle, the story of an ex-Union Colonel out to uncover men under him who informed of Union activities to Rebel soldiers, causing several of his troops to be killed. Plenty of beatem-up, shoot-em down violence. (Motion Picture Daily).

"Sterile Cuckoo" — A charming tragic comedy about a lonely college girl and her first love affair and its pains and pleasures. Very well acted.

"Tell Me That You Love Me Junie Moon" — Three People with crippling defects meet as patients in a hospital and decide to share a house when released and attempt to adjust to the world. Well acted.

"Love Is a Funny Thing" — A slowly paced, sophisticated tale of a French actress and a musician, who fall in love, while away from their respective mates and families, during the making of a motion picture in America. English subtitles.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Catch 22" — Unusually biting antiwar film that graphically depicts the immorality and unreason war breeds. Grotesque details, bizarre, morbid and gruesome sequences show, in a series of flashback and flashforwards that adds to the confusion.

"Getting Straight" — Cynical though provoking melodrama presents a cogent satiric view of the Establishment and the radicals on college campus. Violence, explicit sex and foul language is abundant.

"Little Fauss and Big Halsy" — Contemporary motorcycle drama. Fast pace covers shallow content. Lots of nude girls, a Johnny Cash soundtrack and a predictable ending.

"Loving" — The quiet desperation of suburban life is artfully explored in this bitter contemporary drama. Well acted by excellent cast. Language and sex scenes extremely frank.

"WUSA" — Contrived melodrama about an unprincipled alcoholic who worked for a rightwing radio station. His conflict with a leftwing welfare worker presents blatant exploitations of serious problems but film does not make a responsible statement when it could.

ADULTS ONLY

"Diary Of A Mad Housewife" — Acidly funny look at the disintegration of a modern marriage. Good comedy with sex and dialogue that is very frank.

"Five Easy Pieces" — A compassionate and uncomprimising story of a man's restless search for roots with no resolution. Acting direction and photography very good. Explicit sex and frank dialogue.

"There's A Girl In My Soup" — A shallow little sex farce about a 40-ish Lothario, a hyper sexed television gourmet, galloping from kitchen to bedroom and his well perfected but corny technique to conquer any female he meets. (Motion Picture Daily)

Production Rise Tied To Inflation

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 4.43 per cent increase in production of goods and services in California during 1970 was due entirely to inflation, the Bank of California reported today in a year-end report.

In fact, since inflation averaged about 5 per cent for the year, the state's real output declined about one-half of a per cent, the bank said.

Economists said the state's total output reached $110.87 billion by the end of the year and its per capita gross state product was $5,554, nearly 16 per cent above the national average.

Personal income outstripped inflation by about 1.5 per cent, advancing 6.4 per cent to $88.76 billion.

The bank predicted an increase of 6.6 per cent in the gross state product during 1971, outstripping a 4 to 4.5 per cent inflationary increase and providing a return to real growth. Personal income is projected to climb 7.2 per cent to $95.2 billion.

Man Bound Over On Burglary Charge

Jon Theodore Kilpatrick, 26, of Fairfax, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a burglary charge. He is to be arraigned Monday.

Kilpatrick was arrested early Dec. 18 inside a San Anselmo variety store.

Nixon Signs Bill On Barge Bulk

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon signed into law Tuesday a bill which suspends for three years an Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) ruling affecting commodities carried by barges on most inland waters.

The ICC ruling provided that if barge operators carry unregulated bulk commodities in the same tow with regulated commodities, all are subject to regulation. The ruling had been upheld by the Supreme Court in 1967.

The law permits barge operators to carry unregulated bulk commodities with regulated commodities in the same tow without the ICC restriction, provided no more than three commodities are carried together.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Fly Now And Live A Little Decide About Marriage Later

DEAR HELEN:
I'm the luckiest girl in the world and the most miserable. You see, I love two boys equally as well. Both want to marry me, and —this sounds crazy, Helen, but I could be happy all the rest of my life with either one of them!

John is in the service and won't be home for a year. Dave is here, has a good job and says I have to make up my mind or he won't be around much longer. John gave me his ring. Dave wants me to send it back.

They're both wonderful guys. But here's another complication: I want to be an airline stewardess and live a little before I settle down. I've already passed my preliminary test and have a good chance.

What shall I do, toss a three-sided coin?
PUSHED, PULLED AND UNPERSUADED

DEAR P.P. AND U.:
Fly now, decide later, say I. . .And if you don't like my advice, well — you're that much closer to a decision, right? — H.

DEAR HELEN:
You gave girls a list of "poor risk" qualities to watch out for in males. How about doing the same for guys? — DEKE

DEKE

We-l-l-l, maybe you should think twice about marriage if she —

1. Has nothing, but nothing, good to say about her family.
2. Orders the most expensive dinner on the menu and then leaves half of it.
3. On a picnic, won't go swimming because she might ruin her hair-do or makeup.
4. Makes fun of your friends.
5. Thinks all your former girl friends are creeps.
6. Wants things her way or not at all.
7. Figures she can win any argument with a tear.
8. Considers herself a sex symbol.
9. Can't understand your jokes.
10. Is catty about her girl friends.
11. Bores you (when you switch to conversation).
12. Doesn't know what's happening in the world and cares less.
13. Puts you down, or finds constant fault.
14. Can't talk intelligently about anything but clothes or herself.
15. Would be lost without a mirror.
16. Thinks your time is her time — every minute of it.
17. Hates sports (if you like them) or loves sports (if you dislike them).
18. At a party, either sticks to you like glue, or disappears completely.
19. Goes for "high" society — either kind.
20. Drinks too much.

If she qualifies on more than five of these points — you're taking a big chance. — H.

DEAR HELEN:
In our paper, the APO number of the American Division (which wants mail) was evidently wrong, as my letter was returned. Could you give the address again? — DIANE

DEAR DIANE:
Letters to servicemen can be sent to AMERICA DIVISION, B Btry., 3d Bn., 16th Arty, APO San Francisco, 96374. Also to Vietnam Mail Call, Box 3104-A, Columbus, Georgia. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

ON BEING BLACK

In 1971 Remember That 'Rain Doesn't Fall On One Roof Alone'

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

Like you, I somehow managed to survive 1970 — a year filled with pollution and antipollution, Women's Lib, black mobility and black immobility, honesty and dishonesty, deprivation and plenty, success and failure.

Another year and another chance is again before us. As a woman, a wife, a mother, a sister, a friend, an enemy, a neighbor, a consumer and a columnist, for 1971, I resolve:

To be calm (not have a nervous breakdown) as I watch my 7-year-old daughter, Kendall, disappear around the corner every morning on her way to school. She will go around many corners in her lifetime — alone.

TO PAY special attention to such details as the difference between an umpire and a referee.

To be patient with those who still do not understand the significance of the word black as opposed to colored and Negro. To "keep the faith" and realize that some good resulted from the contemporary black blitz and that it was not simply a case of water running off a duck's back.

To meet copy deadlines.

To listen attentively and even reflect as 4-year-old Gillian comes out with such question-statements as: "Did you know that porcupines pork you? And that Doberman pinschers pinch you? And that bees live on 'B' street in Hayward?"

TO BE alert when Coach Haggerty makes reference to the team — not to ask how many touchdowns the basketball team made.

To view letters without return addresses with a little less suspicion. Not only hate mail is unsigned.

To stop robbing my brother of column ideas (except in cases of urgency). Can I help it if he always seems to have a good idea?

To note that my next-door neighbor is probably not moving at 3 o'clock in the morning — only his television and stereo set are.

To not be surprised when my 7-year-old answers my idle question "How did I get a kid like you?" with the calm statement, "You know — sex."

TO ASK, from the get-go, whom I'm speaking with when attempting to attend to some business via the telephone. Dealing with an anonymous voice can accomplish just about nothing.

To rejoin my family and relatives via cards and letters.

To get myself organized. An African proverb states that, "Preparation does not spoil the journey." So far, I wouldn't know.

To give obviously racist sales people and public servants every opportunity to "do their job" before demanding to see the manager or owner.

To try to temper (at least) my unequivocal love for Muhammad Ali and Oscar Brown Jr. (Ah, joy.) After all, they are both married to lovely black women. Not only that, I've yet to meet either of them.

TO CONTINUE to strive to stand with those adults who view all children as their children and all people as their people, for (another African proverb), "Rain does not fall on one roof alone."

To accomplish at least one recognizable task, be it a mental resolvement or a physical undertaking, each day.

To realize that my daughter is growing up when she shrugs her shoulders and says matter-of-factly, "I don't know how the other kids do it, but this is the way I'm going to do mine."

My list, could go on and on, but if I at least scratch the surface of my resolutions, 1971 has a chance of being a good year.

Proper Flame

When a range is adjusted properly, gas burns with a clear, blue flame and a sharply defined inner cone. There should be no traces of yellow in the gas flame. If there are, the American Gas Association suggests you try cleaning the burner. If the yellow persists, call your service representative or local utility company.

Women Have Big Newsmaking Year

ernor's mansion in Sacramento, broken foot and all, to pay a visit to Marin when the local women's clubs hosted the Golden Gate District convention of the California Federation of Women's Clubs in April, and she proved willing to answer questions that "were non-political."

Also in April one of the big stories found its way home to Marin. Svetlana Stalin, Soviet immigrant, was married to noted architect William Wesley Peters of the Frank Lloyd Wright staff at Laliesin West. Peters is no stranger to Marin, having been here often to work on the Marin Civic Center and to visit his sister, Mrs. S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley.

AN IMPORTANT "first" for women winning responsibility in church life was the election of Mrs. A. Crawford Greene Jr. of Ross as president of the board of the Graduate Theological Seminary, a major theological seminary located in Berkeley. A Catholic, Daphne Greene was first appointed to the board a year ago by Episcopal Bishop C. Kilmer Myers, and she became president this November, one of two women in the nation heading major theological institutions. (The other is Mrs. Horace Havemeyer Jr. of New York, who is president of the Union Theological Seminary there.) Daughter of the social Dibble family of Woodside, Daphne Greene has done time in a variety of volunteer activities from den mother to women's volunteer boards while rearing her own four children. Now she has a great, new responsibility.

A LITTLE girl who grew up in Marin has gone on to become the director of the U.S. Navy WAVES. She's Robin Lindsay Quigley, (now Captain Quigley) Dominican College class of 1951. "She's probably our most successful graduate" comments Sister Marie, Dominican director of admissions. Captain Quigley gets her new job Monday.

A "name" came dropping in the mail of the Ross Hospital Volunteers in the form of a thank-you note from Patricia Nixon from the White House in response to the personalized totebag the Volunteers made for the First Lady.

ONE OF THE traditions that seems to have passed out of the Marin social scene is the formal ball. The Charity Ball is no more, after 24 years as a traditional October social event to benefit Sunny Hills. Anight of dominoes replaced it as a fund-raiser. And the Candlelight Ball, too, seems headed for extinction, as does the Marin Debutante Ball. High expense and lack of interest in formal do's are reasons given.

VOLUNTEERS trained to guide children on nature walks took to the trails at the Audubon Canyon Ranch in Bolinas to convey classes of school children from throughout the Bay Area.

Mrs. Girldine Fallon Merrill's primitive style painting, "Sunday Supper at Grandma's House," was chosen to be placed in the summer White House at San Clemente. Winifred Bridge Allen Day was celebrated in Belvedere to recognize her dedication to community betterment and civic improvement. Mrs. Allen is a 78 year resident of Golden Gate Avenue.

1970 was the year of the census, and while the community of Dillon Beach got overlooked, it did provide lots of employment for women, retired folks and young ones. Feminists complained that census forms implied that the man "head of household" in its wording.

It was also the year that golden wedding celebrations were legion in Marin. 1920 must have been a post-war boom wedding time. And 1970 marked the 10th birthday of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers, the 10th year of the Novato Newcomers Club, and the 25th year of Marin's Ballet Aquacade. It was the year that saw Mrs. Walther Buchen of Belvedere become head of the League of Women Voters of the Bay Area; the year that Mill Valley had its 70th birthday and descendents of old families and its former public officials were honored at a reception at the Outdoor Art Club. The League of Women Voters had its national golden anniversary.

It saw College of Marin student nurse Carole Graham chosen Student Nurse of the Year among nine Northern California nursing schools, while Mrs. Allen P. Lovejoy of San Rafael was named Volunteer of the Year by the Volunteer Bureau of Marin for a wide variety of activities.

THIS YEAR, saw coloratura soprano Alma Wells of Marin City become a member of the San Francisco Opera Chorus, while she continued her work as a nursing supervisor at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Terra Linda. And in women's yachting circles Martha McDougle Martin sailed under the burgee of the San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere representing California in the competition in Victoria, B.C., for the Adams Cup, yachtswomen's most coveted trophy.

This year, more than in many past, women were on the move.

THE FIRST of her sex to be a commercial pilot with Scandinavian Airlines was Turi Wideroe, a 1970 newsmaker. She's one among 1,150 pilots.

RUNNING THEIR own small exchange program, the youngsters from Bel Aire School visited Chinatown in San Francisco during Chinese New Year last February as guests of Chinese children, their parents and teachers to learn about Chinese culture and customs. The Bel Aire children had invited the Chinese children to visit their class for a Thanksgiving celebration of traditional American customs last fall.

Heavy Furniture Will Give Way To Strongly Modern

CHICAGO (UPI) —Mediterranean furniture, the massive, dark, heavy and carved blend from several countries, held the spotlight of style in 1970 for the third consecutive year.

A combination of styles from Spain, Portugal, Italy, France, Mexico, Brazil, Peru and other countries, Mediterranean dominated the furniture market from the time of its inception.

It entered fashion on the heels of Spanish furniture, which was even more massive and even darker.

Next, furniture makers say, modern will be the style.

Chicago's Furniture Mart, the furniture store for furniture stores, says the trend for the year ahead is "very strongly modern."

"It's been heavily Mediterranean for so many years" that the change won't show in the stores immediately, the spokesman said. Stores are still well-stocked with Mediterranean and will sell out their stocks before modern hits the display rooms.

Modern design actually dates to the 1920s when the Bauhaus school began to design furniture that is now considered classic.

Appearance range from chunky and square to the nebulous.

It's the cube and tables. The bean-bag sofa and chair. "Self-shaping" occasional chairs. Some look like back-breakers but are, in fact, designed with the help of orthopedists for both comfort and health.

Early American and French Provincial, fashions which predate Mediterranean in their current favor, will continue to be popular, according to the Mart.

Both frequently are mixed with antiques. Or their owners hope they will "pass" for antiques.

French Provincial, in particular, is used for accent. It provides a bright touch in rooms which have a great deal of Mediterranean or modern furniture.

Velvets remained the strong fabric in 1970 and they probably will continue as strong in 1971, the Mart said. Floral prints also are holding on in popularity.

Synthetics and vinyls —with their easy adaptation to Mediterranean as well as modern —remain well-used and well-liked covers.

But fake furs may have had a one-year stand. Their use in 1971 is in doubt, the Mart said.

Anti-War Youth Wins Court Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has ruled that the University of Arizona cannot prohibit Ashton Jones from passing out anti-war pamphlets on the campus.

The appellate court reversed a district court decision that said the university was within its rights to prohibit the handing out of all material on the part of the Tucson campus that is open to the public.

In November of 1965 Jones wore onto the campus a sandwich sign saying "Help Spot Viet Nam War Now. For Peace and Freedom." He also handed out literature critical of the war.

Two bystanders tore the signs from his back and campus police received telephone calls saying that if police did not remove Jones from the campus, the callers would. The next day when Jones returned to the campus, he was twice removed by campus police.

SUES UNIVERSITY

Jones then instituted suit on grounds his civil rights were violated and asked an injunction to keep the University of Arizona Board of Regents from interfering with his freedom of speech on the public part of the Tucson campus.

In overturning the district court decision in favor of the regents, the circuit court said that "once a state has made public property generally available to the public, it may not arbitrarily restrict the freedom of individuals, lawfully on that property, to exercise their first amendment rights."

"The challenged regulation completely prohibits the distribution of any handbills, at any time, in places open to the public generally," the appeals court said. "Such a blanket prohibition is clearly unrelated to any valid regulatory purpose..."

COURT REJECTS

The court rejected the contention that such a prohibition was justified since two members of the crowd tore the signs from Jones' back.

"It is clear to us that the police had the obligation of affording (Jones) the same protection they would have surely provided an innocent individual threatened,for example, by a hoodlum on the streets.

"A politically motivaged assault is no less illegal than assaults inspired by personal vengeance or by any other unlawful motive," the court said.

The court ordered the district court to issue an injunction "permanently restraining the Board of Regents of the University and State Colleges of Arizona from interfering with Jones' right to speak and to distribute handbills on areas of the Tucson campus which are open to the public generally."

Outside Help For Cities Ruled In

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch ruled yesterday that police and firemen from other areas can be called in to a city where there is a strike involving local police or firemen.

The opinion, written by deputy William M. Goode at the request of Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan of South San Francisco, said such aid is not prohibited when it is required to meet serious threats to public life, health or property.

The opinion said since public employes do not have the legal right to strike, such a strike would not be a labor controversy under the meaning of the California Disaster Act or the California Emergency Service Act.

Army Leads I-J Astray On Soldier

The adjutant general at the Army discharging station, Fort Hamilton, N.Y., told the I-J that Sharpe left his post in Milan, Italy, on Dec. 18 although his orders clearly stated he was not to leave until on or after Dec. 29.

However, a copy of Sharpe's orders supplied to the Independent-Journal clearly indicates he was to report on Dec. 18 at 11 a.m. to an airline ticket office in Milan for transfer to Fort Hamilton.

The adjutant general, who had declined to release his name, said Sharpe had wrapped up his duties early and usurped rules by leaving early.

However, Sharpe did precisely as his orders indicated and was released Dec. 23. The adjutant said the post commander was concerned about the plight of Sharpe and others who would have had to spend Christmas at the post and so released them without urging from anybody.

However, Sharpe's orders also bear a note that the discharge was in compliance with a phone conversation and he was called in for discharge after normal discharging hours.

Driver Injured When Car Flips

A Corte Madera woman was injured Tuesday at 11:20 a.m. in a single-car accident on the Golden Gate Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Jupiter Katahira, 21, of 1 Palm Avenue, was treated at Park Emergency Hospital in San Francisco for scrapes and bruises.

Officers said her car, southbound on the bridge near midspan, rammed the west railing and overturned.

Probation Report In Drug Arrest

The case of Timothy Patrick Yarish, 20, of Fairfax, has been referred to the probation department to see if he is acceptable to Marin Juvenile Court.

Yarish was arrested Dec. 10 in a drug raid on a Santa Venetia house and accused of a misdemeanor count of being in a place where drugs are used.

STRANGERS ASK

How's Barry Now? Winning His Fight

People haven't forgotten Barry Hollingworth.

Friends and strangers alike have created a special place in their hearts for the 9-year-old San Anselmo boy who has been fighting — and winning — a battle for life since August.

According to his mother, Patricia, Barry was given little chance by his doctors of surviving a severe head injury sustained when his bicycle malfunctioned and crashed. The boy, thrown from the bike, struck his head on a utility pole guy wire.

Since then, Barry has had three brain operations and today lies in a semicoma in Center Medical Hospital, Kentfield. However, his condition is improving, his mother said yesterday.

He still doesn't recognize his family, she said, but is responding to therapy treatment.

Mrs. Hollingworth, who has four other children ranging in age from 18 to 7, said the response from friends and strangers has been overwhelming.

"I don't know how to thank people whose names I don't even know," she said. Her son has received many anonymous gifts, she said.

They range from a television donated by a San Francisco dealer to cards and notes dropped by at her home.

Mrs. Hollingworth also had special praise for two of Barry's teachers at Isabel Cook School, Jeanne Wilson and Barbara Romaneck, who have repeatedly visited him and brought gifts, and Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, who was confined to Marin General's intensive care unit with the boy while recuperating from gunshot wounds suffered in the August Hall of Justice shootout.

Barry was transferred to Center Medical a month ago.

She said the Parent-Teacher Association has set up a special fund for Barry.

"It's nice to know people really do concern themselves with people they don't know," she said. "There are just so many," Mrs. Hollingworth said.

FAMILY

"Aristocats" — Very clever, delightful musical animated feature in the best Disney tradition about a high society cat who inherits a fortune and the villainous butler and his plans.

"Boy Named Charlie Brown" — Delightful story of Peanuts, the comic strip character enhanced by outstanding music and unusual creative animation.

"Cockeyed Cowboys of Calico County" — Amusing comedy about a "mail-order-bride-who fails to arrive and the clever hoax devised by the cowboys to make a happy ending.

"Scrooge" — Modern musical interpretation of Dicken's "A Christmas Carol". Even sophisticated viewers who know the story backwards will find this sumptuous British production in bright new wrappings with inspired talent and wit, clever songs and dance numbers a delight.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Tristana" — A slow moving study of the cynical development of a 16-year-old orphan who becomes the mistress of the man who pretends to be her protector. English subtitles.

"Monte Walsh" — That time in history when Eastern progress came rolling over the old West. Work for the cowboy disappears and hungry men turn to violence. It is s serio-comic study of two cowboys in this situation.

"Patton" — Excellent characterization by George C. Scott who portrays an indomitable spirit that could achieve its destiny only in wartime. A strong film makes use of violence and frequent profanity.

"Rio Lobo" — A typical John Wayne vehicle, the story of an ex-Union Colonel out to uncover men under him who informed of Union activities to Rebel soldiers, causing several of his troops to be killed. Plenty of beatem-up, shoot-em down violence. (Motion Picture Daily).

"Sterile Cuckoo" — A charming tragic comedy about a lonely college girl and her first love affair and its pains and pleasures. Very well acted.

"Tell Me That You Love Me Junie Moon" — Three People with crippling defects meet as patients in a hospital and decide to share a house when released and attempt to adjust to the world. Well acted.

"Love Is a Funny Thing" — A slowly paced, sophisticated tale of a French actress and a musician, who fall in love, while away from their respective mates and families, during the making of a motion picture in America. English subtitles.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Catch 22" — Unusually biting antiwar film that graphically depicts the immorality and unreason war breeds. Grotesque details, bizarre, morbid and gruesome sequences show, in a series of flashback and flashforwards that adds to the confusion.

"Getting Straight" — Cynical though provoking melodrama presents a cogent satiric view of the Establishment and the radicals on college campus. Violence, explicit sex and foul language is abundant.

"Little Fauss and Big Halsy" — Contemporary motorcycle drama. Fast pace covers shallow content. Lots of nude girls, a Johnny Cash soundtrack and a predictable ending.

"Loving" — The quiet desperation of suburban life is artfully explored in this bitter contemporary drama. Well acted by excellent cast. Language and sex scenes extremely frank.

"WUSA" — Contrived melodrama about an unprincipled alcoholic who worked for a rightwing radio station. His conflict with a leftwing welfare worker presents blatant exploitations of serious problems but film does not make a responsible statement when it could.

ADULTS ONLY

"Diary Of A Mad Housewife" — Acidly funny look at the disintegration of a modern marriage. Good comedy with sex and dialogue that is very frank.

"Five Easy Pieces" — A compassionate and uncomprimising story of a man's restless search for roots with no resolution. Acting direction and photography very good. Explicit sex and frank dialogue.

"There's A Girl In My Soup" — A shallow little sex farce about a 40-ish Lothario, a hyper sexed television gourmet, galloping from kitchen to bedroom and his well perfected but corny technique to conquer any female he meets. (Motion Picture Daily)

Production Rise Tied To Inflation

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 4.43 per cent increase in production of goods and services in California during 1970 was due entirely to inflation, the Bank of California reported today in a year-end report.

In fact, since inflation averaged about 5 per cent for the year, the state's real output declined about one-half of a per cent, the bank said.

Economists said the state's total output reached $110.87 billion by the end of the year and its per capita gross state product was $5,554, nearly 16 per cent above the national average.

Personal income outstripped inflation by about 1.5 per cent, advancing 6.4 per cent to $88.76 billion.

The bank predicted an increase of 6.6 per cent in the gross state product during 1971, outstripping a 4 to 4.5 per cent inflationary increase and providing a return to real growth. Personal income is projected to climb 7.2 per cent to $95.2 billion.

Man Bound Over On Burglary Charge

Jon Theodore Kilpatrick, 26, of Fairfax, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a burglary charge. He is to be arraigned Monday.

Kilpatrick was arrested early Dec. 18 inside a San Anselmo variety store.

Nixon Signs Bill On Barge Bulk

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon signed into law Tuesday a bill which suspends for three years an Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) ruling affecting commodities carried by barges on most inland waters.

The ICC ruling provided that if barge operators carry unregulated bulk commodities in the same tow with regulated commodities, all are subject to regulation. The ruling had been upheld by the Supreme Court in 1967.

The law permits barge operators to carry unregulated bulk commodities with regulated commodities in the same tow without the ICC restriction, provided no more than three commodities are carried together.

American Consumer Due A Harvest Of Safeguards

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The New Year promises a record harvest of new safeguards for the American consumer.

The anticipated gains are by no means climactic. Rather, they reflect the fact that the consumer movement, which Ralph Nader calls "incredibly new and small," may finally be overcoming the opposition and inertia which have slowed its progress.

These conclusions are based on interviews with principals in the consumer field, ranging from Nader and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to the White House to its Democratic opponents in Congress. Federal regulatory agencies —and the industries they watch —also were canvassed.

Consumer activists are by no means satisified with the progress of 1970 or that anticipated for 1971. But they see the question no longer as whether action will be taken, but how much and how fast.

Some specifics:

—The odds favor congressional passage of landmark consumer legislation. One bill would establish a federal agency to fight in the consumer's behalf, even against other government bodies. It would scrutinize utility rate increases, prod federal agencies to crack down on fraud and deception and argue the consumer's cause when an industry seeks favorable treatment from government.

Another bill would set ground rules for warranties and guarantees, forbidding the "disclaimer" through which an alleged guarantee may actually protect the manufacturer from many claims.

A third bill, with perhaps a 50-50 chance, would let one consumer sue in behalf of everyone allegedly defrauded by the same shoddy product or deceptive sales pitch. This so-called "class action" approach is designed to make such suits practical by spreading the legal costs among all affected buyers.

Congress also will probably vote new authority to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), including power to stop an allegedly deceptive advertisement or practice while the case is being decided. At present, practices considered fraudulent by the FTC sometimes continue for years while the issue drags through legal appeals.

—Pricing will make more sense. A number of grocery chains have adopted "unit pricing." It tells you the price per ounce, so you can tell whether the jumbo size is really a bargain, whether one brand is cheaper per ounce than its competitor. Even auto pricing, traditionally an arena for guesswork and Arab style haggling, may be affected. The FTC has proposed that new car "sticker prices" be realistic, not inflated. Hearings are scheduled in January.

—Nutrition will advance, although slowly. Following last summer's breakfast cereal controversy, food industry leaders pleaded for government nutritional guidelines covering processed foods. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), is working on them, item by item, with cereals first. Eventually, the label will tell you if a food product meets FDA nutritional standards. The FDA also is reviewing the safety of more than 600 commonly used food additives—some natural, some chemical—and estimates it eventually will restrict the use of perhaps one-third of them.

—Credit practices will be policed. A new law already bans mailing of unsolicited credit cards. The FTC has proposed rules for billing practices, including one designed to make sure your complaint will be handled by a person, not a computer.

The FTC also plans more vigorous enforcement of the truth-in-lending law so borrowers will know in advance how much interest they're paying, whether on a car loan, a mortgage or a charge account. The agency also may ban or restrict "negative option," the system under which book and record club members automatically get the latest issue unless they reject it in advance by mail.

—Hazardous products will face new controls. Embarrassed by criticism, the FDA is trying for the first time to enforce a year-old law against unsafe toys. Congress will consider legislation under which the government could ban any product posing unreasonable risks of burning, shocking or otherwise harming users.

—The effects may not show much in 1971, but advertising faces serious challenges. By carefully picking specific products—toys, foods, antifreeze, tires—and specific advertising appeals, the FTC is gradually drawing tighter ground rules. It also is initiating a tougher penalty, under which a firm judged guilty of unfair advertising would have to confess the past deception in future ads.

Even a leading business leader, asking not to be identified, named advertising as "the new frontier in consumer activity."

— Consumer educaton, a tired phrase, is really developing State, federal and local government agencies are distributing pamphlets and radio messages warning against shady sales practices. Some business groups are doing the same.

Virginia H. Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, has distributed consumer educational programs, from kindergarten through high school, to schools throughout the nation. Mrs. Knauer also has initiated a long-sought program under which results of government product tests, used by federal purchasers, will be released to the public, although without much brand name data.

—The Transportation Department, under law, must propose auto insurance reforms by March 1. One aim is to curb premium increases. A possibility is the "no fault" law, under which your insurance company pays for your injuries and damage. By eliminating the liability system, the plan is designed to end the huge legal costs involved when insurance firms fight in court over which driver was at fault. Massachusetts has adopted "no fault;" other states may follow, with or without federal impetus.

Coke Offers 5 Cent Deposit

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Coca-Cola Co. is offering New Yorkers a five-cent deposit on all returnable bottles of Coke in an effort to curb litter and to save on production costs.

The company, in advertisements in New York City newspapers today, said its two-cent program had worked well, but "lately a lot of our returnable bottles have been winding up in the garbage instead of being returned. (The last thing our communities need is more garbage.)"

The firm said there would be no increase in the cost of its drinks which come in 6 1-2, 12, 16 and 26 ounce bottle sizes.

The plan revealed today applies to areas served by the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of New York, except Buffalo.

Money Bags

HONG KONG (UPI) —Hong Kong-made handbags are exported to more than 150 countries but most of them are sold in the United States, Britain, Japan and West Germany. Hong Kong's handbag exports in 1970 amounted to $17 million, more than half of them going to the United States.

Heavy Coverage For Inauguration

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —An estimated 30 California television stations are expected to broadcast the inauguration of Gov. Ronald Reagan next Monday, the Inaugural Committee said today.

The hour-long ceremony will be telecast live from the west steps of the State Capitol in the California Broadcast Pool and will be produced by KCRA-TV. The inauguration of Reagan and Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke is scheduled to start at 11 a.m.

Superintendent of Public Instruction-elect Wilson C. Riles will be sworn in an hour later at his office in the Department of Education Building.

Anti-War Youth Wins Court Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has ruled that the University of Arizona cannot prohibit Ashton Jones from passing out anti-war pamphlets on the campus.

The appellate court reversed a district court decision that said the university was within its rights to prohibit the handing out of all material on the part of the Tucson campus that is open to the public.

In November of 1965 Jones wore onto the campus a sandwich sign saying "Help Spot Viet Nam War Now. For Peace and Freedom." He also handed out literature critical of the war.

Two bystanders tore the signs from his back and campus police received telephone calls saying that if police did not remove Jones from the campus, the callers would. The next day when Jones returned to the campus, he was twice removed by campus police.

SUES UNIVERSITY

Jones then instituted suit on grounds his civil rights were violated and asked an injunction to keep the University of Arizona Board of Regents from interfering with his freedom of speech on the public part of the Tucson campus.

In overturning the district court decision in favor of the regents, the circuit court said that "once a state has made public property generally available to the public, it may not arbitrarily restrict the freedom of individuals, lawfully on that property, to exercise their first amendment rights."

"The challenged regulation completely prohibits the distribution of any handbills, at any time, in places open to the public generally," the appeals court said. "Such a blanket prohibition is clearly unrelated to any valid regulatory purpose..."

COURT REJECTS

The court rejected the contention that such a prohibition was justified since two members of the crowd tore the signs from Jones' back.

"It is clear to us that the police had the obligation of affording (Jones) the same protection they would have surely provided an innocent individual threatened, for example, by a hoodlum on the streets.

"A politically motivaged assault is no less illegal than assaults inspired by personal vengeance or by any other unlawful motive," the court said.

The court ordered the district court to issue an injunction "permanently restraining the Board of Regents of the University and State Colleges of Arizona from interfering with Jones' right to speak and to distribute handbills on areas of the Tucson campus which are open to the public generally."

COLLEGE SPEAKER Donald Warden, attorney, author and radio and television personality, will speak on economic and educational development for black at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the College of Marin fine arts theater.

Army Leads I-J Astray On Soldier

The adjutant general at the Army discharging station, Fort Hamilton, N.Y., told the I-J that Sharpe left his post in Milan, Italy, on Dec. 18 although his orders clearly stated he was not to leave until on or after Dec. 29.

However, a copy of Sharpe's orders supplied to the Independent-Journal clearly indicates he was to report on Dec. 18 at 11 a.m. to an airline ticket office in Milan for transfer to Fort Hamilton.

The adjutant general, who had declined to release his name, said Sharpe had wrapped up his duties early and usurped rules by leaving early.

However, Sharpe did precisely as his orders indicated and was released Dec. 23. The adjutant said the post commander was concerned about the plight of Sharpe and others who would have had to spend Christmas at the post and so released them without urging from anybody.

However, Sharpe's orders also bear a note that the discharge was in compliance with a phone conversation and he was called in for discharge after normal discharging hours.

Driver Injured When Car Flips

A Corte Madera woman was injured Tuesday at 11:20 a.m. in a single-car accident on the Golden Gate Bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Jupiter Katahira, 21, of 1 Palm Avenue, was treated at Park Emergency Hospital in San Francisco for scrapes and bruises.

Officers said her car, southbound on the bridge near midspan, rammed the west railing and overturned.

Probation Report In Drug Arrest

The case of Timothy Patrick Yarish, 20, of Fairfax, has been referred to the probation department to see if he is acceptable to Marin Juvenile Court.

Yarish was arrested Dec. 10 in a drug raid on a Santa Venetia house and accused of a misdemeanor count of being in a place where drugs are used.

Outside Help For Cities Ruled In

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch ruled yesterday that police and firemen from other areas can be called in to a city where there is a strike involving local police or firemen.

The opinion, written by deputy William M. Goode at the request of Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan of South San Francisco, said such aid is not prohibited when it is required to meet serious threats to public life, health or property.

The opinion said since public employes do not have the legal right to strike, such a strike would not be a labor controversy under the meaning of the California Disaster Act or the California Emergency Service Act.

Vandals Ransack, Burglarize School

Police said two classrooms, an art room and library were in disarray. A small amount of change was stolen from the library. Damage was estimated at $100.

STRANGERS ASK

How's Barry Now? Winning His Fight

People haven't forgotten Barry Hollingworth.

Friends and strangers alike have created a special place in their hearts for the 9-year-old San Anselmo boy who has been fighting — and winning — a battle for life since August.

According to his mother, Patricia, Barry was given little chance by his doctors of surviving a severe head injury sustained when his bicycle malfunctioned and crashed. The boy, thrown from the bike, struck his head on a utility pole guy wire.

Since then, Barry has had three brain operations and today lies in a semicoma in Center Medical Hospital, Kentfield. However, his condition is improving, his mother said yesterday.

He still doesn't recognize his family, she said, but is responding to therapy treatment.

Mrs. Hollingworth, who has four other children ranging in age from 18 to 7, said the response from friends and strangers has been overwhelming.

"I don't know how to thank people whose names I don't even know," she said. Her son has received many anonymous gifts, she said.

They range from a television donated by a San Francisco dealer to cards and notes dropped by at her home.

Mrs. Hollingworth also had special praise for two of Barry's teachers at Isabel Cook School, Jeanne Wilson and Barbara Romaneck, who have repeatedly visited him and brought gifts, and Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, who was confined to Marin General's intensive care unit with the boy while recuperating from gunshot wounds suffered in the August Hall of Justice shootout.

Barry was transferred to Center Medical a month ago.

She said the Parent-Teacher Association has set up a special fund for Barry.

"It's nice to know people really do concern themselves with people they don't know," she said. "There are just so many," Mrs. Hollingworth said.

FAMILY

"Aristocats" — Very clever, delightful musical animated feature in the best Disney tradition about a high society cat who inherits a fortune and the villainous butler and his plans.

"Boy Named Charlie Brown" — Delightful story of Peanuts, the comic strip character enhanced by outstanding music and unusual creative animation.

"Cockeyed Cowboys of Calico County" — Amusing comedy about a "mail-order-bride-- who fails to arrive and the clever hoax devised by the cowboys to make a happy ending.

"Scrooge" — Modern musical interpretation of Dicken's "A Christmas Carol". Even sophisticated viewers who know the story backwards will find this sumptuous British production in bright new wrappings with inspired talent and wit, clever songs and dance numbers a delight.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Tristana" — A slow moving study of the cynical development of a 16-year-old orphan who becomes the mistress of the man who pretends to be her protector. English subtitles.

"Monte Walsh" — That time in history when Eastern progress came rolling over the old West. Work for the cowboy disappears and hungry men turn to violence. It is s serio-comic study of two cowboys in this situation.

"Patton" — Excellent characterization by George C. Scott who portrays an indomitable spirit that could achieve its destiny only in wartime. A strong film makes use of violence and frequent profanity.

"Rio Lobo" — A typical John Wayne vehicle, the story of an ex-Union Colonel out to uncover men under him who informed of Union activities to Rebel soldiers, causing several of his troops to be killed. Plenty of beatem-up, shoot-em down violence. (Motion Picture Daily).

"Sterile Cuckoo" — A charming tragic comedy about a lonely college girl and her first love affair and its pains and pleasures. Very well acted.

"Tell Me That You Love Me Junie Moon" — Three People with crippling defects meet as patients in a hospital and decide to share a house when released and attempt to adjust to the world. Well acted.

"Love Is a Funny Thing" — A slowly paced, sophisticated tale of a French actress and a musician, who fall in love, while away from their respective mates and families, during the making of a motion picture in America. English subtitles.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Catch 22" — Unusually biting antiwar film that graphically depicts the immorality and unreason war breeds. Grotesque details, bizarre, morbid and gruesome sequences show, in a series of flashback and flashforwards that adds to the confusion.

"Getting Straight" — Cynical though provoking melodrama presents a cogent satiric view of the Establishment and the radicals on college campus. Violence, explicit sex and foul language is abundant.

"Little Fauss and Big Halsy" — Contemporary motorcycle drama. Fast pace covers shallow content. Lots of nude girls, a Johnny Cash soundtrack and a predictable ending.

"Loving" — The quiet desperation of suburban life is artfully explored in this bitter contemporary drama. Well acted by excellent cast. Language and sex scenes extremely frank.

"WUSA" — Contrived melodrama about an unprincipled alcoholic who worked for a rightwing radio station. His conflict with a leftwing welfare worker presents blatant exploitations of serious problems but film does not make a responsible statement when it could.

ADULTS ONLY

"Diary Of A Mad Housewife" — Acidly funny look at the disintegration of a modern marriage. Good comedy with sex and dialogue that is very frank.

"Five Easy Pieces" — A compassionate and uncomprimising story of a man's restless search for roots with no resolution. Acting direction and photography very good. Explicit sex and frank dialogue.

"There's A Girl In My Soup" — A shallow little sex farce about a 40-ish Lothario, a hyper sexed television gourmet, galloping from kitchen to bedroom and his well perfected but corny technique to conquer any female he meets. (Motion Picture Daily)

Persinger Program At Domenico

Violist Rolf Persinger will present the next program in San Domenico School's 1970-71 artist series at 2:45 p.m. Wednesday in Alumnae Hall on the campus in Sleepy Hollow.

First violist and frequently a soloist with the San Francisco Symphony since 1963, Persinger, who lives with his wife and two children in Tiburon, studied at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City. After that, he was principal violist with the Minneapolis Symphony ans associate first violist with the Chicago Symphony.

His other music activities include teaching viola and conducting at San Francisco State College and the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and playing with chamber troups such as his own Persinger Trio.

The free program Wednesday, the violist will perform Divertimento, Haydn; Sonata, Opus 11, No. 4, Hindemith; Three Folk Tunes, Vaughan Williams; Allegretto alla Polacca, Beethoven; "Apres un Reve," Faure; and Caprice No. 24, Paganini.

Rene Chevalier will accompany at the piano.

Production Rise Tied To Inflation

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 4.43 per cent increase in production of goods and services in California during 1970 was due entirely to inflation, the Bank of California reported today in a year-end report.

In fact, since inflation averaged about 5 per cent for the year, the state's real output declined about one-half of a per cent, the bank said.

Economists said the state's total output reached $110.87 billion by the end of the year and its per capita gross state product was $5,554, nearly 16 per cent above the national average.

Personal income outstripped inflation by about 1.5 per cent, advancing 6.4 per cent to $88.76 billion.

The bank predicted an increase of 6.6 per cent in the gross state product during 1971, outstripping a 4 to 4.5 per cent inflationary increase and providing a return to real growth. Personal income is projected to climb 7.2 per cent to $95.2 billion.

Man Bound Over On Burglary Charge

Jon Theodore Kilpatrick, 26, of Fairfax, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a burglary charge. He is to be arraigned Monday.

Kilpatrick was arrested early Dec. 18 inside a San Anselmo variety store.

Nixon Signs Bill On Barge Bulk

WASHINGTON (UPI) --President Nixon signed into law Tuesday a bill which suspends for three years an Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) ruling affecting commodities carried by barges on most inland waters.

The ICC ruling provided that if barge operators carry unregulated bulk commodities in the same tow with regulated commodities, all are subject to regulation. The ruling had been upheld by the Supreme Court in 1967.

The law permits barge operators to carry unregulated bulk commodities with regulated commodities in the same tow without the ICC restriction, provided no more than three commodities are carried together.

SEN.-ELECT PETER H. BEHR
A cautious first year

A CAUTIOUS NOTE

Behr Takes Prospective View Of His Senate Job

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Sen.-elect Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley is about to get down to the real business of legislating, but he is determined to walk quietly, at least "for a decent interval."

The Senate, after all, still respects seniority and expects its newcomers to know their place. And Behr clearly intends to benefit from the example of Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, who alienated fellow senators two years ago with a blizzard of bills and complaints about how he did not like the way they ran the upper house.

Behr, in an interview with the Independent-Journal, outlined his preliminary legislative program, but stressed that he would welcome seeing many of its proposals authored by senior senators.

A good measure of his caution was the role he saw for himself in the major environmental bill expected during the coming session — control of California's coastline. "I am not going to thrust my way into any coastal bill," Behr insisted.

This role, of course, would be contrary to the ones he took as a key man in the successful citizen campaigns to save San Francisco Bay and Point Reyes National Seashore.

Behr outlined more than a dozen bills he said he would either introduce or want to help pass, ranging from several to speed justice, protect the environment, cut campaign costs, lessen the impact of San Quentin Prison on Marin taxpayers and increase welfare grants to children.

He said he hoped "to introduce only a reasonable number of bills, perhaps 20 to 25, excluding more routine local bills." The average load carried by each senator last session was 36 bills.

One bill Behr said he would not carry, and one which he would fight if it were introduced, was any bill that would dissolve the Golden Gate Bridge District. Praising the district for "taking hold and acting boldly and with imagination," he declared the district should be "left strictly alone" so it can tackle transportation problems.

Opponents of the bridge district long have favored its dissolution once its bonds are retired in 1971.

Behr proposed the following bills, although he cautioned that many of them were based on "very preliminary thinking."

APPEALS — Create a new division within the district courts of appeal to provide immediate appeal from convictions for major felonies. Behr, an attorney, said the major delay in criminal prosecutions often is in the appeal process, not in the trial. Faster prosecution would help deter crime, he said. The new division would handle appeals from convictions which "pose particular threats to society," such as the use of explosives, first degree murder, kidnapping, assault on police and wholesale possession or peddling of hard narcotics.

JURIES — Allow seven-member juries for some civil cases and for all misdemeanor cases, a move that would cut court costs and save time.

POLICE — Establish a state police academy, with training for local police forces emphasizing preventive police work. Behr acknowledged that such a bill, because of its cost and controversial nature, would have to be carried by a senior senator, but that he wanted to "play a part" in its passage.

ELECTION — Move the primary election from the first Tuesday in June to the second Tuesday after the first Monday in September, a change designed to cut campaign costs. Behr, who spent $134,548 getting elected, said that "if you have anything to say, you should be able to say it within this time (between September and the general election in November)."

EXPENDITURES — Set a limit on campaign expenditures for all elected offices, the limit varying with the office. Enforcement would be through requiring candidates to report expenses in detail, which Behr said would be easier to check than the current requirement that they also report contributions.

MEDI-CAL — Appropriate state funds to reimburse counties for their costs under Medi-Cal so that "counties are not holding the bag."

FUEL — Require public and private vehicle fleets of 10 or more to be modified to use propane or natural gas, which produces far less air pollutants than gasoline-powered vehicles.

LIONS — Close the season on mountain lions, which are a vanishing species, and appropriate a small sum to pay ranchers for proven damage to their livestock from the lions.

ABALONE — Bar SCUBA divers from taking abalone, a practice that conservationists say could eradicate abalone from state waters.

SAN QUENTIN — Require the state to pay its full share of Marin County's cost for handling court prosecution of convicts from San Quentin Prison. The state now pays "so late and so grudgingly that it creates a problem," Behr said. He also suggested rotating the court duties among all Bay Area counties to spread the burden.

CHILDREN — Increase, at an annual cost of $60 million, the state's welfare grants to children under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. Almost one million children, or 12 per cent of the children in California, are on AFDC, Behr said. Current grants are based on the cost of living in 1957, but the cost of living has inflated by 30 per cent since then. The result is that many children are being deprived physically, emotionally and mentally because of poor nutrition, he said. New taxes would be needed to finance the increase, Behr conceded, adding the increase depended "on the proper conscience of every Californian."

PESTICIDES — Bar the use of persistant pesticides. The current system of leaving their regulation to the state Department of Agriculture, Behr said, was "like putting lettuce in control of a hungry rabbit."

BRIDGE — Stop plans to go ahead with construction of a Southern Crossing bridge between San Francisco and Alameda. Bridges for vehicular traffic, Behr said, are an "anachronistic solution to moving people."

FREEWAYS — Remove from the state freeway system the proposed Napa Valley freeway, and speed construction of the Sears Point freeway.

TEACHERS — Provide automatic cost of living increases for retired teachers, thus giving them a benefit already enjoyed by most other retired state employes.

Marin Grid Classic Set For Saturday

Marin's annual New Year's football classic, the Gopher Bowl, is set for kickoff at high noon Saturday, in front of the San Rafael high school administration building near the San Rafael firehouse training tower.

In keeping with its name, the game will be played on a field that is pocked with gopher holes.

The Gopher Bowl pits the Marin County counsel's Legal Eagles against the Rough and Tumble Boys from the county department of public works.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino refused to speculate on the outcome of the contest and declined to reveal his team's starting lineup or identify the team captain. "We're all individualists," said Godino. "We've got eleven captains, each with his own ideas about the game."

Rumors have leaked, however, that the county counsels' secret weapon will be County Supervisor Peter Arrigoni, a halfback in his college days and one-time draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers. Arrigoni is expected to be the starting quarterback.

The team reportedly has recruited a couple of other county officials, including a member of the planning commission.

Equally secretive about his roster is Mario Balestrieri, spokesman for the public works department, who will draw heavily on his road crews to hold back the Legal Eagles. Public works has reportedly recruited some high school stars, including a quarterback from North Marin.

Sports experts at the Civic Center rate the game a toss-up, with the edge going to whichever team can survive the New Year's celebrations and dinners and still field 11 men capable of walking onto the field unassisted.

The contest is open free to the public, with a nationwide TV blackout. "But if you attend in person, you do so at your own risk," said a public relations man. "If either side lacks players, you're liable to be pulled into the game as a substitute."

Marin Draft To Pick Men With Numbers Below 196

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Draft-age Marin men with lottery numbers below 196 will be drafted. Other Bay Area men with the same numbers will not.

That is the effect of a new Selective Service guideline related to the Independent-Journal by a federal official yesterday.

Walter H. Henderson, deputy state director of the Selective Service System, said here that anyone under the nationwide ceiling of 195, but above the highest number called by his draft board, this year will not be drafted unless there is a national emergency.

Local board 25 of San Rafael reached 195 in August, according to board secretary Joy M. Kinzer. Those under 196 not called in 1970 will be called in 1971, she said.

However, other Bay Area boards, including eight of the ten in San Francisco, have not reached 195. One San Francisco draft board reached only 176 while others called up to the 180s, according to a draft official in San Francisco.

The new guideline has no effect on deferment-free men who have been targeted for induction all year, since their year of eligibility ends tomorrow.

However, a Marin man who had a deferment through part of 1970 and has a number like 193 can expect to be called in 1971, Mrs. Kinzer said.

Meanwhile, most San Francisco men with similar numbers and some in Berkeley and Oakland will not be drafted, Henderson said.

Those between 20 and 26 years of age who qualify for the loophole, but now have deferments, must write to their local boards by midnight tonight requesting reclassification to 1-A, Henderson said.

Mrs. Kinzer did not know how many Marin men have numbers just below 195, but she said there are 10,126 in the 1970 draft pool.

Banner Day For Young Fishermen

Fishing San Francisco Bay off the Tiburon shore on Tuesday, Mark and Dwight Devereaux had a banner afternoon. First, Mark, age 14, hooked and landed a 6-foot-4, 100-pound sturgeon, and then Dwight, 12, took a 5-foot-2, 60-pounder.

Mark's took two hours to land, with the help of Dwight and a friend, Russ Kennedy, who went into the water to pull it in. Mark demonstrated his fishing prowess by taking the huge fish on a 30-pound test line, using a surf rod and a spinning reel. Dwight needed only a half hour to land his.

The boys learned their techniques from Manuel Garcia, a custodian at Del Mar School in Tiburon, who unfortunately wasn't on hand to see his efforts pay off. But he helped transport the fish to the Devereaux home later, and supervised the cleaning of them.

American Consumer Due A Harvest Of Safeguards

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The New Year promises a record harvest of new safeguards for the American consumer.

The anticipated gains are by no means climactic. Rather, they reflect the fact that the consumer movement, which Ralph Nader calls "incredibly new and small," may finally be overcoming the opposition and inertia which have slowed its progress.

These conclusions are based on interviews with principals in the consumer field, ranging from Nader and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to the White House to its Democratic opponents in Congress. Federal regulatory agencies —and the industries they watch —also were canvassed.

Consumer activists are by no means satisified with the progress of 1970 or that anticipated for 1971. But they see the question no longer as whether action will be taken, but how much and how fast.

Some specifics:

—The odds favor congressional passage of landmark consumer legislation. One bill would establish a federal agency to fight in the consumer's behalf, even against other government bodies. It would scrutinize utility rate increases, prod federal agencies to crack down on fraud and deception and argue the consumer's cause when an industry seeks favorable treatment from government.

Another bill would set ground rules for warranties and guarantees, forbidding the "disclaimer" through which an alleged guarantee may actually protect the manufacturer from many claims.

A third bill, with perhaps a 50-50 chance, would let one consumer sue in behalf of everyone allegedly defrauded by the same shoddy product or deceptive sales pitch. This so-called "class action" approach is designed to make such suits practical by spreading the legal costs among all affected buyers.

Congress also will probably vote new authority to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), including power to stop an allegedly deceptive advertisement or practice while the case is being decided. At present, practices considered fraudulent by the FTC sometimes continue for years while the issue drags through legal appeals.

—Pricing will make more sense. A number of grocery chains have adopted "unit pricing." It tells you the price per ounce, so you can tell whether the jumbo size is really a bargain, whether one brand is cheaper per ounce than its competitor. Even auto pricing, traditionally an arena for guesswork and Arab style haggling, may be affected. The FTC has proposed that new car "sticker prices" be realistic, not inflated. Hearings are scheduled in January.

—Nutrition will advance, although slowly. Following last summer's breakfast cereal controversy, food industry leaders pleaded for government nutritional guidelines covering processed foods. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), is working on them, item by item, with cereals first. Eventually, the label will tell you if a food product meets FDA nutritional standards. The FDA also is reviewing the safety of more than 600 commonly used food additives—some natural, some chemical—and estimates it eventually will restrict the use of perhaps one-third of them.

—Credit practices will be policed. A new law already bans mailing of unsolicited credit cards. The FTC has proposed rules for billing practices, including one designed to make sure your complaint will be handled by a person, not a computer.

The FTC also plans more vigorous enforcement of the truth-in-lending law so borrowers will know in advance how much interest they're paying, whether on a car loan, a mortgage or a charge account. The agency also may ban or restrict "negative option," the system under which book and record club members automatically get the latest issue unless they reject it in advance by mail.

—Hazardous products will face new controls. Embarrassed by criticism, the FDA is trying for the first time to enforce a year-old law against unsafe toys. Congress will consider legislation under which the government could ban any product posing unreasonable risks of burning, shocking or otherwise harming users.

—The effects may not show much in 1971, but advertising faces serious challenges. By carefully picking specific products—toys, foods, antifreeze, tires—and specific advertising appeals, the FTC is gradually drawing tighter ground rules. It also is initiating a tougher penalty, under which a firm judged guilty of unfair advertising would have to confess the past deception in future ads.

Even a leading business leader, asking not to be identified, named advertising as "the new frontier in consumer activity."

— Consumer educaton, a tired phrase, is really developing State, federal and local government agencies are distributing pamphlets and radio messages warning against shady sales practices. Some business groups are doing the same.

Virginia H. Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, has distributed consumer educational programs, from kindergarten through high school, to schools throughout the nation. Mrs. Knauer also has initiated a long-sought program under which results of government product tests, used by federal purchasers, will be released to the public, although without much brand name data.

—The Transportation Department, under law, must propose auto insurance reforms by March 1. One aim is to curb premium increases. A possibility is the "no fault" law, under which your insurance company pays for your injuries and damage. By eliminating the liability system, the plan is designed to end the huge legal costs involved when insurance firms fight in court over which driver was at fault. Massachusetts has adopted "no fault;" other states may follow, with or without federal impetus.

Coke Offers 5 Cent Deposit

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Coca-Cola Co. is offering New Yorkers a five-cent deposit on all returnable bottles of Coke in an effort to curb litter and to save on production costs.

The company, in advertisements in New York City newspapers today, said its two-cent program had worked well, but "lately a lot of our returnable bottles have been winding up in the garbage instead of being returned. (The last thing our communities need is more garbage.)"

The firm said there would be no increase in the cost of its drinks which come in 6 1-2, 12, 16 and 26 ounce bottle sizes.

The plan revealed today applies to areas served by the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of New York, except Buffalo.

Money Bags

HONG KONG (UPI) —Hong Kong-made handbags are exported to more than 150 countries but most of them are sold in the United States, Britain, Japan and West Germany. Hong Kong's handbag exports in 1970 amounted to $17 million, more than half of them going to the United States.

ORIENTAL CALENDAR

Luck And Disaster In Year Of Boar

TOKYO (UPI)—1971 is Ronald Reagan's year. It also is Hubert Humphrey's year, according to people who take a serious view of the traditional Chinese-Japanese calendar.

Both the Republican governor of California and the Democratic Senator from Minnesota were born in 1911, a "Year of the Boar" in the old calendar Japan and China used until less than 100 years ago.

1971 will be the sixth "Year of the Boar" in what the western calendar calls the 20th century. Hence it will be important for all persons born in "boar" years—1911, 1923, 1935, 1947, and 1959.

Along with Humphrey and Reagan, it will be a special year for actor Rory Calhoun and Academy Award-winning actress Anne Baxter (both born in 1923), and for Bobby Darin, Johnny Mathis, Elvis Presley, and former Dodger pitcher Sandy Koufax (all 1935).

In Asia, however, most people will look forward to the "Boar" year of 1971 with misgivings. Although "Boar" years in the 20th century have been years without war, they have been years of great natural disasters in Asia.

The great Tokyo earthquake that killed 143,000 occurred in a "Boar" year, 1923. In the previous "Boar" year of the Chinese calendar, 1911, a flood on the Yangtze river cost the lives of an estimated 100,000 Chinese. In 1959, the "Boar" jinx still held good for Japan, when more than 4,000 lives were lost in a typhoon on the main island of Honshu.

Western countries also have had upsets in "Boar" years. U. S. President Warren G. Harding died in office in a "Boar" year, 1923. The same year saw the mass shipwreck of seven U. S. Navy destroyers off Southern California. Louisiana Sen. Huey Long was assassinated in 1935, another "Boar" year.

The "Boar" is the last of 12 years, all named for animals, in the Chinese calendar cycle, comparable to the western decade.

According to Chinese folklore, 12 animals appeared at Buddha's death bed to pay their respects to him—the rat, cow, tigers, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, fowl, dog and boar.

Each was accorded the honor of having a year named after its species. The "Boar" years are the last in the cycle, which starts all over again in 1972 with "the year of the Rat."

Technically, New Year's Day of the "year of the Boar" won't occur till Jan. 27, under the old calendar which Japan operated until 1876.

Under the old system, New Year's Day varied, ranging from late January to early March. Based on the movements of the moon, the Chinese calendar always lost time.

"Leap month" had to be inserted every three years to get it back on schedule.

Nowdays, Japanese celebrate the New Year on Jan. 1, and boars and pigs already are splashed all over Japanese newspapers, magazines and store windows as advertising gimmicks.

People born in "Boar" years are supposed to be destined for great success or great disaster—the "bet it all" types who tend to "go for broke." The calendar, with its 12 year cycles, goes far back into Chinese history. Japan adopted it in the 6th or 7th century, historians believe. Today, almanacs based on it are still widely sold in Japan. People consult them to find "good" days for marriages, and suggestions for lucky names for their children.

CRLA Gets Reprieve For Reagan Veto Study

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan today approved a federal request for funding the California Rural Legal Assistance during a 30-day study period.

The announcement was made by Edwin Meese III, the governor's executive secretary, who said the federal officials wanted the time to study documents supporting Reagan's veto of the grant for the program's operation for the coming year.

Meese said the 30-day period would allow U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity officials "sufficient time to carefully examine" Reagan's documents.

Meese added:

"It had been anticipated from the beginning that the state would agree to additional funds for CRLA during the decision making and-or program phase-out period so that there could be an orderly transition into the privately financed legal services program for the rural poor which is now in the final stages of development by the Reagan administration."

In vetoing the grant for the coming year, Reagan said the past weekend that CRLA had been guilty of "gross and deliberate violations" of OEO regulations in using funds to fight "class" actions instead of using them to provide lawyers for individual poor people.

Heavy Holiday Airline Demand

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The slowdown in the nation's economy apparently has not affected air travel during the Christmas-New Year holiday season, according to Western Airlines.

The Los Angeles based airline said its advance bookings for the period Dec. 17-Jan. 4 included 185 extra flights which were added to meet the heavy demand. More extra flights were expected, with Western predicting a total of 200 for the period. This compares with 53 extra flights during last year's holiday season.

The 200 added flights will provide about 21,000 additional seats. Most of the flights are from Los Angeles and San Francisco to Acapulco, Mexico City, Honolulu, Hilo, Minneapolis St. Paul and Vancouver, B.C.

Dog Grooming Plan Rejected

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has denied the appeal of a Petaluma man who sought to use a mobile home for dog grooming.

Robert M. McCulloch had appealed planning commission denial of his request to place a mobile home at 3606 South Ely Road for a dog-grooming business.

In unanimously denying his request Tuesday, the board noted the similar requests by McCulloch had been turned down in recent years.

American Consumer Due A Harvest Of Safeguards

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The New Year promises a record harvest of new safeguards for the American consumer.

The anticipated gains are by no means climactic. Rather, they reflect the fact that the consumer movement, which Ralph Nader calls "incredibly new and small," may finally be overcoming the opposition and inertia which have slowed its progress.

These conclusions are based on interviews with principals in the consumer field, ranging from Nader and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce to the White House to its Democratic opponents in Congress. Federal regulatory agencies —and the industries they watch —also were canvassed.

Consumer activists are by no means satisified with the progress of 1970 or that anticipated for 1971. But they see the question no longer as whether action will be taken, but how much and how fast.

Some specifics:

—The odds favor congressional passage of landmark consumer legislation. One bill would establish a federal agency to fight in the consumer's behalf, even against other government bodies. It would scrutinize utility rate increases, prod federal agencies to crack down on fraud and deception and argue the consumer's cause when an industry seeks favorable treatment from government.

Another bill would set ground rules for warranties and guarantees, forbidding the "disclaimer" through which an alleged guarantee may actually protect the manufacturer from many claims.

A third bill, with perhaps a 50-50 chance, would let one consumer sue in behalf of everyone allegedly defrauded by the same shoddy product or deceptive sales pitch. This so-called "class action" approach is designed to make such suits practical by spreading the legal costs among all affected buyers.

Congress also will probably vote new authority to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), including power to stop an allegedly deceptive advertisement or practice while the case is being decided. At present, practices considered fraudulent by the FTC sometimes continue for years while the issue drags through legal appeals.

—Pricing will make more sense. A number of grocery chains have adopted "unit pricing." It tells you the price per ounce, so you can tell whether the jumbo size is really a bargain, whether one brand is cheaper per ounce than its competitor. Even auto pricing, traditionally an arena for guesswork and Arab style haggling, may be affected. The FTC has proposed that new car "sticker prices" be realistic, not inflated. Hearings are scheduled in January.

—Nutrition will advance, although slowly. Following last summer's breakfast cereal controversy, food industry leaders pleaded for government nutritional guidelines covering processed foods. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), is working on them, item by item, with cereals first. Eventually, the label will tell you if a food product meets FDA nutritional standards. The FDA also is reviewing the safety of more than 600 commonly used food additives—some natural, some chemical—and estimates it eventually will restrict the use of perhaps one-third of them.

—Credit practices will be policed. A new law already bans mailing of unsolicited credit cards. The FTC has proposed rules for billing practices, including one designed to make sure your complaint will be handled by a person, not a computer.

The FTC also plans more vigorous enforcement of the truth-in-lending law so borrowers will know in advance how much interest they're paying, whether on a car loan, a mortgage or a charge account. The agency also may ban or restrict "negative option," the system under which book and record club members automatically get the latest issue unless they reject it in advance by mail.

—Hazardous products will face new controls. Embarrassed by criticism, the FDA is trying for the first time to enforce a year-old law against unsafe toys. Congress will consider legislation under which the government could ban any product posing unreasonable risks of burning, shocking or otherwise harming users.

—The effects may not show much in 1971, but advertising faces serious challenges. By carefully picking specific products—toys, foods, antifreeze, tires—and specific advertising appeals, the FTC is gradually drawing tighter ground rules. It also is initiating a tougher penalty, under which a firm judged guilty of unfair advertising would have to confess the past deception in future ads.

Even a leading business leader, asking not to be identified, named advertising as "the new frontier in consumer activity."

— Consumer educaton, a tired phrase, is really developing State, federal and local government agencies are distributing pamphlets and radio messages warning against shady sales practices. Some business groups are doing the same.

Virginia H. Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, has distributed consumer educational programs, from kindergarten through high school, to schools throughout the nation. Mrs. Knauer also has initiated a long-sought program under which results of government product tests, used by federal purchasers, will be released to the public, although without much brand name data.

—The Transportation Department, under law, must propose auto insurance reforms by March 1. One aim is to curb premium increases. A possibility is the "no fault" law, under which your insurance company pays for your injuries and damage. By eliminating the liability system, the plan is designed to end the huge legal costs involved when insurance firms fight in court over which driver was at fault. Massachusetts has adopted "no fault;" other states may follow, with or without federal impetus.

Coke Offers 5 Cent Deposit

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Coca-Cola Co. is offering New Yorkers a five-cent deposit on all returnable bottles of Coke in an effort to curb litter and to save on production costs.

The company, in advertisements in New York City newspapers today, said its two-cent program had worked well, but "lately a lot of our returnable bottles have been winding up in the garbage instead of being returned. (The last thing our communities need is more garbage.)"

The firm said there would be no increase in the cost of its drinks which come in 6 1-2, 12, 16 and 26 ounce bottle sizes.

The plan revealed today applies to areas served by the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of New York, except Buffalo.

Money Bags

HONG KONG (UPI) —Hong Kong-made handbags are exported to more than 150 countries but most of them are sold in the United States, Britain, Japan and West Germany. Hong Kong's handbag exports in 1970 amounted to $17 million, more than half of them going to the United States.

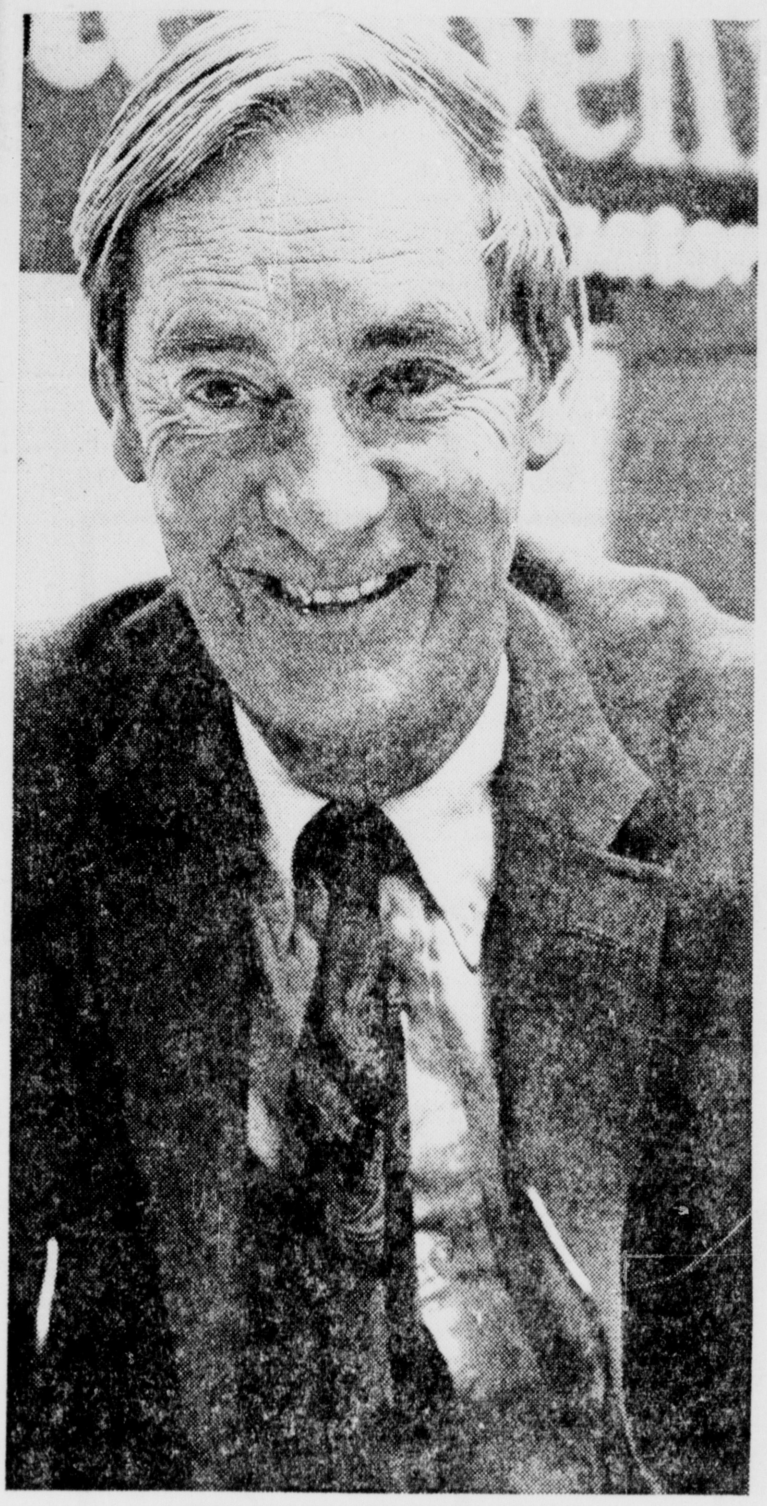
A CAUTIOUS NOTE

Behr Takes Prospective View Of His Senate Job



SEN.-ELECT PETER H. BEHR
A cautious first year

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Sen.-elect Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley is about to get down to the real business of legislating, but he is determined to walk quietly, at least "for a decent interval."

The Senate, after all, still respects seniority and expects its newcomers to know their place. And Behr clearly intends to benefit from the example of Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, who alienated fellow senators two years ago with a blizzard of bills and complaints about how he did not like the way they ran the upper house.

Behr, in an interview with the Independent-Journal, outlined his preliminary legislative program, but stressed that he would welcome seeing many of its proposals authored by senior senators.

A good measure of his caution was the role he saw for himself in the major environmental bill expected during the coming session — control of California's coastline. "I am not going to thrust my way into any coastal bill," Behr insisted.

This role, of course, would be contrary to the ones he took as a key man in the successful citizen campaigns to save San Francisco Bay and Point Reyes National Seashore.

Behr outlined more than a dozen bills he said he would either introduce or want to help pass, ranging from several to speed justice, protect the environment, cut campaign costs, lessen the impact of San Quentin Prison on Marin taxpayers and increase welfare grants to children.

He said he hoped "to introduce only a reasonable number of bills, perhaps 20 to 25, excluding more routine local bills." The average load carried by each senator last session was 36 bills.

One bill Behr said he would not carry, and one which he would fight if it were introduced, was any bill that would dissolve the Golden Gate Bridge District. Praising the district for "taking hold and acting boldly and with imagination," he declared the district should be "left strictly alone" so it can tackle transportation problems.

Opponents of the bridge district long have favored its dissolution once its bonds are retired in 1971.

Behr proposed the following bills, although he cautioned that many of them were based on "very preliminary thinking."

APPEALS — Create a new division within the district courts of appeal to provide immediate appeal from convictions for major felonies. Behr, an attorney, said the major delay in criminal prosecutions often is in the appeal process, not in the trial. Faster prosecution would help deter crime, he said. The new division would handle appeals from convictions which "pose particular threats to society," such as the use of explosives, first degree murder, kidnapping, assault on police and wholesale possession or peddling of hard narcotics.

JURIES — Allow seven-member juries for some civil cases and for all misdemeanor cases, a move that would cut court costs and save time.

POLICE — Establish a state police academy, with training for local police forces emphasizing preventive police work. Behr acknowledged that such a bill, because of its cost and controversial nature, would have to be carried by a senior senator, but that he wanted to "play a part" in its passage.

ELECTION — Move the primary election from the first Tuesday in June to the second Tuesday after the first Monday in September, a change designed to cut campaign costs. Behr, who spent $134,548 getting elected, said that "if you have anything to say, you should be able to say it within this time (between September and the general election in November)."

EXPENDITURES — Set a limit on campaign expenditures for all elected offices, the limit varying with the office. Enforcement would be through requiring candidates to report expenses in detail, which Behr said would be easier to check than the current requirement that they also report contributions.

MEDI-CAL — Appropriate state funds to reimburse counties for their costs under Medi-Cal so that "counties are not holding the bag."

FUEL — Require public and private vehicle fleets of 10 or more to be modified to use propane or natural gas, which produces far less air pollutants than gasoline-powered vehicles.

LIONS — Close the season on mountain lions, which are a vanishing species, and appropriate a small sum to pay ranchers for proven damage to their livestock from the lions.

ABALONE — Bar SCUBA divers from taking abalone, a practice that conservationists say could eradicate abalone from state waters.

SAN QUENTIN — Require the state to pay its full share of Marin County's cost for handling court prosecution of convicts from San Quentin Prison. The state now pays "so late and so grudgingly that it creates a problem," Behr said. He also suggested rotating the court duties among all Bay Area counties to spread the burden.

CHILDREN — Increase, at an annual cost of $60 million, the state's welfare grants to children under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. Almost one million children, or 12 per cent of the children in California, are on AFDC, Behr said. Current grants are based on the cost of living in 1957, but the cost of living has inflated by 30 per cent since then. The result is that many children are being deprived physically, emotionally and mentally because of poor nutrition, he said. New taxes would be needed to finance the increase, Behr conceded, adding the increase depended "on the proper conscience of every Californian."

POLLUTION — Match state funds equally with property tax revenue raised by air pollution control districts.

PESTICIDES — Bar the use of persistant pesticides. The current system of leaving their regulation to the state Department of Agriculture, Behr said, was "like putting lettuce in control of a hungry rabbit."

BRIDGE — Stop plans to go ahead with construction of a Southern Crossing bridge between San Francisco and Alameda. Bridges for vehicular traffic, Behr said, are an "anachronistic solution to moving people."

FREEWAYS — Remove from the state freeway system the proposed Napa Valley freeway, and speed construction of the Sears Point freeway.

TEACHERS — Provide automatic cost of living increases for retired teachers, thus giving them a benefit already enjoyed by most other retired state employes.

Marin Draft To Pick Men With Numbers Below 196

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Draft-age Marin men with lottery numbers below 196 will be drafted. Other Bay Area men with the same numbers will not.

That is the effect of a new Selective Service guideline related to the Independent-Journal by a federal official yesterday.

Walter H. Henderson, deputy state director of the Selective Service System, said here that anyone under the nationwide ceiling of 195, but above the highest number called by his draft board, this year will not be drafted unless there is a national emergency.

Local board 25 of San Rafael reached 195 in August, according to board secretary Joy M. Kinzer. Those under 196 not called in 1970 will be called in 1971, she said.

However, other Bay Area boards, including eight of the ten in San Francisco, have not reached 195. One San Francisco draft board reached only 176 while others called up to the 180s, according to a draft official in San Francisco.

The new guideline has no effect on deferment-free men who have been targeted for induction all year, since their year of eligibility ends tomorrow.

However, a Marin man who had a deferment through part of 1970 and has a number like 193 can expect to be called in 1971, Mrs. Kinzer said.

Meanwhile, most San Francisco men with similar numbers and some in Berkeley and Oakland will not be drafted, Henderson said.

Those between 20 and 26 years of age who qualify for the loophole, but now have deferments, must write to their local boards by midnight tonight requesting reclassification to 1-A, Henderson said.

Mrs. Kinzer did not know how many Marin men have numbers just below 195, but she said there are 10,126 in the 1970 draft pool.

Marin Grid Classic Set For Saturday

Marin's annual New Year's football classic, the Gopher Bowl, is set for kickoff at high noon Saturday, in front of the San Rafael high school administration building near the San Rafael firehouse training tower.

In keeping with its name, the game will be played on a field that is pocked with gopher holes.

The Gopher Bowl pits the Marin County counsel's Legal Eagles against the Rough and Tumble Boys from the county department of public works.

Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino refused to speculate on the outcome of the contest and declined to reveal his team's starting lineup or identify the team captain. "We're all individualists," said Godino. "We've got eleven captains, each with his own ideas about the game."

Rumors have leaked, however, that the county counsels' secret weapon will be County Supervisor Peter Arrigoni, a halfback in his college days and one-time draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers. Arrigoni is expected to be the starting quarterback.

The team reportedly has recruited a couple of other county officials, including a member of the planning commission.

Equally secretive about his roster is Mario Balestrieri, spokesman for the public works department, who will draw heavily on his road crews to hold back the Legal Eagles. Public works has reportedly recruited some high school stars, including a quarterback from North Marin.

Sports experts at the Civic Center rate the game a toss-up, with the edge going to whichever team can survive the New Year's celebrations and dinners and still field 11 men capable of walking onto the field unassisted.

The contest is open free to the public, with a nationwide TV blackout. "But if you attend in person, you do so at your own risk," said a public relations man. "If either side lacks players, you're liable to be pulled into the game as a substitute."

Banner Day For Young Fishermen

Fishing San Francisco Bay off the Tiburon shore on Tuesday, Mark and Dwight Devereaux had a banner afternoon. First, Mark, age 14, hooked and landed a 6-foot-4, 100-pound sturgeon, and then Dwight, 12, took a 5-foot-2, 60-pounder.

Mark's took two hours to land, with the help of Dwight and a friend, Russ Kennedy, who went into the water to pull it in. Mark demonstrated his fishing prowess by taking the huge fish on a 30-pound test line, using a surf rod and a spinning reel. Dwight needed only a half hour to land his.

The boys learned their techniques from Manuel Garcia, a custodian at Del Mar School in Tiburon, who unfortunately wasn't on hand to see his efforts pay off. But he helped transport the fish to the Devereaux home later, and supervised the cleaning of them.

Forecasters Expect Home Building To Increase In 197

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —After two bleak years, the outlook for housing in 1971 is good. It should be easier next year to obtain a place to live.

Most forecasters expect home building to increase next year—possibly to the highest level in 2 years. Mortgage interest rates are expected to decline somewhat and the supply of money for home loans should be greater.

It makes a happy contrast to 1969 and early 1970, when housing construction plumetted and mortgage money either was not available at all or was more expensive than it ever had been.

The two-year slump is generally blamed on efforts by the federal reserve to combat inflation by clamping a tight lid on the money supply.

Housing predictably was hardest hit by the tight money policy. Most business borrowers were able to pay high interest rates for loans they needed by passing the higher cost on to customers. Home loans were unable to compete for money.

Home building dropped steadily throughout 1969. The seasonally adjusted annual rate of housing starts fell to 1 million in January, 1970, about half the rate for January, 1969.

The rate began to improve in 1970—not fast enough to make it a good year but enough to provide a good springboard for 1971. Housing starts were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.7 million units in November.

The National Association of Home Builders predicts private housing starts will total between 1.6 and 1.65 million units for 1971 as a whole. That would be about 14 per cent better than 1970's annual total of 1.45 million units and could be the second highest total on record, exceeded only by 1.95 million units in 1950.

Mortgage money was scarce for most of 1969 and during the first part of 1970. Last February, only 39 per cent of the regional offices of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) reported adequate supplies of funds available in their areas. By November, the figure was 81 per cent.

The interest ceiling on FHA and Veterans Administration home loans was cut from 8 1-2 to 8 per cent on Dec. 1.

Allen P. Stults, vice president of the American Bankers Association, predicts that housing funds will become more readily available next year and that interest rates will decline a bit more.

Strangely enough, one reason for optimism about housing and mortgage finance next year is the recession jitters which affect the rest of the economy.

Consumers, as they usually do when they fear a recession, are saving more of their money. Government figures indicate about 7.5 per cent of personal income is being set aside as savings, about 1.5 percentage points above normal.

A highly-respected University of Michigan survey predicts that consumers will continue to be cautious for the first few months of 1971 at least. Savings should continue at a high rate.

The Nixon administration had been counting on a wave of consumer buying to buoy up the economy and help combat a business slump and the unemployment which accompanied it. If predictions of higher than normal savings next year are accurate, it would hinder administration efforts to stimulate the overall economy.

But a high savings rate would be a bonanza for housing. With money piling up in banks and savings and loan associations, lenders would be under increasing pressure to make mortgage loans. That should push down interest rates.

Catherine E. Martini, director of the research department of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, predicts that the volume of single-family home construction will inrrease in 1971.

There has never been a time in our history when the inventory of housing was so varied, adaptable, or of such a high average quality as that comprising the current standing stock, and the broad-based trend toward improvement will accumulate next year," Mrs. Martini said.

She added that construction of lower-priced housing probably will increase next year.

Despite the anticipated improvement in the housing picture, the nation continues to renege on its promise —made in 1946 —of a decent home in a suitable neighborhood for every family.

In 1968, Congress set a goal of construction of 26 million new or rehabiltated units in 10 years to finally make good on the 22-year-old promise. But construction in 1969 and 1970 has fallen well below the 2.6 million annual average needed to meet the goal, even counting production of mobile homes.

Canada, Italy Send Shock Into Formosa

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist China faces 1971 warily after a diplomatically disastrous 1970.

After holding off for 20 years, two major Western powers, Canada and Italy, switched diplomatic recognition from Taipei to Peking within a matter of a month.

The Nationalist China seat was saved because an earlier vote had affirmed 66-52 that the matter was "an important question" and required a two-thirds majority to change the representation.

But the later vote shocked even the most pessimistic officials in Taipei and forced many to accept the possibility Peking may win the China seat in 1971.

Many government officials are now seriously pondering Nationalist China's future if their country, a charter member, is voted out, and Communist China, an aggressor condemned by the U.N., is admitted.

A great majority of the people are not even aware of the looming threat, and of those who are, many seem to hold a "so what" attitude. Public apathy can be attributed to the booming economy and unprecedented political stability that has continued to raise the people's standard of living in a society of peace and order.

Despite the indirect effect the threatened American recession has on some of the factories in Taiwan, the island's economic growth is expected to continue at a rate of 9.5 per cent against 10.2 per cent last year.

The per capita income rose from last year's $261 to an expected $292 this year.

Color television has taken the place of black and white sets as a standard gift in marriage dowries. The sale of color TV sets has been so brisk that an 19-inch model with the production cost of $100 is sold for $600.

Taiwan probably has become the only piece of land in China's more than 4,000 years of history where the people have enjoyed peace and prosperity for 21 consecutive years.

A question is, would the loss of its U.N. seat affect the country's status, and well being?

The government is adamant in its opposition to any "Two China" U.N. policy now or in the foreseeable future. It will break diplomatic relations with any country which recognizes Peking and has stated it will withdraw from the U.N. if Peking is admitted.

SEN.-ELECT PETER H. BEHR
A cautious first year

A CAUTIOUS NOTE

Behr Takes Prospective View Of His Senate Job

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Sen.-elect Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley is about to get down to the real business of legislating, but he is determined to walk quietly, at least "for a decent interval."

The Senate, after all, still respects seniority and expects its newcomers to know their place. And Behr clearly intends to benefit from the example of Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, who alienated fellow senators two years ago with a blizzard of bills and complaints about how he did not like the way they ran the upper house.

Behr, in an interview with the Independent-Journal, outlined his preliminary legislative program, but stressed that he would welcome seeing many of its proposals authored by senior senators.

A good measure of his caution was the role he saw for himself in the major environmental bill expected during the coming session — control of California's coastline. "I am not going to thrust my way into any coastal bill," Behr insisted.

This role, of course, would be contrary to the ones he took as a key man in the successful citizen campaigns to save San Francisco Bay and Point Reyes National Seashore.

Behr outlined more than a dozen bills he said he would either introduce or want to help pass, ranging from several to speed justice, protect the environment, cut campaign costs, lessen the impact of San Quentin Prison on Marin taxpayers and increase welfare grants to children.

He said he hoped "to introduce only a reasonable number of bills, perhaps 20 to 25, excluding more routine local bills." The average load carried by each senator last session was 36 bills.

One bill Behr said he would not carry, and one which he would fight if it were introduced, was any bill that would dissolve the Golden Gate Bridge District. Praising the district for "taking hold and acting boldly and with imagination," he declared the district should be "left strictly alone" so it can tackle transportation problems.

Opponents of the bridge district long have favored its dissolution once its bonds are retired in 1971.

Behr proposed the following bills, although he cautioned that many of them were based on "very preliminary thinking."

APPEALS — Create a new division within the district courts of appeal to provide immediate appeal from convictions for major felonies. Behr, an attorney, said the major delay in criminal prosecutions often is in the appeal process, not in the trial. Faster prosecution would help deter crime, he said. The new division would handle appeals from convictions which "pose particular threats to society," such as the use of explosives, first degree murder, kidnapping, assault on police and wholesale possession or peddling of hard narcotics.

JURIES — Allow seven-member juries for some civil cases and for all misdemeanor cases, a move that would cut court costs and save time.

POLICE — Establish a state police academy, with training for local police forces emphasizing preventive police work. Behr acknowledged that such a bill, because of its cost and controversial nature, would have to be carried by a senior senator, but that he wanted to "play a part" in its passage.

ELECTION — Move the primary election from the first Tuesday in June to the second Tuesday after the first Monday in September, a change designed to cut campaign costs. Behr, who spent $134,548 getting elected, said that "if you have anything to say, you should be able to say it within this time (between September and the general election in November)."

EXPENDITURES — Set a limit on campaign expenditures for all elected offices, the limit varying with the office. Enforcement would be through requiring candidates to report expenses in detail, which Behr said would be easier to check than the current requirement that they also report contributions.

MEDI-CAL — Appropriate state funds to reimburse counties for their costs under Medi-Cal so that "counties are not holding the bag."

FUEL — Require public and private vehicle fleets of 10 or more to be modified to use propane or natural gas, which produces far less air pollutants than gasoline-powered vehicles.

LIONS — Close the season on mountain lions, which are a vanishing species, and appropriate a small sum to pay ranchers for proven damage to their livestock from the lions.

ABALONE — Bar SCUBA divers from taking abalone, a practice that conservationists say could eradicate abalone from state waters.

SAN QUENTIN — Require the state to pay its full share of Marin County's cost for handling court prosecution of convicts from San Quentin Prison. The state now pays "so late and so grudgingly that it creates a problem," Behr said. He also suggested rotating the court duties among all Bay Area counties to spread the burden.

CHILDREN — Increase, at an annual cost of $60 million, the state's welfare grants to children under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. Almost one million children, or 12 per cent of the children in California, are on AFDC, Behr said. Current grants are based on the cost of living in 1957, but the cost of living has inflated by 30 per cent since then. BRIDGE — Stop plans to go ahead with construction of a Southern Crossing bridge between San Francisco and Alameda. Bridges for vehicular traffic, Behr said, are an "anachronistic solution to moving people."

FREEWAYS — Remove from the state freeway system the proposed Napa Valley freeway, and speed construction of the Sears Point freeway.

Banner Day For Young Fishermen

Fishing San Francisco Bay off the Tiburon shore on Tuesday, Mark and Dwight Devereaux had a banner afternoon. First, Mark, age 14, hooked and landed a 6-foot-4, 100-pound sturgeon, and then Dwight, 12, took a 5-foot-2, 60-pounder.

Mark's took two hours to land, with the help of Dwight and a friend, Russ Kennedy, who went into the water to pull it in. Mark demonstrated his fishing prowess by taking the huge fish on a 30-pound test line, using a surf rod and a spinning reel. Dwight needed only a half hour to land his.

The boys learned their techniques from Manuel Garcia, a custodian at Del Mar School in Tiburon, who unfortunately wasn't on hand to see his efforts pay off. But he helped transport the fish to the Devereaux home later, and supervised the cleaning of them.

ORIENTAL CALENDAR

Luck And Disaster In Year Of Boar

TOKYO (UPI)—1971 is Ronald Reagan's year. It also is Hubert Humphrey's year, according to people who take a serious view of the traditional Chinese-Japanese calendar.

Both the Republican governor of California and the Democratic Senator from Minnesota were born in 1911, a "Year of the Boar" in the old calendar Japan and China used until less than 100 years ago.

1971 will be the sixth "Year of the Boar" in what the western calendar calls the 20th century. Hence it will be important for all persons born in "boar" years—1911, 1923, 1935, 1947, and 1959.

Along with Humphrey and Reagan, it will be a special year for actor Rory Calhoun and Academy Award-winning actress Anne Baxter (both born in 1923), and for Bobby Darin, Johnny Mathis, Elvis Presley, and former Dodger pitcher Sandy Koufax (all 1935).

In Asia, however, most people will look forward to the "Boar" year of 1971 with misgivings. Although "Boar" years in the 20th century have been years without war, they have been years of great natural disasters in Asia.

The great Tokyo earthquake that killed 143,000 occurred in a "Boar" year, 1923. In the previous "Boar" year of the Chinese calendar, 1911, a flood on the Yangtze river cost the lives of an estimated 100,000 Chinese. In 1959, the "Boar" jinx still held good for Japan, when more than 4,000 lives were lost in a typhoon on the main island of Honshu.

Western countries also have had upsets in "Boar" years. U. S. President Warren G. Harding died in office in a "Boar" year, 1923. The same year saw the mass shipwreck of seven U. S. Navy destroyers off Southern California. Louisiana Sen. Huey Long was assassinated in 1935, another "Boar" year.

The "Boar" is the last of 12 years, all named for animals, in the Chinese calendar cycle, comparable to the western decade.

According to Chinese folklore, 12 animals appeared at Buddha's death bed to pay their respects to him—the rat, cow, tigers, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, fowl, dog and boar.

Each was accorded the honor of having a year named after its species. The "Boar" years are the last in the cycle, which starts all over again in 1972 with "the year of the Rat."

Technically, New Year's Day of the "year of the Boar" won't occur till Jan. 27, under the old calendar which Japan operated until 1876.

Under the old system, New Year's Day varied, ranging from late January to early March. Based on the movements of the moon, the Chinese calendar always lost time.

"Leap month" had to be inserted every three years to get it back on schedule.

Nowdays, Japanese celebrate the New Year on Jan. 1, and boars and pigs already are splashed all over Japanese newspapers, magazines and store windows as advertising gimmicks.

People born in "Boar" years are supposed to be destined for great success or great disaster—the "bet it all" types who tend to "go for broke." The calendar, with its 12 year cycles, goes far back into Chinese history. Japan adopted it in the 6th or 7th century, historians believe. Today, almanacs based on it are still widely sold in Japan. People consult them to find "good" days for marriages, and suggestions for lucky names for their children.

CRLA Gets Reprieve For Reagan Veto Study

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan today approved a federal request for funding the California Rural Legal Assistance during a 30-day study period.

The announcement was made by Edwin Meese III, the governor's executive secretary, who said the federal officials wanted the time to study documents supporting Reagan's veto of the grant for the program's operation for the coming year.

Meese said the 30-day period would allow U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity officials "sufficient time to carefully examine" Reagan's documents.

Meese added:

"It had been anticipated from the beginning that the state would agree to additional funds for CRLA during the decision making and-or program phase-out period so that there could be an orderly transition into the privately financed legal services program for the rural poor which is now in the final stages of development by the Reagan administration."

In vetoing the grant for the coming year, Reagan said the past weekend that CRLA had been guilty of "gross and deliberate violations" of OEO regulations in using funds to fight "class" actions instead of using them to provide lawyers for individual poor people.

Heavy Holiday Airline Demand

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The slowdown in the nation's economy apparently has not affected air travel during the Christmas-New Year holiday season, according to Western Airlines.

The Los Angeles based airline said its advance bookings for the period Dec. 17-Jan. 4 included 185 extra flights which were added to meet the heavy demand. More extra flights were expected, with Western predicting a total of 200 for the period. This compares with 53 extra flights during last year's holiday season.

The 200 added flights will provide about 21,000 additional seats. Most of the flights are from Los Angeles and San Francisco to Acapulco, Mexico City, Honolulu, Hilo, Minneapolis/St. Paul and Vancouver, B.C.

Dog Grooming Plan Rejected

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has denied the appeal of a Petaluma man who sought to use a mobile home for dog grooming.

Robert M. McCulloch had appealed planning commission denial of his request to place a mobile home at 3606 South Ely Road for a dog-grooming business.

In unanimously denying his request Tuesday, the board noted the similar requests by McCulloch had been turned down in recent years.

Burglar Gets Year In Jail

Floyd Kermit Ware, 19, of San Francisco, has been sentenced in Marin Superior Court to a year in Marin County Jail for burglary, attempted burglary and possession of stolen property.

Judge E. Warren McGuire also gave Ware a suspended state prison sentence and placed him on three years' probation.

Ware admitted burglarizing a Tamalpais Valley house June 4, attempting to burglarize one in Belvedere May 16 and possessing property stolen from a Kent Woodlands house on July 21.

Looking Back On 1970 —A Year Of Confusions

It was not the best of years.

If 1970 is considered the start of a new decade (it really isn't, as it is the 10th year in the decade of the '60s), it cannot be regarded as an especially auspicious start.

Yet, there were hopeful signs.

POLICE STATIONS, schools, hospitals, even the Marin County Hall of Justice were bombed. Slayings of policemen reached a new high. A judge was killed in a Marin County shoot-out.

But for all this, the massive unrest that had marked 1968 and 1969 definitely eased up. The bombings and killings were the work of a few organized revolutionaries. Demonstrations involving great numbers of plain dissatisfied Americans were notably absent — except in the wake of the spring invasion of Cambodia. Campuses were much quieter in the new school year.

Complaints about "the system" continued; and in an election year, there was considerable noise from the left about the futility of the democratic process, and assorted threats about disrupting the elections to "prove" something or other. Yet the Nov. 3 turnout was among the highest for "off-year" elections, and was marked with no violence, no disruption. And the voters exhibited considerable discrimination (in its true meaning) in who they put into office.

THERE WERE ENDLESS cries about the environment. Nobody, said the complainers, does anything about it; the almighty dollar prevails; "the establishment" doesn't care, etc.

Yet, at all levels from local to federal, more was done about saving the environment in 1970 than in all the previous history of the United States. Tough new laws and regulations were enacted. Research in how to curb pollutants went ahead at almost breakneck speed. Districts and states cracked down on polluters with almost merciless disregard for the "almighty dollar," and even the federal government began to do the same. There was (as always) much complaint about the younger generation. But for every youngster who misbehaved at Woodstock or Altamont, thousands throughout the nation behaved so admirably as to put to shame all comparison between their generation and those of their parents or grandparents.

The thaw in the Cold War seemed to be turning into a new freeze as the Soviet Union, less embroiled with its giant communist neighbor to the east, hardened its line toward the West. Yet new West German leadership achieved agreements with Poland and East Germany marking the greatest gains toward peaceful co-existence in Europe since World War II.

OF COURSE it wasn't all roses. No year is.

Many problems remain for 1971 — and some of them undoubtedly will remain for later years. Worst of them is the war in Southeast Asia, from which President Nixon's policy of gradual disinvolvement seems to withdraw us at one point only to further involve us at another. Inflation, accompanied by spiraling costs of government, grew worse in 1970, bringing the nation and its people closer to the brink of financial disaster. The creaking processes of the courts proved unable to provide the speedy justice promised by the Constitution, and any real changes to improve them must await 1971 or another year. The narcotics problem continued undiminished. National morality, from hippie to highest level, showed little improvement.

Looking back, we must write down 1970 as a year of confusions, of fits and starts, of gains in some areas at the expense of standing still or losing ground in others.

But we need not write it down as a loss. Its gains can be held. And in 1971 we can turn our attention to the problems that 1970 failed to meet.

Welcome, New Year!

AFFAIRS OF STATE

If Law Is Badly Written, Why Blame It On The Courts?

By JACK COOPER

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Sometimes the lawmakers with whom we are surrounded seem to us to get a little uptight about that other branch of government, the courts.

What brings this to mind is state Sen. H. L. Richardson's statement to the press last month that the budget is out of whack because of a long series of court decisions which added people to the welfare rolls without regard to cost.

Well, old Bill may have something there, but it's something that can be carried too far.

WHEN THEY GET on this toot, legislators tend to sound as though they themselves had nothing whatsoever to do with the laws that are on the books.

Which is surprising, since we always thought it was the legislature's job to write the laws and, if they didn't work out the way they were intended, to come back next year and fix 'em so they did.

The difference between a court and a legislature is that a court has to reach a decision in the case at hand, based on the law it finds on the books; while a legislature, as we have all observed from time to time, can avoid a decision indefinitely simply by failing to legislate.

If the court finds that the words in the codes say that certain people are eligible for welfare and those weren't the people the legislature had in mind when it put those words in the codes, it seems to us this is just a signal to the legislators to get out their scissors and pastepot and do a little revising.

BY NOW we are all familiar with the case of the Alameda teacher who worked at her trade for 10 months of the year and sought some form of relief for the two months she was technically unemployed.

Apparently her application had some color of legality at least, and equally apparently there was sufficient latitude for interpretation by state welfare authorities, because the lady did not get the money, although the grant had been approved at a lower level.

If the matter had gone to court and the court had reared back and ruled, "Yep, it says here that she's eligible," we suspect Bill Richardson would have been busy putting out another press release.

A different approach was taken by Assemblyman Wadie Deddeh, D-Chula Vista, when he and a legislative committee considered the case of the ambitious school teacher:

"Well, by golly," Wadie said, in effect, "we'll just put a stop to this kind of shenanigan. When I get back to Sacramento in January, I'm going to introduce a bill to put all those teachers on a 12-month basis and that'll be the end of that."

A very valid approach, we feel.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Fee Not Major Reason For Change

The San Anselmo City Council received a "brickbat" in your Dec. 19 edition for withdrawing our application for 1970-1971 funds for a 701 planning grant. You alleged we took this action because of a $1,000 fee the city would have to pay to participate in a $20,000 grant.

When one is on the receiving end of one of your missiles, it is painful even when deserved. But in this instance we had done nothing to open the season. The "brickbat" asked for our real reason for rejecting the funds. There were two reasons, and these were clearly stated in my memorandum to the city council on this subject, again during the meeting, and in your press coverage the following day. The fee was emphasized but the reason of greatest substance was the requirement that we complete the project prior to May 15, 1971, and the potential liability if the city were unable to do so. There was a very real chance we could have lost both federal and city funds and still have had a plan to complete and pay for without any money to do it. As the weeks rolled by and delays loomed ahead, the risk became too great and the council made the decision to withdraw from the program.

The fee was definitely an irritant and we placed emphasis on it as a means of communicating to the higher jurisdictions that their policies are discriminatory to small cities. I would not, however, have recommended discontinuing the program on the basis of the fee alone. We need advance planning in San Anselmo too desperately for that type of luxury.

With the above, I hand you back your terra cotta projectile, hopefully not to be its recipient again unless it is deserved.

Transit Service Genuine Bargain

I have been extremely pleased with the excellent service offered by the Marin Transit bus, but I am surprised that so few people seem to be aware of this service.

Perhaps your paper can publish the bus schedule once again for those who missed it the first time. There are stops at the College of Marin, Marin General Hospital, San Rafael, the Civic Center, Northgate, Novato and San Marin High School. Drivers will stop to pick up or discharge passengers at any safe place along their routes.

The drivers are friendly and helpful and the service, itself, is convenient and inexpensive. The fare is 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children 16 and under. Surely, this is the greatest bargain in the entire Bay area.

This bus service is a vital necessity for the elderly, young people, College of Marin students and many others in Marin County. My family and I appreciate this service, and urge more people to take advantage of it.

Too Much About Angela Davis

What did Judge Haley's family do for Christmas? Was there a reunion, sans one?

Whatever your reasoning, your coverage of Miss (Angela) Davis at the holidays must seem a macabre present to the Haley family. The ghost of Christmas Present must indeed have been the judge, watching with dismay the avid pleasure you find in Angela's good spirits. You have just juxtaposed "victim" and "accused" — you've totally transposed them.

It's quite proper that Miss Davis be bedded, boarded, protected and even amused by our tax dollars. But must our dimes for your newspaper also be to her benefit? If this kind of prejudicial reporting continues until her trial, how will it be possible to find a juror who hasn't been drenched in maudlin emotionalism?

I offer three suggestions for your New Year: (1) That you give equal space to the victims and families of the San Rafael shootout along with space given to Miss Davis, or (2) that you ballot your readers as to whether they would prefer pertinent facts of Miss Davis' incarceration only, or whether they really do want to read every detail of her daily life. And (3) that reporter David Dietz be encouraged to take up accounting or some other occupation in which objectivity is not required.

Two Dialogues Involving Justice

Now that we have Angela Davis — what in the hell do we have?

Justice in this case has a central theme in two dialogues — a dispute between two philosophies: in the one Society and in the other Angela Davis, perhaps a victim of the first philosophy. However, a fundamental character recurs again and again with little change, except in the personalities and vocabularies of the disputants — Justice.

Having known Judge Harold Haley personally, I can only recant his philosophy: Justice for one, justice for all and the Almighty being the only judge.

High Repair Costs Hike Insurance

Your editorial of Dec. 16, entitled "Insurance Reform Faces Fight By Some Lawyers" is not factual and is grossly unfair.

The label "reform" is an excellent euphemism and plaintiff's trial attorneys will not fight any reform in the automobile insurance field where the results would be beneficial to the crippled and maimed victims of automobile accidents. For example, the American Trial Lawyers Association is actively attempting to improve methods of expediting court trials which would actually be a useful reform.

Your implication that large personal injury awards are the primary reason for climbing insurance rates and that one-third of this money is pocketed by personal injury lawyers is grossly misleading. Recent insurance statistics reflect that the biggest claim cost is not that of settling claims resulting from serious accidents, but the repair of physical damage to automobiles resulting from relatively minor accidents.

Please note that lawyers are not getting one-third of those costs.

Mediterranean History Repeats Itself — But Stakes Get Higher

TUNIS — Except for the persistent recurrence of human folly it would be difficult, if not impossible, to document the ancient cliche that history repeats itself. Yet the stage sets for the great historic confrontations tend to have a fateful similarity, and nowhere is this more evident than in the Mediterranean basin.

The power of the Soviet Union versus the power of the United States in the Mediterranean means, if the pessimists are right, a head-on collision in the not-too-distant future. Only a short time ago the American Sixth Fleet was the supreme power. Today the cry of alarm is that Russian naval power, both surface and subsurface, has outstripped that of the United States, with the Soviet Union having bases where a few years ago none existed.

The buildup, the cries of alarm, the threats and counter-threats, will go on, suggesting a similar drama that occurred here more than 2,000 years ago. The power of Rome versus the power of Africa, with Carthage as its center, was a confrontation marking the course of history far into the future.

FOR MORE than a century Rome and Carthage had contended for supremacy in the Mediterranean. The Roman hardliners were highly emotional, denouncing Carthage as a mortal peril to Rome, which must therefore be destroyed.

The climax came in 202 B.C. in a battle between the Roman forces led by Scipio and the Carthaginians with Hannibal as their commander.

Francis H. Russell, U.S. ambassador to Tunisia from 1960 to 1969, quotes the greatest of Roman historians, Livy, as saying the battle "decided whether Rome or Carthage was to give laws to the nations." Many historians believe it was the most important battle of all time.

Scipio was victorious, carrying the day in spite of Hannibal's 80 elephants and an army familiar with the terrain. Rome was to rule the then-known world for at least three centuries. The city of Carthage survived for a time until Cato and the extremists prevailed and it was completely razed, the population massacred, and the site sown with salt.

ON THIS North African shore, with that battlefield and the ruins of Rome and Carthage as a constant reminder, are those who see a tragic parallel today in the confrontation between Russian and American power in the Mediterranean.

Why, the American visitor is asked, do you diminish your power in this sea which is so critical for your future? Why did you give up your bases in Morocco? Wherever you pull out a vacuum is created and the Russians move in. We are seeing this happen all around the Mediterranean.

To draw a parallel between 202 B.C. and 1971 is to ignore the changes that science and technology have wrought in the 20th century. Ever present behind the confrontation today is the mushroom cloud, with its threat of extermination not for one city but for mankind. The equivalent of the sack of Carthage is annihilation for millions in innumerable cities at the push of a button.

WHY THE RUSSIANS were able to increase their global power with a Mediterranean force rivaling that of the United States is no mystery. Over a half-dozen years the U.S. was putting $25 billion annually into a futile war in Vietnam. The cost to the Soviet Union of aiding Communist allies in Southeast Asia may have been as high as $1 billion a year.

This is the margin that enabled them to funnel resources into nuclear-powered submarines and surface ships, missile and missile bases on the shores of a sea that has seen so much of history over the millenia.

One thing is certain: If a clash comes out of this latest confrontation, there will be no empire to rule.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Cuba, Russia Patch Up Brief Estrangement

By K.C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union and Cuba are getting closer together again after a prolonged period of marked coolness bordering on estrangement.

Delegations have been coming and going between Havana and Moscow and a new trade arrangement has been negotiated involving new Soviet commitments.

Little has emerged as to whether the Kremlin has also made new political and military commitments to the regime of Fidel Castro.

Russia has in the past virtually sustained Cuba's ailing economy, to the tune of about $1 million a day.

In addition Russia has been the chief supplier of arms and equipment, with China adding a trickle.

Fidel Castro, fiery and independent-minded, has been in ideological conflict with Moscow over the past year or two. He has been arguing with the Kremlin in favor of his own special brand of communism and has on occasions demonstrated his disagreement with the Soviets by staying away from major functions in Moscow.

There was a time when he was leaning over to the side of Mao Tse-tung. But he soon cooled off noticeably, resenting Peking's attempts to tell him what to do and how to do it. More recently the Cuban pendulum has swung back again toward Moscow.

The Kremlin, evidently relieved by the shift, has lost little time in rebuilding old links and re-opening former channels.

To what extent recent Russian military moves — which sparked reports of plans for Russian nuclear submarine bases in Cuba — are part of the new Soviet-Cuba cooperation is a matter for diplomatic speculation. The coincidence is notable and in the view of diplomatic observers could be significant.

ORIENTAL CALENDAR

Luck And Disaster In Year Of Boar

TOKYO (UPI)—1971 is Ronald Reagan's year. It also is Hubert Humphrey's year, according to people who take a serious view of the traditional Chinese-Japanese calendar.

Both the Republican governor of California and the Democratic Senator from Minnesota were born in 1911, a "Year of the Boar" in the old calendar Japan and China used until less than 100 years ago.

1971 will be the sixth "Year of the Boar" in what the western calendar calls the 20th century. Hence it will be important for all persons born in "boar" years—1911, 1923, 1935, 1947, and 1959.

Along with Humphrey and Reagan, it will be a special year for actor Rory Calhoun and Academy Award-winning actress Anne Baxter (both born in 1923), and for Bobby Darin, Johnny Mathis, Elvis Presley, and former Dodger pitcher Sandy Koufax (all 1935).

In Asia, however, most people will look forward to the "Boar" year of 1971 with misgivings. Although "Boar" years in the 20th century have been years without war, they have been years of great natural disasters in Asia.

The great Tokyo earthquake that killed 143,000 occurred in a "Boar" year, 1923. In the previous "Boar" year of the Chinese calendar, 1911, a flood on the Yangtze river cost the lives of an estimated 100,000 Chinese. In 1959, the "Boar" jinx still held good for Japan, when more than 4,000 lives were lost in a typhoon on the main island of Honshu.

Western countries also have had upsets in "Boar" years. U. S. President Warren G. Harding died in office in a "Boar" year, 1923. The same year saw the mass shipwreck of seven U. S. Navy destroyers off Southern California. Louisiana Sen. Huey Long was assassinated in 1935, another "Boar" year.

The "Boar" is the last of 12 years, all named for animals, in the Chinese calendar cycle, comparable to the western decade.

According to Chinese folklore, 12 animals appeared at Buddha's death bed to pay their respects to him—the rat, cow, tigers, rabbit, dragon, snake, horse, sheep, monkey, fowl, dog and boar.

Each was accorded the honor of having a year named after its species. The "Boar" years are the last in the cycle, which starts all over again in 1972 with "the year of the Rat."

Technically, New Year's Day of the "year of the Boar" won't occur till Jan. 27, under the old calendar which Japan operated until 1876.

Under the old system, New Year's Day varied, ranging from late January to early March. Based on the movements of the moon, the Chinese calendar always lost time.

"Leap month" had to be inserted every three years to get it back on schedule.

Nowdays, Japanese celebrate the New Year on Jan. 1, and boars and pigs already are splashed all over Japanese newspapers, magazines and store windows as advertising gimmicks.

People born in "Boar" years are supposed to be destined for great success or great disaster—the "bet it all" types who tend to "go for broke." The calendar, with its 12 year cycles, goes far back into Chinese history. Japan adopted it in the 6th or 7th century, historians believe. Today, almanacs based on it are still widely sold in Japan. People consult them to find "good" days for marriages, and suggestions for lucky names for their children.

CRLA Gets Reprieve For Reagan Veto Study

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan today approved a federal request for funding the California Rural Legal Assistance during a 30-day study period.

The announcement was made by Edwin Meese III, the governor's executive secretary, who said the federal officials wanted the time to study documents supporting Reagan's veto of the grant for the program's operation for the coming year.

Meese said the 30-day period would allow U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity officials "sufficient time to carefully examine" Reagan's documents.

Meese added:

"It had been anticipated from the beginning that the state would agree to additional funds for CRLA during the decision making and-or program phase-out period so that there could be an orderly transition into the privately financed legal services program for the rural poor which is now in the final stages of development by the Reagan administration."

In vetoing the grant for the coming year, Reagan said the past weekend that CRLA had been guilty of "gross and deliberate violations" of OEO regulations in using funds to fight "class" actions instead of using them to provide lawyers for individual poor people.

Heavy Holiday Airline Demand

LOS ANGELES (BW) — The slowdown in the nation's economy apparently has not affected air travel during the Christmas-New Year holiday season, according to Western Airlines.

The Los Angeles based airline said its advance bookings for the period Dec. 17-Jan. 4 included 185 extra flights which were added to meet the heavy demand. More extra flights were expected, with Western predicting a total of 200 for the period. This compares with 53 extra flights during last year's holiday season.

The 200 added flights will provide about 21,000 additional seats. Most of the flights are from Los Angeles and San Francisco to Acapulco, Mexico City, Honolulu, Hilo, Minneapolis St. Paul and Vancouver, B.C.

Dog Grooming Plan Rejected

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors has denied the appeal of a Petaluma man who sought to use a mobile home for dog grooming.

Robert M. McCulloch had appealed planning commission denial of his request to place a mobile home at 3606 South Ely Road for a dog-grooming business.

In unanimously denying his request Tuesday, the board noted the similar requests by McCulloch had been turned down in recent years.

Forecasters Expect Home Building To Increase In 1971

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —After two bleak years, the outlook for housing in 1971 is good. It should be easier next year to obtain a place to live.

Most forecasters expect home building to increase next year—possibly to the highest level in 2 years. Mortgage interest rates are expected to decline somewhat and the supply of money for home loans should be greater.

It makes a happy contrast to 1969 and early 1970, when housing construction plumetted and mortgage money either was not available at all or was more expensive than it ever had been.

The two-year slump is generally blamed on efforts by the federal reserve to combat inflation by clamping a tight lid on the money supply.

Housing predictably was hardest hit by the tight money policy. Most business borrowers were able to pay high interest rates for loans they needed by passing the higher cost on to customers. Home loans were unable to compete for money.

Home building dropped steadily throughout 1969. The seasonally adjusted annual rate of housing starts fell to 1 million in January, 1970, about half the rate for January, 1969.

The rate began to improve in 1970—not fast enough to make it a good year but enough to provide a good springboard for 1971. Housing starts were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.7 million units in November.

The National Association of Home Builders predicts private housing starts will total between 1.6 and 1.65 million units for 1971 as a whole. That would be about 14 per cent better than 1970's annual total of 1.45 million units and could be the second highest total on record, exceeded only by 1.95 million units in 1950.

Mortgage money was scarce for most of 1969 and during the first part of 1970. Last February, only 39 per cent of the regional offices of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) reported adequate supplies of funds available in their areas. By November, the figure was 81 per cent.

The interest ceiling on FHA and Veterans Administration home loans was cut from 8 1-2 to 8 per cent on Dec. 1.

Allen P. Stults, vice president of the American Bankers Association, predicts that housing funds will become more readily available next year and that interest rates will decline a bit more.

Strangely enough, one reason for optimism about housing and mortgage finance next year is the recession jitters which affect the rest of the economy.

Consumers, as they usually do when they fear a recession, are saving more of their money. Government figures indicate about 7.5 per cent of personal income is being set aside as savings, about 1.5 percentage points above normal.

A highly-respected University of Michigan survey predicts that consumers will continue to be cautious for the first few months of 1971 at least. Savings should continue at a high rate.

The Nixon administration had been counting on a wave of consumer buying to buoy up the economy and help combat a business slump and the unemployment which accompanied it. If predictions of higher than normal savings next year are accurate, it would hinder administration efforts to stimulate the overall economy.

But a high savings rate would be a bonanza for housing. With money piling up in banks and savings and loan associations, lenders would be under increasing pressure to make mortgage loans. That should push down interest rates.

Catherine E. Martini, director of the research department of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, predicts that the volume of single-family home construction will inrrease in 1971.

There has never been a time in our history when the inventory of housing was so varied, adaptable, or of such a high average quality as that comprising the current standing stock, and the broad-based trend toward improvement will accumulate next year," Mrs. Martini said.

She added that construction of lower-priced housing probably will increase next year.

Despite the anticipated improvement in the housing picture, the nation continues to renege on its promise —made in 1946 —of a decent home in a suitable neighborhood for every family.

In 1968, Congress set a goal of construction of 26 million new or rehabiltated units in 10 years to finally make good on the 22-year-old promise. But construction in 1969 and 1970 has fallen well below the 2.6 million annual average needed to meet the goal, even counting production of mobile homes.

Canada, Italy Send Shock Into Formosa

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist China faces 1971 warily after a diplomatically disastrous 1970.

After holding off for 20 years, two major Western powers, Canada and Italy, switched diplomatic recognition from Taipei to Peking within a matter of a month.

The Nationalist China seat was saved because an earlier vote had affirmed 66-52 that the matter was "an important question" and required a two-thirds majority to change the representation.

But the later vote shocked even the most pessimistic officials in Taipei and forced many to accept the possibility Peking may win the China seat in 1971.

Many government officials are now seriously pondering Nationalist China's future if their country, a charter member, is voted out, and Communist China, an aggressor condemned by the U.N., is admitted.

A great majority of the people are not even aware of the looming threat, and of those who are, many seem to hold a "so what" attitude. Public apathy can be attributed to the booming economy and unprecedented political stability that has continued to raise the people's standard of living in a society of peace and order.

Despite the indirect effect the threatened American recession has on some of the factories in Taiwan, the island's economic growth is expected to continue at a rate of 9.5 per cent against 10.2 per cent last year.

The per capita income rose from last year's $261 to an expected $292 this year.

Color television has taken the place of black and white sets as a standard gift in marriage dowries. The sale of color TV sets has been so brisk that an 19-inch model with the production cost of $100 is sold for $600.

Taiwan probably has become the only piece of land in China's more than 4,000 years of history where the people have enjoyed peace and prosperity for 21 consecutive years.

A question is, would the loss of its U.N. seat affect the country's status, and well being?

The government is adamant in its opposition to any "Two China" U.N. policy now or in the foreseeable future. It will break diplomatic relations with any country which recognizes Peking and has stated it will withdraw from the U.N. if Peking is admitted.

Pundits Focus Predictions On Future Of Marin In 1972

About this time of year big name television reporters gather around a table, rehash the events of the past year, gaze into their crystal balls and tell us what's likely to happen in the coming year.

This makes for better entertainment than reruns of "What's My Line," but it is national in scope and doesn't particularly serve Marin readers.

So, as a public service, we imagined what would happen if they focused on Marin news and the result was:

CRONKHITE — What sort of future do you see for the McInnis regime in 1971, Eric?

SEVAREID — It should be a stable year. The Zucker forces have retreated and the Baptiste movement won't reach full bloom until next year, so there shouldn't be any major shift of power.

COLLINGWOOD — There is, of course, the problem of what to do with the old county courthouse. This is a sore point which has brought charges of bungling from some quarters, and will not be forgotten by the opposition in the coming year.

MUDD — There is growing dissent because of the tight security measures at the seat of government, which will have to be eased up. People feel it smacks of a police state, and besides it's costing them money.

CRONKHITE — Do you foresee any danger of the city-states entering into a war against the county rulers, Dan?

RATHER — There already have been skirmishes, on police and fire protection, and there could be a full-scale clash.

CRONKHITE — In that event, who do you think would come out on top?

RATHER — I believe, if some accord is not reached, the city-states in time would gain all county territory, leaving the McInnis regime to govern a few roads and a few county parks.

SEVAREID — Gentlemen, don't forget there is also the specter of regional government which could supercede county government. With city-states applying force in one direction and regional government in another, county government could be squeezed out of existence.

CRONKHITE — Let's get away from government for a moment and explore some other major problems in Marin . . . for instance, the cost of living, among the highest in the U.S.

MUDD — Everyone of course has trouble with the cost of living, but in Marin the big hurdle is the cost of housing, in many cases beyond the means of the work force.

RATHER — I believe it's so severe that in a few years, there will be as many people commuting into Marin to work as there are now commuting out of Marin to work.

SEVAREID — That should make all the plans for transit, ferries and busses worthwhile, for then workers could be transported both ways.

RATHER — It goes beyond that. It's a social question. Is it beneficial to Marin to have people who work in Marin live elsewhere, and the people who work elsewhere live in Marin? I think not.

CRONKHITE — Gentlemen, we're running out of time and we've left many matters untouched, but before we leave, I'd like to sum up our discussion. Some of you feel that county government is on the way out, but not too soon, and working people are on the way out, probably sooner, because of the cost of living. Thank you and good night.

ART BUCHWALD

How Did Artie Die While Watching Football On TV?

WASHINGTON — As detective Peter Minderman stared at the color television set in the simple living room of the Socalaw house, he was baffled.

The body of Artie Socalaw was still in the same chair where he had died. All the suspects in the case were also in the living room. There was Artie's wife Emma, and Artie's best friends: George Stevens Jr., Chuck McDermott, Sam Markay and Tony Valenti.

"All right," said detective Minderman, "let's start from the beginning. You guys began watching pro football two days ago on Saturday at noon, right in this living room."

"THAT'S CORRECT," said Stevens. "Then suddenly Sunday night, somewhere during the third quarter of the Raider game, we noticed there was something wrong with Artie. We waited until the game ended at 7 and then went over to his chair. He was dead."

"You can imagine what a shock this was, coming after the 49ers' defeat of the Minnesota Vikings," Chuck McDermott added.

"But," said detective Minderman, "the coroner said Artie had been dead for 24 hours. How come no one discovered it before then?"

"Well," said Sam Markay, "Artie was always quiet when he watched a pro football game. He wasn't one of these guys who holler and shout after each play. So when he didn't say anything for 24 hours, we figured he was just suffering because Dallas beat the Detroit Lions."

"When you're watching pro football on TV," said Tony Valenti, "you don't notice whether people are breathing or not."

DETECTIVE MINDERMAN looked over at Mrs. Socalaw. "When did you last see your husband alive?"

"You mean moving around and that sort of thing?" Mrs. Socalaw asked. "I believe it was sometime in July before the exhibition games started. He hasn't left that chair since the Redskins played the Patriots in a pre-season game. I don't wish to dispute the coroner's report, but I thought Artie was dead three months ago."

"That's not true," Stevens said. "Just before the Baltimore-Cincinnati game, Artie asked me if I wanted a piece of fruitcake."

"FRUITCAKE?" detective Minderman said. "Where did the fruitcake come from?"

"I made it," said Mrs. Socalaw. "I always make fruitcake during the holiday season. It helps me forget."

"Did anyone else eat the fruitcake?"

"I did," said McDermott.

"No ill effects?" Minderman asked.

"None that I can tell," McDermott said.

"Damn," said detective Minderman. "There goes the poisoned-fruitcake theory."

"DID HE EAT anything else?" Minderman asked.

"I gave him a tuna fish sandwich," McDermott said.

"A what?"

"A tuna fish sandwich. You see Mrs. Socalaw refuses to feed us, so we each bring our own food. This time my wife made me a tuna fish sandwich."

"But don't you know what's going on with tuna fish?" Minderman asked.

"I'm not much for fishing. The only sport I watch is football," McDermott said.

"Your wife tried to knock you off with a tuna fish mercury-poisoned sandwich," detective Minderman said. "Only Artie became the victim, instead of you."

"I knew she was sore at me," McDermott said, "but I didn't think she'd go this far."

MINDERMAN WENT to the phone and called the McDermott house. "Mrs. McDermott, I'm sending someone over to arrest you for the tuna fish murder of Artie Socalaw."

"Don't worry, Gloria," Mrs. Socalaw grabbed the phone and shouted, "I'll testify in your behalf. We can always say it was a crime of passion."

Hope Sees War Ending In Year

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI)—Bob Hope returned from his seventh Christmas holiday trip to South Vietnam Tuesday and said "I think it'll be my last trip" to the Southeast Asian nation.

"Vietnamization is working," he said after his arrival at Van Nuys airport aboard a U.S. Air Force military transport.

"I talked to a lot of people over there—people who ought to know. I think we'll be out of there by the end of next year."

Forecasters Expect Home Building To Increase In 1971

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —After two bleak years, the outlook for housing in 1971 is good. It should be easier next year to obtain a place to live.

Most forecasters expect home building to increase next year—possibly to the highest level in 2 years. Mortgage interest rates are expected to decline somewhat and the supply of money for home loans should be greater.

It makes a happy contrast to 1969 and early 1970, when housing construction plumetted and mortgage money either was not available at all or was more expensive than it ever had been.

The two-year slump is generally blamed on efforts by the federal reserve to combat inflation by clamping a tight lid on the money supply.

Housing predictably was hardest hit by the tight money policy. Most business borrowers were able to pay high interest rates for loans they needed by passing the higher cost on to customers. Home loans were unable to compete for money.

Home building dropped steadily throughout 1969. The seasonally adjusted annual rate of housing starts fell to 1 million in January, 1970, about half the rate for January, 1969.

The rate began to improve in 1970—not fast enough to make it a good year but enough to provide a good springboard for 1971. Housing starts were at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.7 million units in November.

The National Association of Home Builders predicts private housing starts will total between 1.6 and 1.65 million units for 1971 as a whole. That would be about 14 per cent better than 1970's annual total of 1.45 million units and could be the second highest total on record, exceeded only by 1.95 million units in 1950.

Mortgage money was scarce for most of 1969 and during the first part of 1970. Last February, only 39 per cent of the regional offices of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) reported adequate supplies of funds available in their areas. By November, the figure was 81 per cent.

The interest ceiling on FHA and Veterans Administration home loans was cut from 8 1-2 to 8 per cent on Dec. 1.

Allen P. Stults, vice president of the American Bankers Association, predicts that housing funds will become more readily available next year and that interest rates will decline a bit more.

Strangely enough, one reason for optimism about housing and mortgage finance next year is the recession jitters which affect the rest of the economy.

Consumers, as they usually do when they fear a recession, are saving more of their money. Government figures indicate about 7.5 per cent of personal income is being set aside as savings, about 1.5 percentage points above normal.

A highly-respected University of Michigan survey predicts that consumers will continue to be cautious for the first few months of 1971 at least. Savings should continue at a high rate.

The Nixon administration had been counting on a wave of consumer buying to buoy up the economy and help combat a business slump and the unemployment which accompanied it. If predictions of higher than normal savings next year are accurate, it would hinder administration efforts to stimulate the overall economy.

But a high savings rate would be a bonanza for housing. With money piling up in banks and savings and loan associations, lenders would be under increasing pressure to make mortgage loans. That should push down interest rates.

Catherine E. Martini, director of the research department of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, predicts that the volume of single-family home construction will inrrease in 1971.

There has never been a time in our history when the inventory of housing was so varied, adaptable, or of such a high average quality as that comprising the current standing stock, and the broad-based trend toward improvement will accumulate next year," Mrs. Martini said.

She added that construction of lower-priced housing probably will increase next year.

Despite the anticipated improvement in the housing picture, the nation continues to renege on its promise —made in 1946 —of a decent home in a suitable neighborhood for every family.

In 1968, Congress set a goal of construction of 26 million new or rehabiltated units in 10 years to finally make good on the 22-year-old promise. But construction in 1969 and 1970 has fallen well below the 2.6 million annual average needed to meet the goal, even counting production of mobile homes.

Looking Back On 1970 —A Year Of Confusions

It was not the best of years.

If 1970 is considered the start of a new decade (it really isn't, as it is the 10th year in the decade of the '60s), it cannot be regarded as an especially auspicious start.

Yet, there were hopeful signs.

POLICE STATIONS, schools, hospitals, even the Marin County Hall of Justice were bombed. Slayings of policemen reached a new high. A judge was killed in a Marin County shoot-out.

But for all this, the massive unrest that had marked 1968 and 1969 definitely eased up. The bombings and killings were the work of a few organized revolutionaries. Demonstrations involving great numbers of plain dissatisfied Americans were notably absent — except in the wake of the spring invasion of Cambodia. Campuses were much quieter in the new school year.

Complaints about "the system" continued; and in an election year, there was considerable noise from the left about the futility of the democratic process, and assorted threats about disrupting the elections to "prove" something or other. Yet the Nov. 3 turnout was among the highest for "off-year" elections, and was marked with no violence, no disruption. And the voters exhibited considerable discrimination (in its true meaning) in who they put into office.

THERE WERE ENDLESS cries about the environment. Nobody, said the complainers, does anything about it; the almighty dollar prevails; "the establishment" doesn't care, etc.

Yet, at all levels from local to federal, more was done about saving the environment in 1970 than in all the previous history of the United States. Tough new laws and regulations were enacted. Research in how to curb pollutants went ahead at almost breakneck speed. Districts and states cracked down on polluters with almost merciless disregard for the "almighty dollar," and even the federal government began to do the same. There was (as always) much complaint about the younger generation. But for every youngster who misbehaved at Woodstock or Altamont, thousands throughout the nation behaved so admirably as to put to shame all comparison between their generation and those of their parents or grandparents.

The thaw in the Cold War seemed to be turning into a new freeze as the Soviet Union, less embroiled with its giant communist neighbor to the east, hardened its line toward the West. Yet new West German leadership achieved agreements with Poland and East Germany marking the greatest gains toward peaceful co-existence in Europe since World War II.

OF COURSE it wasn't all roses. No year is.

Many problems remain for 1971 — and some of them undoubtedly will remain for later years. Worst of them is the war in Southeast Asia, from which President Nixon's policy of gradual disinvolvement seems to withdraw us at one point only to further involve us at another. Inflation, accompanied by spiraling costs of government, grew worse in 1970, bringing the nation and its people closer to the brink of financial disaster. The creaking processes of the courts proved unable to provide the speedy justice promised by the Constitution, and any real changes to improve them must await 1971 or another year. The narcotics problem continued undiminished. National morality, from hippie to highest level, showed little improvement.

Looking back, we must write down 1970 as a year of confusions, of fits and starts, of gains in some areas at the expense of standing still or losing ground in others.

But we need not write it down as a loss. Its gains can be held. And in 1971 we can turn our attention to the problems that 1970 failed to meet.

Welcome, New Year!

AFFAIRS OF STATE

If Law Is Badly Written, Why Blame It On The Courts?

By JACK COOPER

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Sometimes the lawmakers with whom we are surrounded seem to us to get a little uptight about that other branch of government, the courts.

What brings this to mind is state Sen. H. L. Richardson's statement to the press last month that the budget is out of whack because of a long series of court decisions which added people to the welfare rolls without regard to cost.

Well, old Bill may have something there, but it's something that can be carried too far.

WHEN THEY GET on this toot, legislators tend to sound as though they themselves had nothing whatsoever to do with the laws that are on the books.

Which is surprising, since we always thought it was the legislature's job to write the laws and, if they didn't work out the way they were intended, to come back next year and fix 'em so they did.

The difference between a court and a legislature is that a court has to reach a decision in the case at hand, based on the law it finds on the books; while a legislature, as we have all observed from time to time, can avoid a decision indefinitely simply by failing to legislate.

If the court finds that the words in the codes say that certain people are eligible for welfare and those weren't the people the legislature had in mind when it put those words in the codes, it seems to us this is just a signal to the legislators to get out their scissors and pastepot and do a little revising.

BY NOW we are all familiar with the case of the Alameda teacher who worked at her trade for 10 months of the year and sought some form of relief for the two months she was technically unemployed.

Apparently her application had some color of legality at least, and equally apparently there was sufficient latitude for interpretation by state welfare authorities, because the lady did not get the money, although the grant had been approved at a lower level.

If the matter had gone to court and the court had reared back and ruled, "Yep, it says here that she's eligible," we suspect Bill Richardson would have been busy putting out another press release.

A different approach was taken by Assemblyman Wadie Deddeh, D-Chula Vista, when he and a legislative committee considered the case of the ambitious school teacher:

"Well, by golly," Wadie said, in effect, "we'll just put a stop to this kind of shenanigan. When I get back to Sacramento in January, I'm going to introduce a bill to put all those teachers on a 12-month basis and that'll be the end of that."

A very valid approach, we feel.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Fee Not Major Reason For Change

The San Anselmo City Council received a "brickbat" in your Dec. 19 edition for withdrawing our application for 1970-1971 funds for a 701 planning grant. You alleged we took this action because of a $1,000 fee the city would have to pay to participate in a $20,000 grant.

When one is on the receiving end of one of your missiles, it is painful even when deserved. But in this instance we had done nothing to open the season. The "brickbat" asked for our real reason for rejecting the funds. There were two reasons, and these were clearly stated in my memorandum to the city council on this subject, again during the meeting, and in your press coverage the following day. The fee was emphasized but the reason of greatest substance was the requirement that we complete the project prior to May 15, 1971, and the potential liability if the city were unable to do so. There was a very real chance we could have lost both federal and city funds and still have had a plan to complete and pay for without any money to do it. As the weeks rolled by and delays loomed ahead, the risk became too great and the council made the decision to withdraw from the program.

The fee was definitely an irritant and we placed emphasis on it as a means of communicating to the higher jurisdictions that their policies are discriminatory to small cities. I would not, however, have recommended discontinuing the program on the basis of the fee alone. We need advance planning in San Anselmo too desperately for that type of luxury.

With the above, I hand you back your terra cotta projectile, hopefully not to be its recipient again unless it is deserved.

Transit Service Genuine Bargain

I have been extremely pleased with the excellent service offered by the Marin Transit bus, but I am surprised that so few people seem to be aware of this service.

Perhaps your paper can publish the bus schedule once again for those who missed it the first time. There are stops at the College of Marin, Marin General Hospital, San Rafael, the Civic Center, Northgate, Novato and San Marin High School. Drivers will stop to pick up or discharge passengers at any safe place along their routes.

The drivers are friendly and helpful and the service, itself, is convenient and inexpensive. The fare is 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children 16 and under. Surely, this is the greatest bargain in the entire Bay area.

This bus service is a vital necessity for the elderly, young people, College of Marin students and many others in Marin County. My family and I appreciate this service, and urge more people to take advantage of it.

Too Much About Angela Davis

What did Judge Haley's family do for Christmas? Was there a reunion, sans one?

Whatever your reasoning, your coverage of Miss (Angela) Davis at the holidays must seem a macabre present to the Haley family. The ghost of Christmas Present must indeed have been the judge, watching with dismay the avid pleasure you find in Angela's good spirits. You have just juxtaposed "victim" and "accused" — you've totally transposed them.

It's quite proper that Miss Davis be bedded, boarded, protected and even amused by our tax dollars. But must our dimes for your newspaper also be to her benefit? If this kind of prejudicial reporting continues until her trial, how will it be possible to find a juror who hasn't been drenched in maudlin emotionalism?

I offer three suggestions for your New Year: (1) That you give equal space to the victims and families of the San Rafael shootout along with space given to Miss Davis, or (2) that you ballot your readers as to whether they would prefer pertinent facts of Miss Davis' incarceration only, or whether they really do want to read every detail of her daily life. And (3) that reporter David Dietz be encouraged to take up accounting or some other occupation in which objectivity is not required.

JEAN MAHONEY
Fairfax.

Two Dialogues Involving Justice

Now that we have Angela Davis — what in the hell do we have?

Justice in this case has a central theme in two dialogues — a dispute between two philosophies: in the one Society and in the other Angela Davis, perhaps a victim of the first philosophy. However, a fundamental character recurs again and again with little change, except in the personalities and vocabularies of the disputants — Justice.

Having known Judge Harold Haley personally, I can only recant his philosophy: Justice for one, justice for all and the Almighty being the only judge.

High Repair Costs Hike Insurance

Your editorial of Dec. 16, entitled "Insurance Reform Faces Fight By Some Lawyers" is not factual and is grossly unfair.

The label "reform" is an excellent euphemism and plaintiff's trial attorneys will not fight any reform in the automobile insurance field where the results would be beneficial to the crippled and maimed victims of automobile accidents. For example, the American Trial Lawyers Association is actively attempting to improve methods of expediting court trials which would actually be a useful reform.

Your implication that large personal injury awards are the primary reason for climbing insurance rates and that one-third of this money is pocketed by personal injury lawyers is grossly misleading. Recent insurance statistics reflect that the biggest claim cost is not that of settling claims resulting from serious accidents, but the repair of physical damage to automobiles resulting from relatively minor accidents.

Please note that lawyers are not getting one-third of those costs.

Mediterranean History Repeats Itself — But Stakes Get Higher

TUNIS — Except for the persistent recurrence of human folly it would be difficult, if not impossible, to document the ancient cliche that history repeats itself. Yet the stage sets for the great historic confrontations tend to have a fateful similarity, and nowhere is this more evident than in the Mediterranean basin.

The power of the Soviet Union versus the power of the United States in the Mediterranean means, if the pessimists are right, a head-on collision in the not-too-distant future. Only a short time ago the American Sixth Fleet was the supreme power. Today the cry of alarm is that Russian naval power, both surface and subsurface, has outstripped that of the United States, with the Soviet Union having bases where a few years ago none existed.

The buildup, the cries of alarm, the threats and counter-threats, will go on, suggesting a similar drama that occurred here more than 2,000 years ago. The power of Rome versus the power of Africa, with Carthage as its center, was a confrontation marking the course of history far into the future.

FOR MORE than a century Rome and Carthage had contended for supremacy in the Mediterranean. The Roman hardliners were highly emotional, denouncing Carthage as a mortal peril to Rome, which must therefore be destroyed.

The climax came in 202 B.C. in a battle between the Roman forces led by Scipio and the Carthaginians with Hannibal as their commander.

Francis H. Russell, U.S. ambassador to Tunisia from 1960 to 1969, quotes the greatest of Roman historians, Livy, as saying the battle "decided whether Rome or Carthage was to give laws to the nations." Many historians believe it was the most important battle of all time.

Scipio was victorious, carrying the day in spite of Hannibal's 80 elephants and an army familiar with the terrain. Rome was to rule the then-known world for at least three centuries. The city of Carthage survived for a time until Cato and the extremists prevailed and it was completely razed, the population massacred, and the site sown with salt.

ON THIS North African shore, with that battlefield and the ruins of Rome and Carthage as a constant reminder, are those who see a tragic parallel today in the confrontation between Russian and American power in the Mediterranean.

Why, the American visitor is asked, do you diminish your power in this sea which is so critical for your future? Why did you give up your bases in Morocco? Wherever you pull out a vacuum is created and the Russians move in. We are seeing this happen all around the Mediterranean.

To draw a parallel between 202 B.C. and 1971 is to ignore the changes that science and technology have wrought in the 20th century. Ever present behind the confrontation today is the mushroom cloud, with its threat of extermination not for one city but for mankind. The equivalent of the sack of Carthage is annihilation for millions in innumerable cities at the push of a button.

WHY THE RUSSIANS were able to increase their global power with a Mediterranean force rivaling that of the United States is no mystery. Over a half-dozen years the U.S. was putting $25 billion annually into a futile war in Vietnam. The cost to the Soviet Union of aiding Communist allies in Southeast Asia may have been as high as $1 billion a year.

This is the margin that enabled them to funnel resources into nuclear-powered submarines and surface ships, missile and missile bases on the shores of a sea that has seen so much of history over the millenia.

One thing is certain: If a clash comes out of this latest confrontation, there will be no empire to rule.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Cuba, Russia Patch Up Brief Estrangement

By K.C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union and Cuba are getting closer together again after a prolonged period of marked coolness bordering on estrangement.

Delegations have been coming and going between Havana and Moscow and a new trade arrangement has been negotiated involving new Soviet commitments.

Little has emerged as to whether the Kremlin has also made new political and military commitments to the regime of Fidel Castro.

Russia has in the past virtually sustained Cuba's ailing economy, to the tune of about $1 million a day.

In addition Russia has been the chief supplier of arms and equipment, with China adding a trickle.

Fidel Castro, fiery and independent-minded, has been in ideological conflict with Moscow over the past year or two. He has been arguing with the Kremlin in favor of his own special brand of communism and has on occasions demonstrated his disagreement with the Soviets by staying away from major functions in Moscow.

There was a time when he was leaning over to the side of Mao Tse-tung. But he soon cooled off noticeably, resenting Peking's attempts to tell him what to do and how to do it. More recently the Cuban pendulum has swung back again toward Moscow.

The Kremlin, evidently relieved by the shift, has lost little time in rebuilding old links and re-opening former channels.

To what extent recent Russian military moves — which sparked reports of plans for Russian nuclear submarine bases in Cuba — are part of the new Soviet-Cuba cooperation is a matter for diplomatic speculation. The coincidence is notable and in the view of diplomatic observers could be significant.

Looking Back On 1970 —A Year Of Confusions

It was not the best of years.

If 1970 is considered the start of a new decade (it really isn't, as it is the 10th year in the decade of the '60s), it cannot be regarded as an especially auspicious start.

Yet, there were hopeful signs.

POLICE STATIONS, schools, hospitals, even the Marin County Hall of Justice were bombed. Slayings of policemen reached a new high. A judge was killed in a Marin County shoot-out.

But for all this, the massive unrest that had marked 1968 and 1969 definitely eased up. The bombings and killings were the work of a few organized revolutionaries. Demonstrations involving great numbers of plain dissatisfied Americans were notably absent — except in the wake of the spring invasion of Cambodia. Campuses were much quieter in the new school year.

Complaints about "the system" continued; and in an election year, there was considerable noise from the left about the futility of the democratic process, and assorted threats about disrupting the elections to "prove" something or other. Yet the Nov. 3 turnout was among the highest for "off-year" elections, and was marked with no violence, no disruption. And the voters exhibited considerable discrimination (in its true meaning) in who they put into office.

THERE WERE ENDLESS cries about the environment. Nobody, said the complainers, does anything about it; the almighty dollar prevails; "the establishment" doesn't care, etc.

Yet, at all levels from local to federal, more was done about saving the environment in 1970 than in all the previous history of the United States. Tough new laws and regulations were enacted. Research in how to curb pollutants went ahead at almost breakneck speed. Districts and states cracked down on polluters with almost merciless disregard for the "almighty dollar," and even the federal government began to do the same. There was (as always) much complaint about the younger generation. But for every youngster who misbehaved at Woodstock or Altamont, thousands throughout the nation behaved so admirably as to put to shame all comparison between their generation and those of their parents or grandparents.

The thaw in the Cold War seemed to be turning into a new freeze as the Soviet Union, less embroiled with its giant communist neighbor to the east, hardened its line toward the West. Yet new West German leadership achieved agreements with Poland and East Germany marking the greatest gains toward peaceful co-existence in Europe since World War II.

OF COURSE it wasn't all roses. No year is.

Many problems remain for 1971 — and some of them undoubtedly will remain for later years. Worst of them is the war in Southeast Asia, from which President Nixon's policy of gradual disinvolvement seems to withdraw us at one point only to further involve us at another. Inflation, accompanied by spiraling costs of government, grew worse in 1970, bringing the nation and its people closer to the brink of financial disaster. The creaking processes of the courts proved unable to provide the speedy justice promised by the Constitution, and any real changes to improve them must await 1971 or another year. The narcotics problem continued undiminished. National morality, from hippie to highest level, showed little improvement.

Looking back, we must write down 1970 as a year of confusions, of fits and starts, of gains in some areas at the expense of standing still or losing ground in others.

But we need not write it down as a loss. Its gains can be held. And in 1971 we can turn our attention to the problems that 1970 failed to meet.

Welcome, New Year!

AFFAIRS OF STATE

If Law Is Badly Written, Why Blame It On The Courts?

By JACK COOPER

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Sometimes the lawmakers with whom we are surrounded seem to us to get a little uptight about that other branch of government, the courts.

What brings this to mind is state Sen. H. L. Richardson's statement to the press last month that the budget is out of whack because of a long series of court decisions which added people to the welfare rolls without regard to cost.

Well, old Bill may have something there, but it's something that can be carried too far.

WHEN THEY GET on this toot, legislators tend to sound as though they themselves had nothing whatsoever to do with the laws that are on the books.

Which is surprising, since we always thought it was the legislature's job to write the laws and, if they didn't work out the way they were intended, to come back next year and fix 'em so they did.

The difference between a court and a legislature is that a court has to reach a decision in the case at hand, based on the law it finds on the books; while a legislature, as we have all observed from time to time, can avoid a decision indefinitely simply by failing to legislate.

If the court finds that the words in the codes say that certain people are eligible for welfare and those weren't the people the legislature had in mind when it put those words in the codes, it seems to us this is just a signal to the legislators to get out their scissors and pastepot and do a little revising.

BY NOW we are all familiar with the case of the Alameda teacher who worked at her trade for 10 months of the year and sought some form of relief for the two months she was technically unemployed.

Apparently her application had some color of legality at least, and equally apparently there was sufficient latitude for interpretation by state welfare authorities, because the lady did not get the money, although the grant had been approved at a lower level.

If the matter had gone to court and the court had reared back and ruled, "Yep, it says here that she's eligible," we suspect Bill Richardson would have been busy putting out another press release.

A different approach was taken by Assemblyman Wadie Deddeh, D-Chula Vista, when he and a legislative committee considered the case of the ambitious school teacher.

"Well, by golly," Wadie said, in effect, "we'll just put a stop to this kind of shenanigan. When I get back to Sacramento in January, I'm going to introduce a bill to put all those teachers on a 12-month basis and that'll be the end of that."

A very valid approach, we feel.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Fee Not Major Reason For Change

The San Anselmo City Council received a "brickbat" in your Dec. 19 edition for withdrawing our application for 1970-1971 funds for a 701 planning grant. You alleged we took this action because of a $1,000 fee the city would have to pay to participate in a $20,000 grant.

When one is on the receiving end of one of your missiles, it is painful even when deserved. But in this instance we had done nothing to open the season. The "brickbat" asked for our real reason for rejecting the funds. There were two reasons, and these were clearly stated in my memorandum to the city council on this subject, again during the meeting, and in your press coverage the following day. The fee was emphasized but the reason of greatest substance was the requirement that we complete the project prior to May 15, 1971, and the potential liability if the city were unable to do so. There was a very real chance we could have lost both federal and city funds and still have had a plan to complete and pay for without any money to do it. As the weeks rolled by and delays loomed ahead, the risk became too great and the council made the decision to withdraw from the program.

The fee was definitely an irritant and we placed emphasis on it as a means of communicating to the higher jurisdictions that their policies are discriminatory to small cities. I would not, however, have recommended discontinuing the program on the basis of the fee alone. We need advance planning in San Anselmo too desperately for that type of luxury.

With the above, I hand you back your terra cotta projectile, hopefully not to be its recipient again unless it is deserved.

Transit Service Genuine Bargain

I have been extremely pleased with the excellent service offered by the Marin Transit bus, but I am surprised that so few people seem to be aware of this service.

Perhaps your paper can publish the bus schedule once again for those who missed it the first time. There are stops at the College of Marin, Marin General Hospital, San Rafael, the Civic Center, Northgate, Novato and San Marin High School. Drivers will stop to pick up or discharge passengers at any safe place along their routes.

The drivers are friendly and helpful and the service, itself, is convenient and inexpensive. The fare is 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children 16 and under. Surely, this is the greatest bargain in the entire Bay area.

This bus service is a vital necessity for the elderly, young people, College of Marin students and many others in Marin County. My family and I appreciate this service, and urge more people to take advantage of it.

Too Much About Angela Davis

What did Judge Haley's family do for Christmas? Was there a reunion, sans one?

Whatever your reasoning, your coverage of Miss (Angela) Davis at the holidays must seem a macabre present to the Haley family. The ghost of Christmas Present must indeed have been the judge, watching with dismay the avid pleasure you find in Angela's good spirits. You have just juxtaposed "victim" and "accused" — you've totally transposed them.

It's quite proper that Miss Davis be bedded, boarded, protected and even amused by our tax dollars. But must our dimes for your newspaper also be to her benefit? If this kind of prejudicial reporting continues until her trial, how will it be possible to find a juror who hasn't been drenched in maudlin emotionalism?

I offer three suggestions for your New Year: (1) That you give equal space to the victims and families of the San Rafael shootout along with space given to Miss Davis, or (2) that you ballot your readers as to whether they would prefer pertinent facts of Miss Davis' incarceration only, or whether they really do want to read every detail of her daily life. And (3) that reporter David Dietz be encouraged to take up accounting or some other occupation in which objectivity is not required.

JEAN MAHONEY
Fairfax.

Two Dialogues Involving Justice

Now that we have Angela Davis — what in the hell do we have?

Justice in this case has a central theme in two dialogues — a dispute between two philosophies; in the one Society and in the other Angela Davis, perhaps a victim of the first philosophy. However, a fundamental character recurs again and again with little change, except in the personalities and vocabularies of the disputants — Justice.

Having known Judge Harold Haley personally, I can only recant his philosophy: Justice for one, justice for all and the Almighty being the only judge.

High Repair Costs Hike Insurance

Your editorial of Dec. 16, entitled "Insurance Reform Faces Fight By Some Lawyers" is not factual and is grossly unfair.

The label "reform" is an excellent euphemism and plaintiff's trial attorneys will not fight any reform in the automobile insurance field where the results would be beneficial to the crippled and maimed victims of automobile accidents. For example, the American Trial Lawyers Association is actively attempting to improve methods of expediting court trials which would actually be a useful reform.

Your implication that large personal injury awards are the primary reason for climbing insurance rates and that one-third of this money is pocketed by personal injury lawyers is grossly misleading. Recent insurance statistics reflect that the biggest claim cost is not that of settling claims resulting from serious accidents, but the repair of physical damage to automobiles resulting from relatively minor accidents.

Please note that lawyers are not getting one-third of those costs.

Mediterranean History Repeats Itself — But Stakes Get Higher

TUNIS — Except for the persistent recurrence of human folly it would be difficult, if not impossible, to document the ancient cliche that history repeats itself. Yet the stage sets for the great historic confrontations tend to have a fateful similarity, and nowhere is this more evident than in the Mediterranean basin.

The power of the Soviet Union versus the power of the United States in the Mediterranean means, if the pessimists are right, a head-on collision in the not-too-distant future. Only a short time ago the American Sixth Fleet was the supreme power. Today the cry of alarm is that Russian naval power, both surface and subsurface, has outstripped that of the United States, with the Soviet Union having bases where a few years ago none existed.

The buildup, the cries of alarm, the threats and counter-threats, will go on, suggesting a similar drama that occurred here more than 2,000 years ago. The power of Rome versus the power of Africa, with Carthage as its center, was a confrontation marking the course of history far into the future.

FOR MORE than a century Rome and Carthage had contended for supremacy in the Mediterranean. The Roman hardliners were highly emotional, denouncing Carthage as a mortal peril to Rome, which must therefore be destroyed.

The climax came in 202 B.C. in a battle between the Roman forces led by Scipio and the Carthaginians with Hannibal as their commander.

Francis H. Russell, U.S. ambassador to Tunisia from 1960 to 1969, quotes the greatest of Roman historians, Livy, as saying the battle "decided whether Rome or Carthage was to give laws to the nations." Many historians believe it was the most important battle of all time.

Scipio was victorious, carrying the day in spite of Hannibal's 80 elephants and an army familiar with the terrain. Rome was to rule the then-known world for at least three centuries. The city of Carthage survived for a time until Cato and the extremists prevailed and it was completely razed, the population massacred, and the site sown with salt.

ON THIS North African shore, with that battlefield and the ruins of Rome and Carthage as a constant reminder, are those who see a tragic parallel today in the confrontation between Russian and American power in the Mediterranean.

Why, the American visitor is asked, do you diminish your power in this sea which is so critical for your future? Why did you give up your bases in Morocco? Wherever you pull out a vacuum is created and the Russians move in. We are seeing this happen all around the Mediterranean.

To draw a parallel between 202 B.C. and 1971 is to ignore the changes that science and technology have wrought in the 20th century. Ever present behind the confrontation today is the mushroom cloud, with its threat of extermination not for one city but for mankind. The equivalent of the sack of Carthage is annihilation for millions in innumerable cities at the push of a button.

WHY THE RUSSIANS were able to increase their global power with a Mediterranean force rivaling that of the United States is no mystery. Over a half-dozen years the U.S. was putting $25 billion annually into a futile war in Vietnam. The cost to the Soviet Union of aiding Communist allies in Southeast Asia may have been as high as $1 billion a year.

This is the margin that enabled them to funnel resources into nuclear-powered submarines and surface ships, missile and missile bases on the shores of a sea that has seen so much of history over the millenia.

One thing is certain: If a clash comes out of this latest confrontation, there will be no empire to rule.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Cuba, Russia Patch Up Brief Estrangement

By K.C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—The Soviet Union and Cuba are getting closer together again after a prolonged period of marked coolness bordering on estrangement.

Delegations have been coming and going between Havana and Moscow and a new trade arrangement has been negotiated involving new Soviet commitments.

Little has emerged as to whether the Kremlin has also made new political and military commitments to the regime of Fidel Castro.

Russia has in the past virtually sustained Cuba's ailing economy, to the tune of about $1 million a day.

In addition Russia has been the chief supplier of arms and equipment, with China adding a trickle.

Fidel Castro, fiery and independent-minded, has been in ideological conflict with Moscow over the past year or two. He has been arguing with the Kremlin in favor of his own special brand of communism and has on occasions demonstrated his disagreement with the Soviets by staying away from major functions in Moscow.

There was a time when he was leaning over to the side of Mao Tse-tung. But he soon cooled off noticeably, resenting Peking's attempts to tell him what to do and how to do it.

More recently the Cuban pendulum has swung back again toward Moscow.

The Kremlin, evidently relieved by the shift, has lost little time in rebuilding old links and re-opening former channels.

To what extent recent Russian military moves — which sparked reports of plans for Russian nuclear submarine bases in Cuba — are part of the new Soviet-Cuba cooperation is a matter for diplomatic speculation. The coincidence is notable and in the view of diplomatic observers could be significant.

Pundits Focus Predictions On Future Of Marin In 1972

About this time of year big name television reporters gather around a table, rehash the events of the past year, gaze into their crystal balls and tell us what's likely to happen in the coming year.

This makes for better entertainment than reruns of "What's My Line," but it is national in scope and doesn't particularly serve Marin readers.

So, as a public service, we imagined what would happen if they focused on Marin news and the result was:

CRONKHITE — What sort of future do you see for the McInnis regime in 1971, Eric?

SEVAREID — It should be a stable year. The Zucker forces have retreated and the Baptiste movement won't reach full bloom until next year, so there shouldn't be any major shift of power.

COLLINGWOOD — There is, of course, the problem of what to do with the old county courthouse. This is a sore point which has brought charges of bungling from some quarters, and will not be forgotten by the opposition in the coming year.

MUDD — There is growing dissent because of the tight security measures at the seat of government, which will have to be eased up. People feel it smacks of a police state, and besides it's costing them money.

CRONKHITE — Do you foresee any danger of the city-states entering into a war against the county rulers, Dan?

RATHER — There already have been skirmishes, on police and fire protection, and there could be a full-scale clash.

CRONKHITE — In that event, who do you think would come out on top?

RATHER — I believe, if some accord is not reached, the city-states in time would gain all county territory, leaving the McInnis regime to govern a few roads and a few county parks.

SEVAREID — Gentlemen, don't forget there is also the specter of regional government which could supercede county government. With city-states applying force in one direction and regional government in another, county government could be squeezed out of existence.

CRONKHITE — Let's get away from government for a moment and explore some other major problems in Marin . . . for instance, the cost of living, among the highest in the U.S.

MUDD — Everyone of course has trouble with the cost of living, but in Marin the big hurdle is the cost of housing, in many cases beyond the means of the work force.

RATHER — I believe it's so severe that in a few years, there will be as many people commuting into Marin to work as there are now commuting out of Marin to work.

SEVAREID — That should make all the plans for transit, ferries and buses worthwhile, for then workers could be transported both ways.

RATHER — It goes beyond that. It's a social question. Is it beneficial to Marin to have people who work in Marin live elsewhere, and the people who work elsewhere live in Marin? I think not.

CRONKHITE — Gentlemen, we're running out of time and we've left many matters untouched, but before we leave, I'd like to sum up our discussion. Some of you feel that county government is on the way out, but not too soon, and working people are on the way out, probably sooner, because of the cost of living. Thank you and good night.

ART BUCHWALD

How Did Artie Die While Watching Football On TV?

WASHINGTON — As detective Peter Minderman stared at the color television set in the simple living room of the Socalaw house, he was baffled.

The body of Artie Socalaw was still in the same chair where he had died. All the suspects in the case were also in the living room. There was Artie's wife Emma, and Artie's best friends: George Stevens Jr., Chuck McDermott, Sam Markay and Tony Valenti.

"All right," said detective Minderman, "let's start from the beginning. You guys began watching pro football two days ago on Saturday at noon, right in this living room."

"THAT'S CORRECT," said Stevens. "Then suddenly Sunday night, somewhere during the third quarter of the Raider game, we noticed there was something wrong with Artie. We waited until the game ended at 7 and then went over to his chair. He was dead."

"You can imagine what a shock this was, coming after the 49ers' defeat of the Minnesota Vikings," Chuck McDermott added.

"But," said detective Minderman, "the coroner said Artie had been dead for 24 hours. How come no one discovered it before then?"

"Well," said Sam Markay, "Artie was always quiet when he watched a pro football game. He wasn't one of these guys who holler and shout after each play. So when he didn't say anything for 24 hours, we figured he was just suffering because Dallas beat the Detroit Lions."

"When you're watching pro football on TV," said Tony Valenti, "you don't notice whether people are breathing or not."

DETECTIVE MINDERMAN looked over at Mrs. Socalaw. "When did you last see your husband alive?"

"You mean moving around and that sort of thing?" Mrs. Socalaw asked. "I believe it was sometime in July before the exhibition games started. He hasn't left that chair since the Redskins played the Patriots in a pre-season game. I don't wish to dispute the coroner's report, but I thought Artie was dead three months ago."

"That's not true," Stevens said. "Just before the Baltimore-Cincinnati game, Artie asked me if I wanted a piece of fruitcake."

"FRUITCAKE?" detective Minderman said. "Where did the fruitcake come from?"

"I made it," said Mrs. Socalaw. "I always make fruitcake during the holiday season. It helps me forget."

"Did anyone else eat the fruitcake?"

"I did," said McDermott.

"No ill effects?" Minderman asked.

"None that I can tell," McDermott said.

"Damn," said detective Minderman. "There goes the poisoned-fruitcake theory."

"DID HE EAT anything else?" Minderman asked.

"I gave him a tuna fish sandwich," McDermott said.

"A what?"

"A tuna fish sandwich. You see Mrs. Socalaw refuses to feed us, so we each bring our own food. This time my wife made me a tuna fish sandwich."

"But don't you know what's going on with tuna fish?" Minderman asked.

"I'm not much for fishing. The only sport I watch is football," McDermott said.

"Your wife tried to knock you off with a tuna fish mercury-poisoned sandwich," detective Minderman said. "Only Artie became the victim, instead of you."

"I knew she was sore at me," McDermott said, "but I didn't think she'd go this far."

MINDERMAN WENT to the phone and called the McDermott house. "Mrs. McDermott, I'm sending someone over to arrest you for the tuna fish murder of Artie Socalaw."

"Don't worry, Gloria," Mrs. Socalaw grabbed the phone and shouted, "I'll testify in your behalf. We can always say it was a crime of passion."

Hope Sees War Ending In Year

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI)—Bob Hope returned from his seventh Christmas holiday trip to South Vietnam Tuesday and said "I think it'll be my last trip" to the Southeast Asian nation.

"Vietnamization is working," he said after his arrival at Van Nuys airport aboard a U.S. Air Force military transport.

"I talked to a lot of people over there—people who ought to know. I think we'll be out of there by the end of next year."

$60 In Cash Taken At Shop

About $60 in cash was taken between 9:30 p.m. Tuesday and 5:15 a.m. yesterday from the Coral Beauty Shop, 499 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, police reported.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By FRANK FARRARA

Pundits Focus Predictions On Future Of Marin In 1972

About this time of year big name television reporters gather around a table, rehash the events of the past year, gaze into their crystal balls and tell us what's likely to happen in the coming year.

This makes for better entertainment than reruns of "What's My Line," but it is national in scope and doesn't particularly serve Marin readers.

So, as a public service, we imagined what would happen if they focused on Marin news and the result was:

CRONKHITE — What sort of future do you see for the McInnis regime in 1971, Eric?

SEVAREID — It should be a stable year. The Zucker forces have retreated and the Baptiste movement won't reach full bloom until next year, so there shouldn't be any major shift of power.

COLLINGWOOD — There is, of course, the problem of what to do with the old county courthouse. This is a sore point which has brought charges of bungling from some quarters, and will not be forgotten by the opposition in the coming year.

MUDD — There is growing dissent because of the tight security measures at the seat of government, which will have to be eased up. People feel it smacks of a police state, and besides it's costing them money.

CRONKHITE — Do you foresee any danger of the city-states entering into a war against the county rulers, Dan?

RATHER — There already have been skirmishes, on police and fire protection, and there could be a full-scale clash.

CRONKHITE — In that event, who do you think would come out on top?

RATHER — I believe, if some accord is not reached, the city-states in time would gain all county territory, leaving the McInnis regime to govern a few roads and a few county parks.

SEVAREID — Gentlemen, don't forget there is also the specter of regional government which could supercede county government. With city-states applying force in one direction and regional government in another, county government could be squeezed out of existence.

CRONKHITE — Let's get away from government for a moment and explore some other major problems in Marin . . . for instance, the cost of living, among the highest in the U.S.

MUDD — Everyone of course has trouble with the cost of living, but in Marin the big hurdle is the cost of housing, in many cases beyond the means of the work force.

RATHER — I believe it's so severe that in a few years, there will be as many people commuting into Marin to work as there are now commuting out of Marin to work.

SEVAREID — That should make all the plans for transit, ferries and buses worthwhile, for then workers could be transported both ways.

RATHER — It goes beyond that. It's a social question. Is it beneficial to Marin to have people who work in Marin live elsewhere, and the people who work elsewhere live in Marin? I think not.

CRONKHITE — Gentlemen, we're running out of time and we've left many matters untouched, but before we leave, I'd like to sum up our discussion. Some of you feel that county government is on the way out, but not too soon, and working people are on the way out, probably sooner, because of the cost of living. Thank you and good night.

ART BUCHWALD

How Did Artie Die While Watching Football On TV?

WASHINGTON — As detective Peter Minderman stared at the color television set in the simple living room of the Socalaw house, he was baffled.

The body of Artie Socalaw was still in the same chair where he had died. All the suspects in the case were also in the living room. There was Artie's wife Emma, and Artie's best friends: George Stevens Jr., Chuck McDermott, Sam Markay and Tony Valenti.

"All right," said detective Minderman, "let's start from the beginning. You guys began watching pro football two days ago on Saturday at noon, right in this living room."

"THAT'S CORRECT," said Stevens. "Then suddenly Sunday night, somewhere during the third quarter of the Raider game, we noticed there was something wrong with Artie. We waited until the game ended at 7 and then went over to his chair. He was dead."

"You can imagine what a shock this was, coming after the 49ers' defeat of the Minnesota Vikings," Chuck McDermott added.

"But," said detective Minderman, "the coroner said Artie had been dead for 24 hours. How come no one discovered it before then?"

"Well," said Sam Markay, "Artie was always quiet when he watched a pro football game.He wasn't one of these guys who holler and shout after each play. So when he didn't say anything for 24 hours, we figured he was just suffering because Dallas beat the Detroit Lions."

"When you're watching pro football on TV," said Tony Valenti, "you don't notice whether people are breathing or not."

DETECTIVE MINDERMAN looked over at Mrs. Socalaw. "When did you last see your husband alive?"

"You mean moving around and that sort of thing?" Mrs. Socalaw asked. "I believe it was sometime in July before the exhibition games started. He hasn't left that chair since the Redskins played the Patriots in a pre-season game. I don't wish to dispute the coroner's report, but I thought Artie was dead three months ago."

"That's not true," Stevens said. "Just before the Baltimore-Cincinnati game, Artie asked me if I wanted a piece of fruitcake."

"FRUITCAKE?" detective Minderman said. "Where did the fruitcake come from?"

"I made it," said Mrs. Socalaw. "I always make fruitcake during the holiday season. It helps me forget."

"Did anyone else eat the fruitcake?"

"I did," said McDermott.

"No ill effects?" Minderman asked.

"None that I can tell," McDermott said.

"Damn," said detective Minderman. "There goes the poisoned-fruitcake theory."

"DID HE EAT anything else?" Minderman asked.

"I gave him a tuna fish sandwich," McDermott said.

"A what?"

"A tuna fish sandwich. You see Mrs. Socalaw refuses to feed us, so we each bring our own food. This time my wife made me a tuna fish sandwich."

"But don't you know what's going on with tuna fish?" Minderman asked.

"I'm not much for fishing. The only sport I watch is football," McDermott said.

"Your wife tried to knock you off with a tuna fish mercury-poisoned sandwich," detective Minderman said. "Only Artie became the victim, instead of you."

"I knew she was sore at me," McDermott said, "but I didn't think she'd go this far."

MINDERMAN WENT to the phone and called the McDermott house. "Mrs. McDermott, I'm sending someone over to arrest you for the tuna fish murder of Artie Socalaw."

"Don't worry, Gloria," Mrs. Socalaw grabbed the phone and shouted, "I'll testify in your behalf. We can always say it was a crime of passion."

Hope Sees War Ending In Year

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI)— Bob Hope returned from his seventh Christmas holiday trip to South Vietnam Tuesday and said "I think it'll be my last trip" to the Southeast Asian nation.

"Vietnamization is working," he said after his arrival at Van Nuys airport aboard a U.S. Air Force military transport.

"I talked to a lot of people over there—people who ought to know. I think we'll be out of there by the end of next year."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Plastic Coating For Teeth To Be Available Next Year

An effective preventive against ordinary tooth decay would be most welcome. Last year, we wrote about a new plastic that was applied to the teeth. The substance hardens when exposed to ultraviolet light. Only two or three minutes are needed to complete the entire process.

It is my understanding that the sealant will be available early next year.

No one knows how long the plastic sealant will last. In one group of children (ages 4 to 14), the coating was 100 per cent effective, when applied to permanent teeth. For teeth that have been filled, an adhesive liner is needed to seal the metal, plastic or cement fillings. This prevents food particles from seeping in between filling and tooth.

THE PLASTIC coating also may be used to cover unattractive, poorly calcified or stained teeth, and to repair the broken edges on front teeth. In addition, it should be also benefit the handicapped person who cannot brush his teeth, military personnel in the field and those living in remote areas.

Fluoridation of our water has proved to be the most effective defense against dental caries. But it is not the perfect solution. Brushing and using a water jet stream also have helped. There is evidence that the addition of phosphates to fluorides is a deterrent to dental decay. Both chemicals improve the quality of the enamel, but it is not known why one complements the other.

IT IS BELIEVED the phosphates embedded in the pits and fissures of the teeth help ward off caries. Adding phosphates to the diet also lessens the harmful effects of dietary sugar.

BREAST SIZE AND THE PILL

A reader writes: I've read about certain effects from the Pill. One report stated that these drugs stunt the growth of the breast. Well, I began using the Pill at 13½ because of irregular periods. I took them on and off until I was 17. Now at 18½, I have the same size breast I had at 13.

REPLY

Are you complaining or are you satisfied? Side effects from birth control pills include changes in overall body weight. For example, an increase in weight may occur due to fluid retention. On the other hand, there may be a decrease in weight. However, the most common complaint among women using these products is that the breasts become tender and engorged.

SOURCES OF IRON

D. L. H. writes: What are the basic sources of iron? If a person is not getting the right amount of this element, can he get sick?

REPLY

Eggs, red meats, milk, fortified breads, and vegetables are excellent sources of iron. Liver also is high in this element. It is not difficult to obtain the recommended daily intake (15 mg.) so long as the person eats a well-balanced diet. When a severe iron deficiency exists, anemia may ensue and iron medication is needed.

ANTI-CLOTTER

HT. Writes: Why is heparin given for clot in a legvein?

REPLY

Heparin, an anticoagulant, is used to prevent clotting of the blood. If a clot has formed, the product is given to discourage it from extending. Heparin will not shrink the clot or make it desappear. The product also helps control phlebitis of the surface veins.

Triple Murderer Gets Death

SAN LUIS OBISPO (UPI)— John Gray Archa received two death penalties and a sentence of life in prison Wednesday for the triple murder of a young Shandon family.

Archa, who repudiated an earlier confession during the trial, broke into sobs when he heard the penalty read.

The same jury convicted Archa Tuesday of the murders of Ronald Barnes, 24, Barnes' wife Betty, 23, and their daughter Shelly, 4. Wednesday morning the jury began deliberations and returned the verdict in the afternoon.

Judge Timothy I. O'Reilly told attorneys he will hear any further motions in the case Monday.

Archa received the life term for knifing Barnes, allegedly over a $2,000 electric guitar. The death penalties were for stabbing Betty and drowning Shelly.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Plastic Coating For Teeth To Be Available Next Year

An effective preventive against ordinary tooth decay would be most welcome. Last year, we wrote about a new plastic that was applied to the teeth. The substance hardens when exposed to ultraviolet light. Only two or three minutes are needed to complete the entire process.

It is my understanding that the sealant will be available early next year.

No one knows how long the plastic sealant will last. In one group of children (ages 4 to 14), the coating was 100 per cent effective, when applied to permanent teeth. For teeth that have been filled, an adhesive liner is needed to seal the metal, plastic or cement fillings. This prevents food particles from seeping in between filling and tooth.

THE PLASTIC coating also may be used to cover unattractive, poorly calcified or stained teeth, and to repair the broken edges on front teeth. In addition, it should be also benefit the handicapped person who cannot brush his teeth, military personnel in the field and those living in remote areas.

Fluoridation of our water has proved to be the most effective defense against dental caries. But it is not the perfect solution. Brushing and using a water jet stream also have helped. There is evidence that the addition of phosphates to fluorides is a deterrent to dental decay. Both chemicals improve the quality of the enamel, but it is not known why one complements the other.

IT IS BELIEVED the phosphates embedded in the pits and fissures of the teeth help ward off caries. Adding phosphates to the diet also lessens the harmful effects of dietary sugar.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

BREAST SIZE AND THE PILL

A reader writes: I've read about certain effects from the Pill. One report stated that these drugs stunt the growth of the breast. Well, I began using the Pill at 13½ because of irregular periods. I took them on and off until I was 17. Now at 18½, I have the same size breast I had at 13.

REPLY

Are you complaining or are you satisfied? Side effects from birth control pills include changes in overall body weight. For example, an increase in weight may occur due to fluid retention. On the other hand, there may be a decrease in weight. However, the most common complaint among women using these products is that the breasts become tender and engorged.

SOURCES OF IRON

D. L. H. writes: What are the basic sources of iron? If a person is not getting the right amount of this element, can he get sick?

REPLY

Eggs, red meats, milk, fortified breads, and vegetables are excellent sources of iron. Liver also is high in this element. It is not difficult to obtain the recommended daily intake (15 mg.) so long as the person eats a well-balanced diet. When a severe iron deficiency exists, anemia may ensue and iron medication is needed.

ANTI-CLOTTER

HT. Writes: Why is heparin given for clot in a legvein?

REPLY

Heparin, an anticoagulant, is used to prevent clotting of the blood. If a clot has formed, the product is given to discourage it from extending. Heparin will not shrink the clot or make it desappear. The product also helps control phlebitis of the surface veins.

Triple Murderer Gets Death

SAN LUIS OBISPO (UPI)—John Gray Archa received two death penalties and a sentence of life in prison Wednesday for the triple murder of a young Shandon family.

Archa, who repudiated an earlier confession during the trial, broke into sobs when he heard the penalty read.

The same jury convicted Archa Tuesday of the murders of Ronald Barnes, 24, Barnes' wife Betty, 23, and their daughter Shelly, 4. Wednesday morning the jury began deliberations and returned the verdict in the afternoon.

Judge Timothy I. O'Reilly told attorneys he will hear any further motions in the case Monday.

Archa received the life term for knifing Barnes, allegedly over a $2,000 electric guitar. The death penalties were for stabbing Betty and drowning Shelly.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Plastic Coating For Teeth To Be Available Next Year

An effective preventive against ordinary tooth decay would be most welcome. Last year, we wrote about a new plastic that was applied to the teeth. The substance hardens when exposed to ultraviolet light. Only two or three minutes are needed to complete the entire process.

It is my understanding that the sealant will be available early next year.

No one knows how long the plastic sealant will last. In one group of children (ages 4 to 14), the coating was 100 per cent effective, when applied to permanent teeth. For teeth that have been filled, an adhesive liner is needed to seal the metal, plastic or cement fillings. This prevents food particles from seeping in between filling and tooth.

THE PLASTIC coating also may be used to cover unattractive, poorly calcified or stained teeth, and to repair the broken edges on front teeth. In addition, it should be also benefit the handicapped person who cannot brush his teeth, military personnel in the field and those living in remote areas.

Fluoridation of our water has proved to be the most effective defense against dental caries. But it is not the perfect solution. Brushing and using a water jet stream also have helped. There is evidence that the addition of phosphates to fluorides is a deterrent to dental decay. Both chemicals improve the quality of the enamel, but it is not known why one complements the other.

IT IS BELIEVED the phosphates embedded in the pits and fissures of the teeth help ward off caries. Adding phosphates to the diet also lessens the harmful effects of dietary sugar.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

BREAST SIZE AND THE PILL

A reader writes: I've read about certain effects from the Pill. One report stated that these drugs stunt the growth of the breast. Well, I began using the Pill at 13½ because of irregular periods. I took them on and off until I was 17. Now at 18½, I have the same size breast I had at 13.

REPLY

Are you complaining or are you satisfied? Side effects from birth control pills include changes in overall body weight. For example, an increase in weight may occur due to fluid retention. On the other hand, there may be a decrease in weight. However, the most common complaint among women using these products is that the breasts become tender and engorged.

SOURCES OF IRON

D. L. H. writes: What are the basic sources of iron? If a person is not getting the right amount of this element, can he get sick?

REPLY

Eggs, red meats, milk, fortified breads, and vegetables are excellent sources of iron. Liver also is high in this element. It is not difficult to obtain the recommended daily intake (15 mg.) so long as the person eats a well-balanced diet. When a severe iron deficiency exists, anemia may ensue and iron medication is needed.

ANTI-CLOTTER

HT. Writes: Why is heparin given for clot in a legvein?

REPLY

Heparin, an anticoagulant, is used to prevent clotting of the blood. If a clot has formed, the product is given to discourage it from extending. Heparin will not shrink the clot or make it desappear. The product also helps control phlebitis of the surface veins.

Triple Murderer Gets Death

SAN LUIS OBISPO (UPI)—John Gray Archa received two death penalties and a sentence of life in prison Wednesday for the triple murder of a young Shandon family.

Archa, who repudiated an earlier confession during the trial, broke into sobs when he heard the penalty read.

The same jury convicted Archa Tuesday of the murders of Ronald Barnes, 24, Barnes' wife Betty, 23, and their daughter Shelly, 4. Wednesday morning the jury began deliberations and returned the verdict in the afternoon.

Judge Timothy I. O'Reilly told attorneys he will hear any further motions in the case Monday.

Archa received the life term for knifing Barnes, allegedly over a $2,000 electric guitar. The death penalties were for stabbing Betty and drowning Shelly.

Clay-Frazier Title Fight Will Be $30 Million Event

NEW YORK (UPI)—March 8, 1971 will mark a milestone in sports history.

That's the day agreed upon Wednesday for Joe Frazier, the world heavyweight champion, to meet Cassius Clay, the deposed title holder, for undisputed possession of the championship.

And making it that much sweeter will be the knowledge that the bout will be the richest one-shot sporting event in history, with a guarantee of $2.5 million to each fighter and an expected gross of close to $30 million.

Jack Kent Cooke, the West Coast millionaire sportsman who is behind the fight, set for Madison Square Garden in New York, termed the bout, "the greatest entertainment and sports spectacle of all time."

Jerry Perenchio, president of Chartwell artists of Los Angeles, co-promoter along with Madison Square Garden, said closed-circuit television would provide the biggest payoff in sports history. Perenchio said there would be no radio broadcast of the fight in the United States or Canada nor would there be any delayed television tape setup. Perenchio said he hopes to have more than a million closed circuit theater television seats available in the U.S. and Canada.

Details of the fight were announced at a Wednesday afternoon news conference in which both fighters engaged in the now-routine bantering and both, as usual, predicted knockouts.

"The showdown is here," said Clay after arriving an hour late. "All the talking is over. This match will match an amateur champion against a professional champion, which is me. Joe Frazier got his chance to be a champion when I sat down and I will beat him when we meet."

Clay, who now prefers to be called Muhammad Ali, said Frazier was, "no champion" and told the present title holder: "I'm going to punch you all day."

Frazier, calmer and more controlled than Clay, countered with, "Ali does the talking. I do the fighting. He'll go in seven. He can call me anything he wants. We've got all the time in the world when we get in that ring."

Both are undefeated with Clay sporting a 31-0 record which includes 25 knockouts and Frazier a 26-0 mark with 23 kayoes.

Clay knocked out Sonny Liston on Feb9 25, 1964, to become heavyweight champion and held the title until stripped of it for failing to accept induction into the Armed Forces in 1967. His last fight as champion was in March, 1967 against Zora Folley.

Clay's title was declared vacant and Frazier took a piece of it with a knockout of Buster Mathis on March 4, 1968. He took the whole crown in February with a knockout of Jimmy Ellis, the world Boxing Association champion, who won his crown in an elimination tournament which Frazier refused to enter.

Clay, out of action for 3 1-2 years, returned after a Federal Court order upheld his right-to-work contention and made an impressive debut with a third-round knockout of Jerry Quarry in Atlanta on Oct. 26. He stopped Argentina's Oscar Bonavena on a 15th-round technical knockout earlier this month.

Harry Markson, boxing director for the Garden, said tickets would be scaled from $150 for ringside and loges to $20 for balcony seats. He said a full house would produce a "live" gate of $1.25 million.

Tickets will go on sale Wednesday, Jan. 20.

Clay, who is appealing a five-year sentence for draft evasion, is expected to train for the bout in Miami Beach. Frazier, according to manager Yank Durham, will begin training in Philadelphia in mid-January.

Joyous New Year For Suyderhoud

It will be a particularly joyous New Year's Day tomorrow for Mike Suyderhoud of San Anselmo.

The world's reigning champion water skier will become engaged to Kaye Thurlow, 19, of Bendigo, Australia where Mike is currently training for the 1971 season.

Suyderhoud and Miss Thurlow, who is the Australian women's water ski champ, met on the water in 1967 and plan to wed on terra firma in the summer of 1972 when Mike completes his studies as a chemistry major at Sonoma State College. Congrats.

ONE OF MY favorite sports writers happens to be a 14-year-old San Rafael lad, Kevin Clyde, a ninth grader at the Three R School in San Rafael.

He has two pieces in the December issue of his school's paper, on Jack Kemp and George Blanda.

Young Clyde notes that Kemp, former Buffalo Bills star, is now a Congressman from New York's 39th District and that he has been quoted as saying: "Politics is far more challenging intellectually and campaigning is as physically demanding as football. In football, your opponents are right in front of you; in politics your opponents are everywhere. It is like fighting shadows."

Kevin cutely added: "By coincidence, Curt Flood became a 'Senator' by signing a contract for the 1971 baseball season."

And of Blanda, Oakland's Miracle Worker, young Clyde believes the old geezer will be "bronzed, then put in the Pro Football Hall of Fame." Blanda may be bronzed by the Miami sun next month at the Super Bowl. And I hadn't realized it until Kevin's story reminded me that Blanda has been playing football since Truman was president.

THOSE OF you who watched Arizona State rip North Carolina 48-26 in the nationally-televised Peach Bowl at Atlanta last night may have noticed a local boy chip in his share of the victory for the Sun Devils.

I refer to Bruce Kilby of Terra Linda, substitute defensive end. He saw action late in the game and on one play pressured the Tar Heel quarterback into an errant pass.

IF YOU DON'T have a ticket to Sunday's big playoff game at Kezar between the 49ers and Dallas Cowboys, you can hop in your flivver to catch the blacked-out telecast at not-too-far locations.

The game will be televised live starting at 2 p.m. on Channel 12, Chico; Channel 30, Fresno; Channel 8, Reno, and Channel 3, Eureka.

Some cable TV areas in Sonoma and Contra osta counties also will receive the live telecast. Also, at midnight Sunday the tape delay will be carried on Channel 5 (KPIX) and Channel 10 (KXTV) of Sacramento.

Rams' George Allen Looking For A Job

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Disappointed but not surprised, George Allen started a two-week vacation today before looking for another job after having been fired by club president Dan Reeves as coach of the Los Angeles Rams.

It was the second time in two years that Reeves had fired Allen by telephone. The previous time was on Christmas, 1968, but Reeves rehired the coach after a public outcry over the dismissal and threats of a players' strike.

Allen held a brief press conference Wednesday afternoon a few hours after Reeves had telephoned the coach from New York to inform him his contract would not be renewed.

"I was told in a cold manner that my contract would not be renewed," Allen said. "There was no gratitude, no thanks, no appreciation. I am very disappointed by the dismissal. About the only thing I can say is that I am very proud of the record we achieved with the Rams in the past five years under very difficult circumstances."

Although admitting he had received "some feelers," Allen declined to elaborate or confirm they might be from Green Bay or the Washington Redskins as rumored.

Reeves, in his announcement released by the club, said he had no statement concerning a new coach but added he would do everything he could "to provide the best possible leadership for our players and our fans."

Numerous names were mentioned as possible candidates to succeed Allen. Chief among these was Tom Fears, fired in midseason as coach of the New Orleans Saints and a former Rams player and assistant coach.

Allen apparently had anticipated his contract would not be renewed although he said frankly he wanted to come back to lead the club to a championship.

He refused to say what differences existed between him and Reeves, indicating they had been aired in his previous firing.

Knicks Outshoot Warriors

BOSTON (UPI)—At the rate they're going, the San Francisco Warriors may become accustomed to playing National Basketball Association games during the daylight hours.

For the second consecutive day, the Warriors play an "under sunlight" game—this time against the Boston Celtics. Today's game will mark the end of a four-game road swing for the Warriors.

Their initial daytime game Wednesday wasn't a success. The New York Knickerbockers, quickly becoming a runaway leader in the NBA's Atlantic Division, came from behind in the fourth quarter to take the Warriors, 111-103.

All told, Frazier pumped in 29 points, DeBusschere 27 and Bradley 24.

For San Francisco, Fritz Williams was top scorer with 26 points.

Despite the loss, which makes them 22-19 in the Pacific Division, the Warriors remained just two games behind first-place Los Angeles.

Tars Get Scare From Alumni '5'

Joe Smith tallied 29 points as he rallied the College of Marin Tars to a 78-68 victory over an Alumni team last night in practice basketball at the Kentfield school.

"We were flat, just flat," said Tar coach John Panagakis after his team had to come from behind in the second half.

Ron Blum with 19 points was high for the Alumni.

PROUD OF AFL

Raider Incentive: 'Old Time's Sake'

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders will be battling Sunday for a berth in the Super Bowl, but they will also be playing one for old time's sake.

"We're the only team left from the old AFL (in the playoffs) and this has got to have something to do with it," Raider tackle Tom Keating said Wednesday.

"We'll certainly be playing for the Super Bowl and the money, sure," Keating said, "but we'll be playing for the pride of the old American Football League, too."

The Raiders' opponents in Sunday's American Football Conference game—the Baltimore Colts—are the old NFL addition to the conference.

Some observers, many of them Baltimore fans, claimed the Colts got through the year in easy fashion because of reduced opposition in the AFC.

The Colts coasted to the AFC-East title with an 11-2-1 record. The losses came to former AFL teams Kansas City and Miami and a tie with Buffalo.

"It wasn't the AFL teams," Keating said. "The whole league was mixed up this year."

The Colts have Johnny Unitas, and that's enough to tell Keating and the rest of the Raiders that they're good enough to be in any championship game.

"He (Unitas) still does the same things the same way as he did when I was a little kid," Keating said. "He's got the same style, drops back exactly nine yards and throws the ball as well as ever."

Raider coach John Madden said the long season won't have any effect on the 37-year-old Unitas.

"Age has no bad effect on a single game," Madden said. "In fact, it's a benefit. Think of all those years of experience."

With Unitas and a defense anchored by 295-pound end Bubba Smith, the Raiders know they will have their hands full.

"They claimed the Colts played bad football this year," Keating said. "But they still played good enough to win and that's all you have to do."

Sid Gillman Will Return To Chargers

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The San Diego Chargers got back their original coach today with the announcement that Sid Gillman was returning to mentor the American Football Conference team.

Club president Gene Klein announced Wednesday night that in addition to head coach Gillman would function as exerutive vice president of the Chargers.

Gillman had retired as head coach late in 1969 because of ill health and retained only his title of general manager, a job he will give up under the new alignment. A new general manager will be appointed later.

Klein emphasized that he asked Gillman to return to coaching now that his health had improved. He said Gillman had not suggested the change.

During Gillman's absence from coaching, his job was taken over by Charlie Waller who stepped up from offensive coach, a position to which he will return. During Waller's tenure as head coach, the Chargers had a 5-6-3 season this year.

Petaluma Quint In 84-60 Win

The Petaluma High School Trojans put together one of their typical team efforts and the result was a smooth 84-60 trouncing of the Arcata Tigers of Humboldt County last night in a non-league high school game at Petaluma.

The Trojans were sparked with a 24-point performance from Dave Thomas.

Arcata had a sensational first half performance from Bob Turner. Turner bucketed 18 points in that half, missing few and perplexing his opposition.

Petaluma is now 9-1 won-lost and looking ahead to an important Saturday night meeting with Tamalpais.

Arizona State Romps

ATLANTA (UPI)—North Carolina lived to rue the day it let Monroe Eley get away.

Eley, a native of Nashville, N. C., barely 60 miles from the campus of the University of North Carolina, is a sophomore at Arizona State.

Wednesday night, Eley, who Coach Frank Kush insists "will be a super athlete by the time he's a senior," was the offensive star of the third annual Peach Bowl, leading the Sun Devils to a 48-26 victory over North Carolina's Tar Heels.

Favored Arizona State trailed 26-21 after the Tar Hzels erupted for four touchdowns in less than six minutes near the end of the first half. But Kush turned Eley loose in the snow and the 8th-ranked Sun Devils streaked to their 17th consecutive win.

Eley, a 6-foot-3, 205-pounder, rushed for 76 yards and two touchdowns in the third period and wound up with 173 yards on 23 carries to overshadow North Carolina Don McCauley.

McCauley, who broke O. J. Simpson's rushing record last fall by gaining 1,720 yards and who led the nation's scorers with 21 touchdowns, gained 143 yards and scored three touchdowns—but he was held to just 34 yards after intermission.

Another outstanding Peach Bowl runner was Arizona State's stumpy fullback, Bob Thomas, who gained 124 yards and matched McCauley's three-touchdown performance.

The Peach Bowl, yet to be played in clear weather, had rain that turned to snow in the first period and heavy snow in parts of the second period and nearly all of the third.

"Some of our kids never saw snow before," Kush said. "I was extremely pleased with how they reacted in these conditions. We teach them to run on their toes, but they had to run flatfooted—and they did."

As far as could be determined, it was the first time an Arizona State team had ever played in snow, at least since World War II.

North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley noted that pre-game speculation figured bad weather would favor the Tar Heels, "but it might have hurt us more than it hurt them."

But a more serious problem for North Carolina was losing quarterback Paul Miller who was knocked unconscious by a crashing tackle late in the first half.

"When we lost Paul, we lost a lot of our option," said Dooley. The Tar Heels never got beyond their own 45 in the second half.

Brodie Really Listening To His Coach

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — You can bet San Francisco quarterback John Brodie has been listening to his coach this week during sessions on the Dallas defense.

No one, with the exception of the Dallas coaching staff, probably knows as much about the Cowboy defense as Forty Niner coach Dick Nolan.

You see, Nolan coached the defense for Dallas mentor Tom Landry. He knows the Cowboy veterans. He knows their strengths, their weaknesses.

Nolan's not talking very much about what he knows, at least not to the press. But Brodie and the remainder of the Forty Niner offense are getting the complete rundown on the Dallas "Doomsday" defense.

In reply to a question Wednesday about how much he knows, Nolan simply said: "I know the personnel."

A second question for some elaboration of his first answer got the same reply: "I know the personnel!"

Nolan hinted that his knowledge of the Dallas defense won't give his club an advantage over the Cowboys Sunday in the National Football Conference championship game.

"You must remember that I've been away for almost three years," Nolan said. "Some changes have been made."

There have been some changes in the Cowboy defense, but the core of their defense — lineman Bob Lilly and Jethro Pugh, linebackers Chuck Howley and Lee Roy Jordan and defensive backs Mel Renfro and Cornell Green —is still there.

Of the Dallas line, Nolan said: "They're not only big, but mobile. Pugh probably is the fastest of the bunch and a fine pass rusher."

He said Lilly, a 10-year veteran, reminds him of Forty Niner Tackle Charlie Krueger.

Nolan knows less about the Dallas secondary. The Cowboys have acquired Herb Adderly from the Packers and a rookie, Charlie Waters, is now playing at one cornerback.

There are some disadvantages to being the former defensive coach of the Cowboys. Cowboy coach Tom Landry knows that Nolan patterned the San Francisco defense after the Dallas alignments.

Also, Nolan knows that no matter how much he has in his head about Dallas, his club must execute perfectly against the Cowboy strengths before it can exploit their weaknesses.

It's Turning Into Long Road Trip For Seals

TORONTO (UPI) —It's getting to be a long holiday season road trip for the California Golden Seals. And it's going to get worse before improving.

In an across-the-border National Hockey League game Wednesday night, the Seals bowed to the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-1.

The defeat was the third straight on the road for the Seals, who face Montreal on Saturday and Detroit on Sunday before returning home for a mid-week to-do against St. Louis. But after the game against the Blues, the Seals embark on another four-game eastern swing with stops in Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis and Toronto.

In the Maple Leaf clash, Toronto center Dave Keon reached an NHL milestone when he rammed home his 250th career goal. In addition, he assisted linemate Gary Monahan on a first-period goal.

Keon is only the 28th player in league history to gain entry to the 250-goal club. And it took him only 33 seconds after the opening face-off to reach the mark. He went on a breakaway after picking up Billy McMillan's pass at center and beat Seals goalie Gary Smith with a high shot to the glove side.

California narrowed the margin to 2-1 in the second period when Gerry Ehman knocked in Earl Ingarfield's pass from behind the net. Paul Henderson added Toronto's insurance goal at 2:05 of the third period.

They make Volkswagens, but they buy Renaults.

Last year only 18,132 VW's were sold in France.

Yet, during the same period, Renault sold 112,263 cars in West Germany.

Germans are famous for demanding quality and dependability above all else.

Does that seem to tell you anything?

Plunkett's Passing Vs. Ohio State Might

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Stanford University, returning to the Rose Bowl after an absence of 19 years, will pit the passing of Heisman trophy winner Jim Plunkett against the defensive might of Ohio State Friday in the 57th renewal of the New Year's Day football classic.

The game brings together an Ohio State team with a 9-0 record this season and a Stanford club with a more spotty 8-3 record. On the basis of their performances this season, the Buckeyes were installed 11-point favorites for a fifth straight win in the Rose Bowl

Stanford has been in the New Year's Day game only once since the closed agreement between the Pacific Coast and the Big Ten started in 1947 and on that visit the Indians were beaten 40-7 by Illinois.

Coach John Ralston, however, feels that his team has shown the ability to get up for the big ones and points out two of his club's three losses came after Stanford had clinched the Pacific-8 championship.

"I never felt it was an honor to come to a bowl game and lose," the Stanford coach commented. "We have had no problem in getting our players up for Ohio State

Ever since the Buckeyes arrived, however, Hayes has extolled Plunkett as one of football's great players and great passers. The 6-foot-3 quarterback unquestionably will be subjected to the greatest rush he has been accorded this season when he goes against the Buckeyes.

Although Stanford's offense is built around Plunkett and every team the Indians have met has tried to stop him, he demonstrated his ability by becoming the first player in football history to gain more than 7,000 yards in total offense, proving himself a good rusher as well as an outstanding passer.

Plunkett's favorite receivers are Randy Vataha and Bobby Moore while the Indians' top running backs are Hillary Shockley and Jackie Brown.

Stanford's first loss was to Purdue, a team Ohio State had trouble beating 10-7. The Indians, however, may have been looking ahead to the University of Southen California the following week, a game they won 24-14 to start their drive to the Rose Bowl. Their other losses were to the Air Force and California after the bowl bid was clinched.

The Buckeyes are led by Rex Kern, a typical Woody Hayes quarterback who handles the Ohio State option play to perfection, runs well and can pass when it is required.

The big running back for the Buckeyes is John Brockington who set a school record by gaining 1,040 yards the past season and scored 15 touchdowns. He is joined in the rushing by Leo Hayden who has netted 719 yards on 131 carries for a 5.5. average.

It is Ohio State's defenses, however, that have played the major role in their perfect season. The Buckeyes permitted only one team, Illinois to score more than two touchdowns, the Illini getting 29 points to 48 for the Ohio team.

Jim Stillwagon, middle guard chosen UPI Lineman of the Year, leads the defense which also features cornerback Jack Tatum and safety Mike Sensibaugh among its stars.

Although both teams have run up large scores on occasion, the Buckeyes as much as 56 points against Texas A&M and Stanford 63 against Washington State, neither coach expected the game to be a high-scoring contest.

The traditional capacity crowd of 100,000 will witness the Rose Bowl encounter which gets underway at 2 p.m. PST AND WILL BE CARRIED BY THE NBC television network

Ara And Boys Happy To Be In Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (UPI)—Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian wants to clear one thing up.

He is happy to be in Dallas and his players are happy to be in Dallas, even if they do open the local sports pages to see pictures of Nebraska and LSU players romping along Miami Beach with bikini-clad lasses in tow.

It had been reported soon after Notre Dame accepted the Cotton Bowl invitation that the Irish players had wanted to make the trip to Miami and take on the Nebraska Cornhuskers. But, the report went, Parseghian persuaded the players to opt for Dallas and the Cotton Bowl and the hopes of meeting No. 1 Texas.

That's not the way it went at all, Parseghian said. This is the way it went.

"After the Georgia Tech game," said Parseghian, "Father (Edmund) Joyce, who is head of our athletic council, came to me and said maybe we ought to take a straw vote of our players.

"We asked them four questions. We asked them if they would like to come to Dallas and play the winner of the Southwest Conference. We asked them if, instead, would they like to go to the Orange Bowl and probably play Nebraska. We asked them if they wanted to play in a game at all if we lost to LSU, and we asked them if they thought a bowl game would interfere with their studies."

The straw vote indicated the players did not think making a bowl trip would hamper their academic life, and, surprising to Parseghian, they said they would like to go bowling even if they did stumble against LSU.

"And they voted 52 per cent to 48 per cent in favor of making the Orange Bowl trip over the Cotton Bowl," Parseghian said. "I was surprised the vote would be that close."

Then came the LSU game and a squeaky 3-0 Notre Dame victory. Bowl invitations were offered by both the Orange and Cotton people.

"The vote was almost unanimous in favor of the Cotton Bowl," said Parseghian.

"The story which appeared about the players wanting to go to the Orange Bowl was based on the earlier vote."

And so Notre Dame came to Dallas and Parseghian and his players have found everything just fine. Well, almost everything.

Some of the Notre Dame players—flanker Tom Gatewood in particular—have complained about a dusty material floating up off the Cotton Bowl Astroturf.

"We have found out it is a sort of a film on the artificial turf," Parseghian said. "It makes the ball dry and the players hands dry.

"I'm told by an official at the University of Texas (which has had Astroturf on its playing field for two years) that..the problem is inherent in the turf for about six months after its installation.

"I think we can solve it easily by spraying some tacky substance on the receivers and backs hands."

Brodie, Taylor Give Landry Most Concern

DALLAS (UPI)—San Francisco quarterback John Brodie and kick return specialist Bruce Taylor are giving Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry the most concern during the week leading up to the clubs' National Conference title game Sunday in Kezar Stadium.

"You can get beat awfully quick and in a hurry when you face a great passer," Landry said. "And Brodie is that.

"He is a great thrower—his statistics are almost unsurpassed," Landry said.

Cowboys scout Ermal Allen also pointed out that he has filmed, timed and rated the 26 pro quarterbacks and that Brodie is the second fastest man at getting rid of the ball. (Joe Namath of the New York Jets is No. 1).

"Nobody else has done it very successfully, but I think we'll need to pressure Brodie even if we don't rap him," Landry said. He noted that the Forty Niners had permitted Brodie to be trapped only eight times.

"We did it some here last year (in a 24-24 tie), but San Francisco is a much better club now than then," Landry said. "We've got to at least make him throw quick. We can't give him too much time or he'll destroy us."

Turning to Taylor, whose kick returns had a big hand in setting up San Francisco touchdowns in the 17-14 verdict over Minnesota last week, Landry called the rookie's ability "uncanny" and said it had played a major role in turning the West Coast team's record around.

"We are most concerned about Brodie and we are concerned about Taylor," Landry said. "Our defense will have to minimize both of them."

Landry said he thought the Cowboys would have to score "at least three touchdowns to be in the ball game" because of the Forty Niners' great offense.

Tennessee Is Ripe For Upset

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Twenty-nine-year-old Bill Battle is sitting on a powder keg of emotion in his bid to complete one of the best rookie coaching seasons in collegiate football history.

If Battle is concerned, he isn't showing it. But his Tennessee Volunteers, one-touchdown favorites, are ripe for one of the season's major upsets in the Sugar Bowl Friday.

All the upset elements are there for the emotionally charged Air Force Falcons to pounce on.

Even Battle gave hint to the possibility Wednesday.

"The weather, the frame of mind everybody's in, and the breaks will decide the ball game," the nation's youngest major college head coach said.

Partly cloudy skies and 60 degree temperatures are predicted.

The 1 p.m. EST battle puts Tennessee's 10-1 record, fourth-place national standing, nine-game winning streak and Southeastern Conference prestige on the line against Ben Martin's hungry Falcons.

The Falcons have everything to gain, little to lose. They are 9-2, ranked 11th and anxious to make up for that 49-19 loss to Colorado in the regular season finale.

"You're going to see a fresh Air Force team that's ready to play," Falcon all-America flanker Ernie Jennings told newsmen. He admitted the Air Force let its guard down against Colorado.

Battle said there's no reason for his Volunteers to let their guard down Friday.

"They've looked at the same Air Force movies I've seen," he said, adding that the Falcons may be even quicker than Tennessee.

ORANGE BOWL

LSU Could Have Some Surprises

MIAMI (UPI)—Nobody has to convince Nebraska's third-ranked Cornhuskers they'll run into a pad-cracking defense when they meet LSU Friday night in the Orange Bowl game, but they may find some surprises in the Tiger offensive look.

Tailback Arthur Cantrelle is LSU's offensive star and he would like to see the Tigers loosen up and lean a little more toward razzle-dazzle to offset the high scoring threat of Nebraska.

The season's big game for the Tigers was against Notre Dame. They lost 3-0, and Cantrelle figures it was because they were too uptight.

"We played too conservatively. We were keyed so high because it was such a big game for us I believe we might have been too high," says the five-foot-eleven, 190-pound junior who picked up 97 yards against the Irish and before the season ended broke the LSU season rushing record set by Steve Van Buren in 1943.

Nobody is saying, of course, what Coach Charlie McLendon and the Tigers have up their sleeves for the Cornhuskers, but they are likely to try a few new twists.

The main problem for Nebraska, already with an offense that ranks second only to Texas in amassing points, will be getting through, around or over the Tiger defense, which ranks tops in the country against the rush.

"They're the best defensive team we'll play, and their offense really came along the last few games," says Cornhusker Coach Bob Devaney.

Jerry Tagge, who shares the quarterbacking with Van Brownson for Nebraska, adds: "I've seen films of every LSU game, and they have a great secondary, a great front line, great linebacking—just a great defense."

The Cornhusker ground game is built largely around tailback Joe Orduna, who piled up 834 yards on 187 carries during the regular season. The big receiver is Mighty Mwte — five-feet-nine, 158-pound split end Guy Ingles.

"Nebraska is the best team we've seen all year," said McClendon, obviously rating the 'Huskers over Notre Dame. "It does more things, It is a crushing team."

The LSU defense is led by All-America linebacker Mike Anderson and versatile cornerback Tommy Casanova, who also runs back punts and ran back two of them for touchdowns in the victory over Mississippi.

On offense, LSU also uses two quarterbacks, Buddy Lee and Bert Jones.

Manning And Mates Prep For Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Mississippi quarterback Archie Manning will be wearing a much lighter protective covering on his healing left arm in Saturday's Gator Bowl game against Auburn than he wore four weeks ago when the Rebels were bombed by LSU, 61-17.

Manning will be wearing the same plastic protective sleeve he wore against the Tigers, but there will be no fiberglass cast underneath. And Mississippi coaches are hopeful of getting away with less padding on the sleeve than was required against LSU.

The sleeve itself weighs only about two pounds and Dr. Ferrell Varner, one of the Mississippi team physicians, said it is all that is needed to protect the broken arm. Game officials, however, are expected to require padding on the sleeve to cover exposed laces, which could boost the weight to about four or five pounds.

Varner said the protective encasing weighed about eight pounds in the LSU game and the lighter encasing should help Manning. "It's not the weight," said Varner. The only thing that bothers him is the arm is bent and inflexible."

The officials will examine the sleeve shortly before kickoff Saturday. "They will look at it and we will wrap it if they tell us to," said acting head coach Bruiser Kinard. "We will conform to what they want."

Kinard, filling in for coach Johnny Vaught who is home recuperating from a heart attack, said he will place no restrictions on Manning. "He knows his capabilities," said Kinard. "He will just eliminate from his game plan what he can't do."

Kinard said he had no qualms about Manning running with the ball. "He can take licks on it'" emphasized Kinard.

Kinard said he expects Manning to play "at least half the game" but that reserve quarterback Shug Chumbler would see a lot of action.

Manning wore only the plastic sleeve in a light workout in sweat clothes Wednesday afternoon and looked sharp throwing the ball. Kinard said the team had finished its rough work and he allowed the first team offense to play defense against the reserves in a high-spirited passing drill near the end of practice.

Russell Is Back

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Knicks announced Thursday that Cazzie Russell, out with a broken wrist since Nov. 12, will rejoin the team Saturday night.

Ron Fairly Signs

MONTREAL (UPI) — Ron Fairly, the leading hitter with the Montreal Expos last season, has signed for the 1971 season. Fairly batted .288.

Clay-Frazier Title Fight Will Be $30 Million Event

NEW YORK (UPI)—March 8, 1971 will mark a milestone in sports history.

That's the day agreed upon Wednesday for Joe Frazier, the world heavyweight champion, to meet Cassius Clay, the deposed title holder, for undisputed possession of the championship.

And making it that much sweeter will be the knowledge that the bout will be the richest one-shot sporting event in history, with a guarantee of $2.5 million to each fighter and an expected gross of close to $30 million.

Jack Kent Cooke, the West Coast millionaire sportsman who is behind the fight, set for Madison Square Garden in New York, termed the bout, "the greatest entertainment and sports spectacle of all time."

Jerry Perenchio, president of Chartwell artists of Los Angeles, co-promoter along with Madison Square Garden, said closed-circuit television would provide the biggest payoff in sports history. Perenchio said there would be no radio broadcast of the fight in the United States or Canada nor would there be any delayed television tape setup. Perenchio said he hopes to have more than a million closed circuit theater television seats available in the U.S. and Canada.

Details of the fight were announced at a Wednesday afternoon news conference in which both fighters engaged in the now-routine bantering and both, as usual, predicted knockouts.

"The showdown is here," said Clay after arriving an hour late. "All the talking is over. This match will match an amateur champion against a professional champion, which is me. Joe Frazier got his chance to be a champion when I sat down and I will beat him when we meet."

Clay, who now prefers to be called Muhammad Ali, said Frazier was, "no champion" and told the present title holder: "I'm going to punch you all day."

Frazier, calmer and more controlled than Clay, countered with, "Ali does the talking. I do the fighting. He'll go in seven. He can call me anything he wants. We've got all the time in the world when we get in that ring."

Both are undefeated with Clay sporting a 31-0 record which includes 25 knockouts and Frazier a 26-0 mark with 23 kayoes.

Clay knocked out Sonny Liston on Feb9 25, 1964, to become heavyweight champion and held the title until stripped of it for failing to accept induction into the Armed Forces in 1967. His last fight as champion was in March, 1967 against Zora Folley.

Clay's title was declared vacant and Frazier took a piece of it with a knockout of Buster Mathis on March 4, 1968. He took the whole crown in February with a knockout of Jimmy Ellis, the world Boxing Association champion, who won his crown in an elimination tournament which Frazier refused to enter.

Clay, out of action for 3 1-2 years, returned after a Federal Court order upheld his right-to-work contention and made an impressive debut with a third-round knockout of Jerry Quarry in Atlanta on Oct. 26. He stopped Argentina's Oscar Bonavena on a 15th-round technical knockout earlier this month.

Harry Markson, boxing director for the Garden, said tickets would be scaled from $150 for ringside and loges to $20 for balcony seats. He said a full house would produce a "live" gate of $1.25 million.

Tickets will go on sale Wednesday, Jan. 20.

Clay, who is appealing a five-year sentence for draft evasion, is expected to train for the bout in Miami Beach. Frazier, according to manager Yank Durham, will begin training in Philadelphia in mid-January.

Joyous New Year For Suyderhoud

It will be a particularly joyous New Year's Day tomorrow for Mike Suyderhoud of San Anselmo.

The world's reigning champion water skier will become engaged to Kaye Thurlow, 19, of Bendigo, Australia where Mike is currently training for the 1971 season.

Suyderhoud and Miss Thurlow, who is the Australian women's water ski champ, met on the water in 1967 and plan to wed on terra firma in the summer of 1972 when Mike completes his studies as a chemistry major at Sonoma State College. Congrats.

ONE OF MY favorite sports writers happens to be a 14-year-old San Rafael lad, Kevin Clyde, a ninth grader at the Three R School in San Rafael.

He has two pieces in the December issue of his school's paper, on Jack Kemp and George Blanda.

Young Clyde notes that Kemp, former Buffalo Bills star, is now a Congressman from New York's 39th District and that he has been quoted as saying: "Politics is far more challenging intellectually and campaigning is as physically demanding as football. In football, your opponents are right in front of you; in politics your opponents are everywhere. It is like fighting shadows."

Kevin cutely added: "By coincidence, Curt Flood became a 'Senator' by signing a contract for the 1971 baseball season."

And of Blanda, Oakland's Miracle Worker, young Clyde believes the old geezer will be "bronzed, then put in the Pro Football Hall of Fame." Blanda may be bronzed by the Miami sun next month at the Super Bowl. And I hadn't realized it until Kevin's story reminded me that Blanda has been playing football since Truman was president.

THOSE OF you who watched Arizona State rip North Carolina 48-26 in the nationally-televised Peach Bowl at Atlanta last night may have noticed a local boy chip in his share of the victory for the Sun Devils.

I refer to Bruce Kilby of Terra Linda, substitute defensive end. He saw action late in the game and on one play pressured the Tar Heel quarterback into an errant pass.

IF YOU DON'T have a ticket to Sunday's big playoff game at Kezar between the 49ers and Dallas Cowboys, you can hop in your flivver to catch the blacked-out telecast at not-too-far locations.

The game will be televised live starting at 2 p.m. on Channel 12, Chico; Channel 30, Fresno; Channel 8, Reno, and Channel 3, Eureka.

Some cable TV areas in Sonoma and Contra osta counties also will receive the live telecast. Also, at midnight Sunday the tape delay will be carried on Channel 5 (KPIX) and Channel 10 (KXTV) of Sacramento.

Rams' George Allen Looking For A Job

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Disappointed but not surprised, George Allen started a two-week vacation today before looking for another job after having been fired by club president Dan Reeves as coach of the Los Angeles Rams.

It was the second time in two years that Reeves had fired Allen by telephone. The previous time was on Christmas, 1968, but Reeves rehired the coach after a public outcry over the dismissal and threats of a players' strike.

Allen held a brief press conference Wednesday afternoon a few hours after Reeves had telephoned the coach from New York to inform him his contract would not be renewed.

"I was told in a cold manner that my contract would not be renewed," Allen said. "There was no gratitude, no thanks, no appreciation. I am very disappointed by the dismissal. About the only thing I can say is that I am very proud of the record we achieved with the Rams in the past five years under very difficult circumstances."

Although admitting he had received "some feelers," Allen declined to elaborate or confirm they might be from Green Bay or the Washington Redskins as rumored.

Reeves, in his announcement released by the club, said he had no statement concerning a new coach but added he would do everything he could "to provide the best possible leadership for our players and our fans."

Numerous names were mentioned as possible candidates to succeed Allen. Chief among these was Tom Fears, fired in midseason as coach of the New Orleans Saints and a former Rams player and assistant coach.

Allen apparently had anticipated his contract would not be renewed although he said frankly he wanted to come back to lead the club to a championship.

He refused to say what differences existed between him and Reeves, indicating they had been aired in his previous firing.

Knicks Outshoot Warriors

BOSTON (UPI)—At the rate they're going, the San Francisco Warriors may become accustomed to playing National Basketball Association games during the daylight hours.

For the second consecutive day, the Warriors play an "under sunlight" game—this time against the Boston Celtics. Today's game will mark the end of a four-game road swing for the Warriors.

Their initial daytime game Wednesday wasn't a success. The New York Knickerbockers, quickly becoming a runaway leader in the NBA's Atlantic Division, came from behind in the fourth quarter to take the Warriors, 111-103.

All told, Frazier pumped in 29 points, DeBusschere 27 and Bradley 24.

For San Francisco, Fritz Williams was top scorer with 26 points.

Despite the loss, which makes them 22-19 in the Pacific Division, the Warriors remained just two games behind first-place Los Angeles.

Tars Get Scare From Alumni '5'

Joe Smith tallied 29 points as he rallied the College of Marin Tars to a 78-68 victory over an Alumni team last night in practice basketball at the Kentfield school.

"We were flat, just flat," said Tar coach John Panagakis after his team had to come from behind in the second half.

Ron Blum with 19 points was high for the Alumni.

PROUD OF AFL

Raider Incentive: 'Old Time's Sake'

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders will be battling Sunday for a berth in the Super Bowl, but they will also be playing one for old time's sake.

"We're the only team left from the old AFL (in the playoffs) and this has got to have something to do with it," Raider tackle Tom Keating said Wednesday.

"We'll certainly be playing for the Super Bowl and the money, sure," Keating said, "but we'll be playing for the pride of the old American Football League, too."

The Raiders' opponents in Sunday's American Football Conference game—the Baltimore Colts—are the old NFL addition to the conference.

Some observers, many of them Baltimore fans, claimed the Colts got through the year in easy fashion because of reduced opposition in the AFC.

The Colts coasted to the AFC-East title with an 11-2-1 record. The losses came to former AFL teams Kansas City and Miami and a tie with Buffalo.

"It wasn't the AFL teams," Keating said. "The whole league was mixed up this year."

The Colts have Johnny Unitas, and that's enough to tell Keating and the rest of the Raiders that they're good enough to be in any championship game.

"He (Unitas) still does the same things the same way as he did when I was a little kid," Keating said. "He's got the same style, drops back exactly nine yards and throws the ball as well as ever."

Raider coach John Madden said the long season won't have any effect on the 37-year-old Unitas.

"Age has no bad effect on a single game," Madden said. "In fact, it's a benefit. Think of all those years of experience."

With Unitas and a defense anchored by 295-pound end Bubba Smith, the Raiders know they will have their hands full.

"They claimed the Colts played bad football this year," Keating said. "But they still played good enough to win and that's all you have to do."

Sid Gillman Will Return To Chargers

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The San Diego Chargers got back their original coach today with the announcement that Sid Gillman was returning to mentor the American Football Conference team.

Club president Gene Klein announced Wednesday night that in addition to head coach Gillman would function as exerutive vice president of the Chargers.

Gillman had retired as head coach late in 1969 because of ill health and retained only his title of general manager, a job he will give up under the new alignment. A new general manager will be appointed later.

Klein emphasized that he asked Gillman to return to coaching now that his health had improved. He said Gillman had not suggested the change.

During Gillman's absence from coaching, his job was taken over by Charlie Waller who stepped up from offensive coach, a position to which he will return. During Waller's tenure as head coach, the Chargers had a 5-6-3 season this year.

Petaluma Quint In 84-60 Win

The Petaluma High School Trojans put together one of their typical team efforts and the result was a smooth 84-60 trouncing of the Arcata Tigers of Humboldt County last night in a non-league high school game at Petaluma.

The Trojans were sparked with a 24-point performance from Dave Thomas.

Arcata had a sensational first half performance from Bob Turner. Turner bucketed 18 points in that half, missing few and perplexing his opposition.

Petaluma is now 9-1 won-lost and looking ahead to an important Saturday night meeting with Tamalpais.

Arizona State Romps

ATLANTA (UPI)—North Carolina lived to rue the day it let Monroe Eley get away.

Eley, a native of Nashville, N. C., barely 60 miles from the campus of the University of North Carolina, is a sophomore at Arizona State.

Wednesday night, Eley, who Coach Frank Kush insists "will be a super athlete by the time he's a senior," was the offensive star of the third annual Peach Bowl, leading the Sun Devils to a 48-26 victory over North Carolina's Tar Heels.

Favored Arizona State trailed 26-21 after the Tar Hzels erupted for four touchdowns in less than six minutes near the end of the first half. But Kush turned Eley loose in the snow and the 8th-ranked Sun Devils streaked to their 17th consecutive win.

Eley, a 6-foot-3, 205-pounder, rushed for 76 yards and two touchdowns in the third period and wound up with 173 yards on 23 carries to overshadow North Carolina Don McCauley.

McCauley, who broke O. J. Simpson's rushing record last fall by gaining 1,720 yards and who led the nation's scorers with 21 touchdowns, gained 143 yards and scored three touchdowns—but he was held to just 34 yards after intermission.

Another outstanding Peach Bowl runner was Arizona State's stumpy fullback, Bob Thomas, who gained 124 yards and matched McCauley's three-touchdown performance.

The Peach Bowl, yet to be played in clear weather, had rain that turned to snow in the first period and heavy snow in parts of the second period and nearly all of the third.

"Some of our kids never saw snow before," Kush said. "I was extremely pleased with how they reacted in these conditions. We teach them to run on their toes, but they had to run flatfooted—and they did."

As far as could be determined, it was the first time an Arizona State team had ever played in snow, at least since World War II.

North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley noted that pre-game speculation figured bad weather would favor the Tar Heels, "but it might have hurt us more than it hurt them."

But a more serious problem for North Carolina was losing quarterback Paul Miller who was knocked unconscious by a crashing tackle late in the first half.

"When we lost Paul, we lost a lot of our option," said Dooley. The Tar Heels never got beyond their own 45 in the second half.

Brodie Really Listening To His Coach

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — You can bet San Francisco quarterback John Brodie has been listening to his coach this week during sessions on the Dallas defense.

No one, with the exception of the Dallas coaching staff, probably knows as much about the Cowboy defense as Forty Niner coach Dick Nolan.

You see, Nolan coached the defense for Dallas mentor Tom Landry. He knows the Cowboy veterans. He knows their strengths, their weaknesses.

Nolan's not talking very much about what he knows, at least not to the press. But Brodie and the remainder of the Forty Niner offense are getting the complete rundown on the Dallas "Doomsday" defense.

In reply to a question Wednesday about how much he knows, Nolan simply said: "I know the personnel."

A second question for some elaboration of his first answer got the same reply: "I know the personnel!"

Nolan hinted that his knowledge of the Dallas defense won't give his club an advantage over the Cowboys Sunday in the National Football Conference championship game.

"You must remember that I've been away for almost three years," Nolan said. "Some changes have been made."

There have been some changes in the Cowboy defense, but the core of their defense — lineman Bob Lilly and Jethro Pugh, linebackers Chuck Howley and Lee Roy Jordan and defensive backs Mel Renfro and Cornell Green —is still there.

Of the Dallas line, Nolan said: "They're not only big, but mobile. Pugh probably is the fastest of the bunch and a fine pass rusher."

He said Lilly, a 10-year veteran, reminds him of Forty Niner Tackle Charlie Krueger.

Nolan knows less about the Dallas secondary. The Cowboys have acquired Herb Adderly from the Packers and a rookie, Charlie Waters, is now playing at one cornerback.

There are some disadvantages to being the former defensive coach of the Cowboys. Cowboy coach Tom Landry knows that Nolan patterned the San Francisco defense after the Dallas alignments.

Also, Nolan knows that no matter how much he has in his head about Dallas, his club must execute perfectly against the Cowboy strengths before it can exploit their weaknesses.

It's Turning Into Long Road Trip For Seals

TORONTO (UPI) —It's getting to be a long holiday season road trip for the California Golden Seals. And it's going to get worse before improving.

In an across-the-border National Hockey League game Wednesday night, the Seals bowed to the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-1.

The defeat was the third straight on the road for the Seals, who face Montreal on Saturday and Detroit on Sunday before returning home for a mid-week to-do against St. Louis. But after the game against the Blues, the Seals embark on another four-game eastern swing with stops in Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis and Toronto.

In the Maple Leaf clash, Toronto center Dave Keon reached an NHL milestone when he rammed home his 250th career goal. In addition, he assisted linemate Gary Monahan on a first-period goal.

Keon is only the 28th player in league history to gain entry to the 250-goal club. And it took him only 33 seconds after the opening face-off to reach the mark. He went on a breakaway after picking up Billy McMillan's pass at center and beat Seals goalie Gary Smith with a high shot to the glove side.

California narrowed the margin to 2-1 in the second period when Gerry Ehman knocked in Earl Ingarfield's pass from behind the net. Paul Henderson added Toronto's insurance goal at 2:05 of the third period.

They make Volkswagens, but they buy Renaults.

Last year only 18,132 VW's were sold in France.

Yet, during the same period, Renault sold 112,263 cars in West Germany.

Germans are famous for demanding quality and dependability above all else.

Does that seem to tell you anything?

A List Of 'Don'ts' For Woodie Hayes

You know how it is when you go into a strange or foreign country. They always try to brief you on the native customs and warn you what not to do. For instance, you never speak of a rope in the house of the recently hanged. If you're ever in the Kremlin, it might be best not to steer the conversation around to Stalin, or even Prague.

In other words, you do nothing to make the natives restless. Don't ask the witch doctor if he ever heard of penicillin, and try not to wonder out loud if you're ever in the South Seas why the islanders don't wear more clothes.

IT IS IN this spirit that I try to prepare a minimal code of behavior for a man in our uncivilized midst today — Wayne Woodrow Hayes, the coach of Ohio State, and a man secure in the knowledge that he comes from a superior part of the world, who is always in a high state of terror lest the forces he brings with him go native, so to speak, and suddenly show up wearing hibiscus behind their ears or tapa cloth bathing costumes, or otherwise succumb to the dread lotus fever.

These fears have led Woody to be less than tactful on occasion, and sometimes bring him to slam journalists or other surrogates for the more leisurely way of life into locker room walls.

THIS, AS we all know, is the wrong way to go about missionary work, and it is particularly important not to let the more subversive elements lure us into impulsive or misguided assessments. These cunning fellows will get you put in a pot if you say the wrong thing.

Accordingly, I have prepared a checklist for Woody on how to handle the loaded questions of these benighted wretches, called "sportswriters" in the California jungle — a handy list of tricky questions that may be answered guilessly and disastrously unless forearmed with the proper equivocations. The questions — and the antidotes — follow:

1. "What team in the Big Ten would you compare with Stanford?" (This seemingly innocuous bid for information should be handled with asbestos.)

Avoid the impulsive truth of replying, "Well, from a study of the films, they remind me of the University of Chicago," because the local historians won't realize the University of Chicago dropped football in favor of making atomic bombs 30 years ago, and, before that, had a record of ineptitude matched only by a few other organizations in history, notably the Egyptian Air Force, the St. Louis Browns, or the Paraguayan Davis Cup team.

IT IS BEST to resort to an engimatic answer (like, "Well, their speed reminds me of some of those old Minnesota teams," without necessarily adding WHICH old Minnesota teams you meant, or that some of them had days where they made 367 yards WALKING.

2. "Will it be a high-scoring game?" (Scramble out of THIS one. It has two possible English translations: a) "Will you run up a big score?" or b) "If it's a low-scoring game, and Stanford is a high-scoring team, that means they will lose.")

It is best here to say, "They will put the ball in the air." You don't have to let them know you mean they will punt it, fumble it, or evento suggest they BETTER put the ball in the air, because anybody caught holding it is apt to be separated from it by your linebackers, who will proceed to grab and hold onto the ball and throw the other part into the seats.

3. "Why can't we talk to your players?" (This one is The Bomb. It is susceptible of two interpretations. One is that you have a first-string line that can't talk, that you didn't really recruit it, you baited it with a dead zebra, and that you hold closed practices not to protect your secrets but to protect the spectators in case the cage won't hold. The second, more charitable is that you're not running a squad, you're running Stalag 17.)

You can prove your squad can read and write by inviting written questions, but someone is sure to ask sarcastically if they would be delivered through the Red Coss.

THE THING to do here is to explain that the whole first team has laryngitis but then hastily note it was not caused by smog but that they actually got it while flying over Kansas.

Above all, do NOT offer to bring recordings taped earlier for playing at this more convenient time, because someone is sure to take the recordings to their families to verify it really is their loved ones, and that there really is an Ohio State team and it is not something you wind up and set at 56 points before it takes the field.

4. "Could Jim Plunkett make your team?" (Slam him into a locker.)

FISH AND GAME

No Answer Yet On Mercury Test

By AL GIDDINGS

A few days ago, I received a call from Dr. Loring Dales, who is working with the state health department. He has been working on the mercury problem involving our fish in local waters.

Dr. Ephraim Kahn, of the state health department, assigned by Gov. Reagan to get the facts of the mercury problem, had requested Dr. Dales to actually check some human beings of this area who eat fish in fairly large quantities. It was fitting for Sam Knoles and me to be the first tested.

SAM AND I HAD originally caught 12 bass in late August, nine of which were tested and found to have small amounts of mercury in their tissues. Both Sam and I had eaten fish from these runs, and we had also eaten stripers and sturgeon from San Pablo Bay caught during the winter months (November through April). Both of us fish the year around, and at certain times eat fish possibly three or four times per week. We were prime targets for a test!

Dr. Dales invited us to come over to Berkeley to one of the health department laboratories. Dr. Dales and Dr. Kahn were there along with Ed Arnow of KPIX (TV channel 5). The first test probably given was one I gave! I took along about a pound of smoked sturgeon from one caught two weeks ago off China Camp. I explained what it was, and suggested the doctors help themselves. Did they eat it? You bet they did! So the first part of the experiment was completed. Every piece of that sturgeon was consumed! A good sign!

THE DOCTORS then asked Sam and me a number of questions regarding amounts of fish eaten by us, the size and weights of the fish, the areas from which they were caught plus a general exchange of information. Then we were given the start of a hair test which consisted of taking about a half handful of hair (100 mgs.) They also took blood and urine tests. All of the testing specimens are being sent to the University of Michigan which, it seems, has the equipment necessary for this test. It will be a week to 10 days before the results are known. What will the tests prove? This is a most difficult question. I hesitate to even try an explanation, but here goes. If you're confused, call Dr. Kahn at the state health department at Berkeley.

According to Dr. Dales, some fishermen in Japan were poisoned by mercury. They were tested and found by the hair test to have up to 400 parts per million.

SWEDISH fishermen who were tested by similar tests contained up to 180 p.p.m. These fishermen were not sick, as far as could be determined. The fish consumed contained up to 5 p.p.m. in this case.

I asked Dr. Dales what he thought my hair test would show. He thought I might contain 50 p.p.m. Our local striped bass have been tested and so far have had very small amounts of mercury, from .06 to 1.27 p.p.m. The State Dept. of public Health has a standard or safety factor set at .5 p.p.m. which is extremely low. If these p.p.m. confuse you then 1 p.p.m. is like one dollar is to a million dollars. Or, .02 p.p.m. is like 2 cents is to a million dollars.

WHAT WOULD happen if I contained 50 p.p.m.? Perhaps nothing if I'm not sick. My tolerance is probably much higher — possibly higher than what the Swedish fishermen contained, but certainly less than what the Japanese fishermen contained. As long as I eat fish checked out with levels of .06 and under the .5 p.p.m., I will probably never get sick, with normally functioning kidneys for disposal. The tolerance of man to mercury hasn't been completely established. There are still many unknowns. Dr. Dales did stress that pregnant women should be most hesitant in eating fish with any mercury contents.

East Coach Praises His Shrine Team

SANTA CLARA (UPI) — Head Coach Jim Pont of Indiana had praise for his East Shrine team running backs and defense after the squad worked out Wednesday.

Pont said his players were so aggressive during a dummy drill that his coaching staff had to "cool" them down. He said the players were spirited because the Saturday contest in Oakland against the West is getting closer.

Pont praised the running of backs Mike Adamle of Northwestern and Jim Braxton of West Virginia. He said he was also impressed with the pursuit and quickness of his defensive line which includes Bob Bell of Cincinnati, Bill Gregory of Wisconsin, Randy Lesteyk of West Virginia, Ed McGuire of Indiana and Dartmouth's Barry Brink who lives in nearby Mill Valley.

High Rise Resorts Have Great Snow

By CHARLIE COANE

They begin where other resorts end is an apt description for Slide Mountain and Mount Rose, located back-to-back on Highway 27 about 20 miles west of Reno.

With lodge elevation levels at 8,300 feet and peaks rising to 9,700 feet, Slide Mountain and Mount Rose start 1,500-2,000 feet above most other resorts in California. Consequently, the snow at those areas may just be a shade better than other areas due to the high altitude.

Slide Mountain General Manager Frank Cathcart this year has doubled the size of the parking area, remodeled the lodge and added a new surface lift to provide access to the Little Red Chair lift. Slide also features one of the 12 steepest runs in the United States — Gold Run, accessible off the Pioneer Chair.

The Northwest Passage run off the back side of the area actually is part of Mount Rose and provides some excellent advanced trail skiing. A shuttle bus can run skiers back to the lodge area. Unfortunately for skiers, the two areas have not yet agreed to combine talents in one form or another to allow one ticket good for all lifts at both areas.

Among the interesting programs at Slide is a Ladies Day plan with lessons in the morning and a whole day of skiing on Wednesdays or Thursdays. Babysitting is only 50 cents per hour for the first child and 25 cents for the second. The ski patrol system boasts an all girl division of about a dozen girls between 15 and 23 years old, and former Austrian ski racer Max Bauer heads the ski school. Slide's racing coach is the famous Christian Pravda — 14 times the champion skier of Austria.

Mount Rose is one of the few areas in California which has an overnight lodge. Most areas have just a day lodge, also remodeled this season, can accomodate between 125-150 people and features a special weekend package that includes two nights' lodging, two breakfasts, one dinner and two days lift passes — all for $36.50.

Area managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Luescher, have enlarged their parking area to handle 850-900 cars.

Clay-Frazier Title Fight Will Be $30 Million Event

NEW YORK (UPI)—March 8, 1971 will mark a milestone in sports history.

That's the day agreed upon Wednesday for Joe Frazier, the world heavyweight champion, to meet Cassius Clay, the deposed title holder, for undisputed possession of the championship.

And making it that much sweeter will be the knowledge that the bout will be the richest one-shot sporting event in history, with a guarantee of $2.5 million to each fighter and an expected gross of close to $30 million.

Jack Kent Cooke, the West Coast millionaire sportsman who is behind the fight, set for Madison Square Garden in New York, termed the bout, "the greatest entertainment and sports spectacle of all time."

Jerry Perenchio, president of Chartwell artists of Los Angeles, co-promoter along with Madison Square Garden, said closed-circuit television would provide the biggest payoff in sports history. Perenchio said there would be no radio broadcast of the fight in the United States or Canada nor would there be any delayed television tape setup. Perenchio said he hopes to have more than a million closed circuit theater television seats available in the U.S. and Canada.

Details of the fight were announced at a Wednesday afternoon news conference in which both fighters engaged in the now-routine bantering and both, as usual, predicted knockouts.

"The showdown is here," said Clay after arriving an hour late. "All the talking is over. This match will match an amateur champion against a professional champion, which is me. Joe Frazier got his chance to be a champion when I sat down and I will beat him when we meet."

Clay, who now prefers to be called Muhammad Ali, said Frazier was, "no champion" and told the present title holder: "I'm going to punch you all day."

Frazier, calmer and more controlled than Clay, countered with, "Ali does the talking. I do the fighting. He'll go in seven. He can call me anything he wants. We've got all the time in the world when we get in that ring."

Both are undefeated with Clay sporting a 31-0 record which includes 25 knockouts and Frazier a 26-0 mark with 23 kayoes.

Clay knocked out Sonny Liston on Feb9 25, 1964, to become heavyweight champion and held the title until stripped of it for failing to accept induction into the Armed Forces in 1967. His last fight as champion was in March, 1967 against Zora Folley.

Clay's title was declared vacant and Frazier took a piece of it with a knockout of Buster Mathis on March 4, 1968. He took the whole crown in February with a knockout of Jimmy Ellis, the world Boxing Association champion, who won his crown in an elimination tournament which Frazier refused to enter.

Clay, out of action for 3 1-2 years, returned after a Federal Court order upheld his right-to-work contention and made an impressive debut with a third-round knockout of Jerry Quarry in Atlanta on Oct. 26. He stopped Argentina's Oscar Bonavena on a 15th-round technical knockout earlier this month.

Harry Markson, boxing director for the Garden, said tickets would be scaled from $150 for ringside and loges to $20 for balcony seats. He said a full house would produce a "live" gate of $1.25 million.

Tickets will go on sale Wednesday, Jan. 20.

Clay, who is appealing a five-year sentence for draft evasion, is expected to train for the bout in Miami Beach. Frazier, according to manager Yank Durham, will begin training in Philadelphia in mid-January.

Joyous New Year For Suyderhoud

It will be a particularly joyous New Year's Day tomorrow for Mike Suyderhoud of San Anselmo.

The world's reigning champion water skier will become engaged to Kaye Thurlow, 19, of Bendigo, Australia where Mike is currently training for the 1971 season.

Suyderhoud and Miss Thurlow, who is the Australian women's water ski champ, met on the water in 1967 and plan to wed on terra firma in the summer of 1972 when Mike completes his studies as a chemistry major at Sonoma State College. Congrats.

ONE OF MY favorite sports writers happens to be a 14-year-old San Rafael lad, Kevin Clyde, a ninth grader at the Three R School in San Rafael.

He has two pieces in the December issue of his school's paper, on Jack Kemp and George Blanda.

Young Clyde notes that Kemp, former Buffalo Bills star, is now a Congressman from New York's 39th District and that he has been quoted as saying: "Politics is far more challenging intellectually and campaigning is as physically demanding as football. In football, your opponents are right in front of you; in politics your opponents are everywhere. It is like fighting shadows."

Kevin cutely added: "By coincidence, Curt Flood became a 'Senator' by signing a contract for the 1971 baseball season."

And of Blanda, Oakland's Miracle Worker, young Clyde believes the old geezer will be "bronzed, then put in the Pro Football Hall of Fame." Blanda may be bronzed by the Miami sun next month at the Super Bowl. And I hadn't realized it until Kevin's story reminded me that Blanda has been playing football since Truman was president.

THOSE OF you who watched Arizona State rip North Carolina 48-26 in the nationally-televised Peach Bowl at Atlanta last night may have noticed a local boy chip in his share of the victory for the Sun Devils.

I refer to Bruce Kilby of Terra Linda, substitute defensive end. He saw action late in the game and on one play pressured the Tar Heel quarterback into an errant pass.

IF YOU DON'T have a ticket to Sunday's big playoff game at Kezar between the 49ers and Dallas Cowboys, you can hop in your flivver to catch the blacked-out telecast at not-too-far locations.

The game will be televised live starting at 2 p.m. on Channel 12, Chico; Channel 30, Fresno; Channel 8, Reno, and Channel 3, Eureka.

Some cable TV areas in Sonoma and Contra osta counties also will receive the live telecast. Also, at midnight Sunday the tape delay will be carried on Channel 5 (KPIX) and Channel 10 (KXTV) of Sacramento.

Rams' George Allen Looking For A Job

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Disappointed but not surprised, George Allen started a two-week vacation today before looking for another job after having been fired by club president Dan Reeves as coach of the Los Angeles Rams.

It was the second time in two years that Reeves had fired Allen by telephone. The previous time was on Christmas, 1968, but Reeves rehired the coach after a public outcry over the dismissal and threats of a players' strike.

Allen held a brief press conference Wednesday afternoon a few hours after Reeves had telephoned the coach from New York to inform him his contract would not be renewed.

"I was told in a cold manner that my contract would not be renewed," Allen said. "There was no gratitude, no thanks, no appreciation. I am very disappointed by the dismissal. About the only thing I can say is that I am very proud of the record we achieved with the Rams in the past five years under very difficult circumstances."

Although admitting he had received "some feelers," Allen declined to elaborate or confirm they might be from Green Bay or the Washington Redskins as rumored.

Reeves. in his announcement released by the club, said he had no statement concerning a new coach but added he would do everything he could "to provide the best possible leadership for our players and our fans."

Numerous names were mentioned as possible candidates to succeed Allen. Chief among these was Tom Fears, fired in midseason as coach of the New Orleans Saints and a former Rams player and assistant coach.

Allen apparently had anticipated his contract would not be renewed although he said frankly he wanted to come back to lead the club to a championship.

He refused to say what differences existed between him and Reeves, indicating they had been aired in his previous firing.

Knicks Outshoot Warriors

BOSTON (UPI)—At the rate they're going, the San Francisco Warriors may become accustomed to playing National Basketball Association games during the daylight hours.

For the second consecutive day, the Warriors play an "under sunlight" game—this time against the Boston Celtics. Today's game will mark the end of a four-game road swing for the Warriors.

Their initial daytime game Wednesday wasn't a success. The New York Knickerbockers, quickly becoming a runaway leader in the NBA's Atlantic Division, came from behind in the fourth quarter to take the Warriors, 111-103.

All told, Frazier pumped in 29 points, DeBusschere 27 and Bradley 24.

For San Francisco, Fritz Williams was top scorer with 26 points.

Despite the loss, which makes them 22-19 in the Pacific Division, the Warriors remained just two games behind first-place Los Angeles.

Tars Get Scare From Alumni '5'

Joe Smith tallied 29 points as he rallied the College of Marin Tars to a 78-68 victory over an Alumni team last night in practice basketball at the Kentfield school.

"We were flat, just flat," said Tar coach John Panagakis after his team had to come from behind in the second half.

Ron Blum with 19 points was high for the Alumni.

PROUD OF AFL

Raider Incentive: 'Old Time's Sake'

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Raiders will be battling Sunday for a berth in the Super Bowl, but they will also be playing one for old time's sake.

"We're the only team left from the old AFL (in the playoffs) and this has got to have something to do with it," Raider tackle Tom Keating said Wednesday.

"We'll certainly be playing for the Super Bowl and the money, sure," Keating said, "but we'll be playing for the pride of the old American Football League, too."

The Raiders' opponents in Sunday's American Football Conference game—the Baltimore Colts—are the old NFL addition to the conference.

Some observers, many of them Baltimore fans, claimed the Colts got through the year in easy fashion because of reduced opposition in the AFC.

The Colts coasted to the AFC-East title with an 11-2-1 record. The losses came to former AFL teams Kansas City and Miami and a tie with Buffalo.

"It wasn't the AFL teams," Keating said. "The whole league was mixed up this year."

The Colts have Johnny Unitas, and that's enough to tell Keating and the rest of the Raiders that they're good enough to be in any championship game.

"He (Unitas) still does the same things the same way as he did when I was a little kid," Keating said. "He's got the same style, drops back exactly nine yards and throws the ball as well as ever."

Raider coach John Madden said the long season won't have any effect on the 37-year-old Unitas.

"Age has no bad effect on a single game," Madden said. "In fact, it's a benefit. Think of all those years of experience."

With Unitas and a defense anchored by 295-pound end Bubba Smith, the Raiders know they will have their hands full.

"They claimed the Colts played bad football this year," Keating said. "But they still played good enough to win and that's all you have to do."

Sid Gillman Will Return To Chargers

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—The San Diego Chargers got back their original coach today with the announcement that Sid Gillman was returning to mentor the American Football Conference team.

Club president Gene Klein announced Wednesday night that in addition to head coach Gillman would function as exerutive vice president of the Chargers.

Gillman had retired as head coach late in 1969 because of ill health and retained only his title of general manager, a job he will give up under the new alignment. A new general manager will be appointed later.

Klein emphasized that he asked Gillman to return to coaching now that his health had improved. He said Gillman had not suggested the change.

During Gillman's absence from coaching, his job was taken over by Charlie Waller who stepped up from offensive coach, a position to which he will return. During Waller's tenure as head coach, the Chargers had a 5-6-3 season this year.

Petaluma Quint In 84-60 Win

The Petaluma High School Trojans put together one of their typical team efforts and the result was a smooth 84-60 trouncing of the Arcata Tigers of Humboldt County last night in a non-league high school game at Petaluma.

The Trojans were sparked with a 24-point performance from Dave Thomas.

Arcata had a sensational first half performance from Bob Turner. Turner bucketed 18 points in that half, missing few and perplexing his opposition.

Petaluma is now 9-1 won-lost and looking ahead to an important Saturday night meeting with Tamalpais.

Arizona State Romps

ATLANTA (UPI)—North Carolina lived to rue the day it let Monroe Eley get away.

Eley, a native of Nashville, N. C., barely 60 miles from the campus of the University of North Carolina, is a sophomore at Arizona State.

Wednesday night, Eley, who Coach Frank Kush insists "will be a super athlete by the time he's a senior," was the offensive star of the third annual Peach Bowl, leading the Sun Devils to a 48-26 victory over North Carolina's Tar Heels.

Favored Arizona State trailed 26-21 after the Tar Hzels erupted for four touchdowns in less than six minutes near the end of the first half. But Kush turned Eley loose in the snow and the 8th-ranked Sun Devils streaked to their 17th consecutive win.

Eley, a 6-foot-3, 205-pounder, rushed for 76 yards and two touchdowns in the third period and wound up with 173 yards on 23 carries to overshadow North Carolina Don McCauley.

McCauley, who broke O. J. Simpson's rushing record last fall by gaining 1,720 yards and who led the nation's scorers with 21 touchdowns, gained 143 yards and scored three touchdowns—but he was held to just 34 yards after intermission.

Another outstanding Peach Bowl runner was Arizona State's stumpy fullback, Bob Thomas, who gained 124 yards and matched McCauley's three-touchdown performance.

The Peach Bowl, yet to be played in clear weather, had rain that turned to snow in the first period and heavy snow in parts of the second period and nearly all of the third.

"Some of our kids never saw snow before," Kush said. "I was extremely pleased with how they reacted in these conditions: We teach them to run on their toes, but they had to run flatfooted—and they did."

As far as could be determined, it was the first time an Arizona State team had ever played in snow, at least since World War II.

North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley noted that pre-game speculation figured bad weather would favor the Tar Heels, "but it might have hurt us more than it hurt them."

But a more serious problem for North Carolina was losing quarterback Paul Miller who was knocked unconscious by a crashing tackle late in the first half.

"When we lost Paul, we lost a lot of our option," said Dooley. The Tar Heels never got beyond their own 45 in the second half.

Brodie Really Listening To His Coach

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — You can bet San Francisco quarterback John Brodie has been listening to his coach this week during sessions on the Dallas defense.

No one, with the exception of the Dallas coaching staff, probably knows as much about the Cowboy defense as Forty Niner coach Dick Nolan.

You see, Nolan coached the defense for Dallas mentor Tom Landry. He knows the Cowboy veterans. He knows their strengths, their weaknesses.

Nolan's not talking very much about what he knows, at least not to the press. But Brodie and the remainder of the Forty Niner offense are getting the complete rundown on the Dallas "Doomsday" defense.

In reply to a question Wednesday about how much he knows, Nolan simply said: "I know the personnel."

A second question for some elaboration of his first answer got the same reply: "I know the personnel!"

Nolan hinted that his knowledge of the Dallas defense won't give his club an advantage over the Cowboys Sunday in the National Football Conference championship game.

"You must remember that I've been away for almost three years," Nolan said. "Some changes have been made."

There have been some changes in the Cowboy defense, but the core of their defense — lineman Bob Lilly and Jethro Pugh, linebackers Chuck Howley and Lee Roy Jordan and defensive backs Mel Renfro and Cornell Green —is still there.

Of the Dallas line, Nolan said: "They're not only big, but mobile. Pugh probably is the fastest of the bunch and a fine pass rusher."

He said Lilly, a 10-year veteran, reminds him of Forty Niner Tackle Charlie Krueger.

Nolan knows less about the Dallas secondary. The Cowboys have acquired Herb Adderly from the Packers and a rookie, Charlie Waters, is now playing at one cornerback.

There are some disadvantages to being the former defensive coach of the Cowboys. Cowboy coach Tom Landry knows that Nolan patterned the San Francisco defense after the Dallas alignments.

Also, Nolan knows that no matter how much he has in his head about Dallas, his club must execute perfectly against the Cowboy strengths before it can exploit their weaknesses.

It's Turning Into Long Road Trip For Seals

TORONTO (UPI) —It's getting to be a long holiday season road trip for the California Golden Seals. And it's going to get worse before improving.

In an across-the-border National Hockey League game Wednesday night, the Seals bowed to the Toronto Maple Leafs, 3-1.

The defeat was the third straight on the road for the Seals, who face Montreal on Saturday and Detroit on Sunday before returning home for a mid-week to-do against St. Louis. But after the game against the Blues, the Seals embark on another four-game eastern swing with stops in Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis and Toronto.

In the Maple Leaf clash, Toronto center Dave Keon reached an NHL milestone when he rammed home his 250th career goal. In addition, he assisted linemate Gary Monahan on a first-period goal.

Keon is only the 28th player in league history to gain entry to the 250-goal club. And it took him only 33 seconds after the opening face-off to reach the mark. He went on a breakaway after picking up Billy McMillan's pass at center and beat Seals goalie Gary Smith with a high shot to the glove side.

California narrowed the margin to 2-1 in the second period when Gerry Ehman knocked in Earl Ingarfield's pass from behind the net. Paul Henderson added Toronto's insurance goal at 2:05 of the third period.

They make Volkswagens, but they buy Renaults.

Last year only 18,132 VW's were sold in France.

Yet, during the same period, Renault sold 112,263 cars in West Germany.

Germans are famous for demanding quality and dependability above all else.

Does that seem to tell you anything?

Ara And Boys Happy To Be In Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (UPI)—Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian wants to clear one thing up.

He is happy to be in Dallas and his players are happy to be in Dallas, even if they do open the local sports pages to see pictures of Nebraska and LSU players romping along Miami Beach with bikini-clad lasses in tow.

It had been reported soon after Notre Dame accepted the Cotton Bowl invitation that the Irish players had wanted to make the trip to Miami and take on the Nebraska Cornhuskers. But, the report went, Parseghian persuaded the players to opt for Dallas and the Cotton Bowl and the hopes of meeting No. 1 Texas.

That's not the way it went at all, Parseghian said. This is the way it went.

"After the Georgia Tech game," said Parseghian, "Father (Edmund) Joyce, who is head of our athletic council, came to me and said maybe we ought to take a straw vote of our players.

"We asked them four questions. We asked them if they would like to come to Dallas and play the winner of the Southwest Conference. We asked them if, instead, would they like to go to the Orange Bowl and probably play Nebraska. We asked them if they wanted to play in a game at all if we lost to LSU, and we asked them if they thought a bowl game would interfere with their studies."

The straw vote indicated the players did not think making a bowl trip would hamper their academic life, and, surprising to Parseghian, they said they would like to go bowling even if they did stumble against LSU.

"And they voted 52 per cent to 48 per cent in favor of making the Orange Bowl trip over the Cotton Bowl," Parseghian said. "I was surprised the vote would be that close."

Then came the LSU game and a squeaky 3-0 Notre Dame victory. Bowl invitations were offered by both the Orange and Cotton people.

"The vote was almost unanimous in favor of the Cotton Bowl," said Parseghian.

"The story which appeared about the players wanting to go to the Orange Bowl was based on the earlier vote."

And so Notre Dame came to Dallas and Parseghian and his players have found everything just fine. Well, almost everything.

Some of the Notre Dame players—flanker Tom Gatewood in particular—have complained about a dusty material floating up off the Cotton Bowl Astroturf.

"We have found out it is a sort of a film on the artificial turf," Parseghian said. "It makes the ball dry and the players hands dry.

"I'm told by an official at the University of Texas (which has had Astroturf on its playing field for two years) that..the problem is inherent in the turf for about six months after its installation.

"I think we can solve it easily by spraying some tacky substance on the receivers and backs hands."

Brodie, Taylor Give Landry Most Concern

DALLAS (UPI)—San Francisco quarterback John Brodie and kick return specialist Bruce Taylor are giving Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry the most concern during the week leading up to the clubs' National Conference title game Sunday in Kezar Stadium.

"You can get beat awfully quick and in a hurry when you face a great passer," Landry said. "And Brodie is that.

"He is a great thrower—his statistics are almost unsurpassed," Landry said.

Cowboys scout Ermal Allen also pointed out that he has filmed, timed and rated the 26 pro quarterbacks and that Brodie is the second fastest man at getting rid of the ball. (Joe Namath of the New York Jets is No. 1).

"Nobody else has done it very successfully, but I think we'll need to pressure Brodie even if we don't rap him," Landry said. He noted that the Forty Niners had permitted Brodie to be trapped only eight times.

"We did it some here last year (in a 24-24 tie), but San Francisco is a much better club now than then," Landry said. "We've got to at least make him throw quick. We can't give him too much time or he'll destroy us."

Turning to Taylor, whose kick returns had a big hand in setting up San Francisco touchdowns in the 17-14 verdict over Minnesota last week, Landry called the rookie's ability "uncanny" and said it had played a major role in turning the West Coast team's record around.

"We are most concerned about Brodie and we are concerned about Taylor," Landry said. "Our defense will have to minimize both of them."

Landry said he thought the Cowboys would have to score "at least three touchdowns to be in the ball game" because of the Forty Niners' great offense.

Plunkett's Passing Vs. Ohio State Might

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Stanford University, returning to the Rose Bowl after an absence of 19 years, will pit the passing of Heisman trophy winner Jim Plunkett against the defensive might of Ohio State Friday in the 57th renewal of the New Year's Day football classic.

The game brings together an Ohio State team with a 9-0 record this season and a Stanford club with a more spotty 8-3 record. On the basis of their performances this season, the Buckeyes were installed 11-point favorites for a fifth straight win in the Rose Bowl

Stanford has been in the New Year's Day game only once since the closed agreement between the Pacific Coast and the Big Ten started in 1947 and on that visit the Indians were beaten 40-7 by Illinois.

Coach John Ralston, however, feels that his team has shown the ability to get up for the big ones and points out two of his club's three losses came after Stanford had clinched the Pacific-8 championship.

"I never felt it was an honor to come to a bowl game and lose," the Stanford coach commented. "We have had no problem in getting our players up for Ohio State

Ever since the Buckeyes arrived, however, Hayes has extolled Plunkett as one of football's great players and great passers. The 6-foot-3 quarterback unquestionably will be subjected to the greatest rush he has been accorded this season when he goes against the Buckeyes.

Although Stanford's offense is built around Plunkett and every team the Indians have met has tried to stop him, he demonstrated his ability by becoming the first player in football history to gain more than 7,000 yards in total offense, proving himself a good rusher as well as an outstanding passer.

Plunkett's favorite receivers are Randy Vataha and Bobby Moore while the Indians' top running backs are Hillary Shockley and Jackie Brown.

Stanford's first loss was to Purdue, a team Ohio State had trouble beating 10-7. The Indians, however, may have been looking ahead to the University of Southen California the following week, a game they won 24-14 to start their drive to the Rose Bowl. Their other losses were to the Air Force and California after the bowl bid was clinched.

The Buckeyes are led by Rex Kern, a typical Woody Hayes quarterback who handles the Ohio State option play to perfection, runs well and can pass when it is required.

The big running back for the Buckeyes is John Brockington who set a school record by gaining 1,040 yards the past season and scored 15 touchdowns. He is joined in the rushing by Leo Hayden who has netted 719 yards on 131 carries for a 5.5. average.

It is Ohio State's defenses, however, that have played the major role in their perfect season. The Buckeyes permitted only one team, Illinois to score more than two touchdowns, the Illini getting 29 points to 48 for the Ohio team.

Jim Stillwagon, middle guard chosen UPI Lineman of the Year, leads the defense which also features cornerback Jack Tatum and safety Mike Sensibaugh among its stars.

Although both teams have run up large scores on occasion, the Buckeyes as much as 56 points against Texas A&M and Stanford 63 against Washington State, neither coach expected the game to be a high-scoring contest.

The traditional capacity crowd of 100,000 will witness the Rose Bowl encounter which gets underway at 2 p.m. PST AND WILL BE CARRIED BY THE NBC television network

Tennessee Is Ripe For Upset

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Twenty-nine-year-old Bill Battle is sitting on a powder keg of emotion in his bid to complete one of the best rookie coaching seasons in collegiate football history.

If Battle is concerned, he isn't showing it. But his Tennessee Volunteers, one-touchdown favorites, are ripe for one of the season's major upsets in the Sugar Bowl Friday.

All the upset elements are there for the emotionally charged Air Force Falcons to pounce on.

Even Battle gave hint to the possibility Wednesday.

"The weather, the frame of mind everybody's in, and the breaks will decide the ball game," the nation's youngest major college head coach said.

Partly cloudy skies and 60 degree temperatures are predicted.

The 1 p.m. EST battle puts Tennessee's 10-1 record, fourth-place national standing, nine-game winning streak and Southeastern Conference prestige on the line against Ben Martin's hungry Falcons.

The Falcons have everything to gain, little to lose. They are 9-2, ranked 11th and anxious to make up for that 49-19 loss to Colorado in the regular season finale.

"You're going to see a fresh Air Force team that's ready to play," Falcon all-America flanker Ernie Jennings told newsmen. He admitted the Air Force let its guard down against Colorado.

Battle said there's no reason for his Volunteers to let their guard down Friday.

"They've looked at the same Air Force movies I've seen," he said, adding that the Falcons may be even quicker than Tennessee.

ORANGE BOWL

LSU Could Have Some Surprises

MIAMI (UPI)—Nobody has to convince Nebraska's third-ranked Cornhuskers they'll run into a pad-cracking defense when they meet LSU Friday night in the Orange Bowl game, but they may find some surprises in the Tiger offensive look.

Tailback Arthur Cantrelle is LSU's offensive star and he would like to see the Tigers loosen up and lean a little more toward razzle-dazzle to offset the high scoring threat of Nebraska.

The season's big game for the Tigers was against Notre Dame. They lost 3-0, and Cantrelle figures it was because they were too uptight.

"We played too conservatively. We were keyed so high because it was such a big game for us I believe we might have been too high," says the five-foot-eleven, 190-pound junior who picked up 97 yards against the Irish and before the season ended broke the LSU season rushing record set by Steve Van Buren in 1943.

Nobody is saying, of course, what Coach Charlie McLendon and the Tigers have up their sleeves for the Cornhuskers, but they are likely to try a few new twists.

The main problem for Nebraska, already with an offense that ranks second only to Texas in amassing points, will be getting through, around or over the Tiger defense, which ranks tops in the country against the rush.

"They're the best defensive team we'll play, and their offense really came along the last few games," says Cornhusker Coach Bob Devaney.

Jerry Tagge, who shares the quarterbacking with Van Brownson for Nebraska, adds: "I've seen films of every LSU game, and they have a great secondary, a great front line, great linebacking—just a great defense."

The Cornhusker ground game is built largely around tailback Joe Orduna, who piled up 834 yards on 187 carries during the regular season. The big receiver is Mighty Mwte — five-feet-nine, 158-pound split end Guy Ingles.

"Nebraska is the best team we've seen all year," said McClendon, obviously rating the 'Huskers over Notre Dame. "It does more things, It is a crushing team."

The LSU defense is led by All-America linebacker Mike Anderson and versatile cornerback Tommy Casanova, who also runs back punts and ran back two of them for touchdowns in the victory over Mississippi.

On offense, LSU also uses two quarterbacks, Buddy Lee and Bert Jones.

Manning And Mates Prep For Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Mississippi quarterback Archie Manning will be wearing a much lighter protective covering on his healing left arm in Saturday's Gator Bowl game against Auburn than he wore four weeks ago when the Rebels were bombed by LSU, 61-17.

Manning will be wearing the same plastic protective sleeve he wore against the Tigers, but there will be no fiberglass cast underneath. And Mississippi coaches are hopeful of getting away with less padding on the sleeve than was required against LSU.

The sleeve itself weighs only about two pounds and Dr. Ferrell Varner, one of the Mississippi team physicians, said it is all that is needed to protect the broken arm. Game officials, however, are expected to require padding on the sleeve to cover exposed laces, which could boost the weight to about four or five pounds.

Varner said the protective encasing weighed about eight pounds in the LSU game and the lighter encasing should help Manning. "It's not the weight," said Varner. The only thing that bothers him is the arm is bent and inflexible."

The officials will examine the sleeve shortly before kickoff Saturday. "They will look at it and we will wrap it if they tell us to," said acting head coach Bruiser Kinard. "We will conform to what they want."

Kinard, filling in for coach Johnny Vaught who is home recuperating from a heart attack, said he will place no restrictions on Manning. "He knows his capabilities," said Kinard. "He will just eliminate from his game plan what he can't do."

Kinard said he had no qualms about Manning running with the ball. "He can take licks on it'" emphasized Kinard.

Kinard said he expects Manning to play "at least half the game" but that reserve quarterback Shug Chumbler would see a lot of action.

Manning wore only the plastic sleeve in a light workout in sweat clothes Wednesday afternoon and looked sharp throwing the ball. Kinard said the team had finished its rough work and he allowed the first team offense to play defense against the reserves in a high-spirited passing drill near the end of practice.

Russell Is Back

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Knicks announced Thursday that Cazzie Russell, out with a broken wrist since Nov. 12, will rejoin the team Saturday night.

Ron Fairly Signs

MONTREAL (UPI) — Ron Fairly, the leading hitter with the Montreal Expos last season, has signed for the 1971 season. Fairly batted .288.

Investor Advised: Sell For Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own shares of Computing & Software which cost me $3.00 a share and pay no dividend. I am 68 years old and could always use more income. What is the company's future and should I sell to invest for income? — C. R.

A. Computing & Software is one of the leading suppliers of EDP software service support in the country — a rapidly growing but highly competitive industry. Past earnings performance reflects the growth of this market.

In the last five years, per share profits for Computing & Software advanced tenfold, from 10 cents in 1964 to $1.11 in 1969. And, while estimates for fiscal 1970 have been trimmed to $1.20-$1.30 a share (due to a disappointing 3rd period), a 12.6 per cent advance is still forecast.

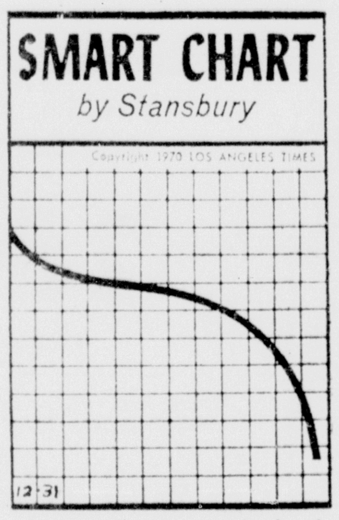
In the third quarter, Education & Personnel division revenues dropped 30 per cent, thus the company's total earnings per share for the nine months ended July were 91 cents versus fiscal 1969's restated 70 cents. Although this is a creditable gain, it is not up to par for fast-moving C&S. Stock represents an intriguing speculation for the aggressive investor. However, since you appear to be more interested in income, take the profit available and reinvest in Duquesne Light, yielding 7.2 per cent.

Q. Would you please comment on Pitney-Bowes? I have been a stockholder for many years and cannot understand the recent weakness in these shares. — W. F.

A. A disappointing third quarter and limited investor interest in the office equipment group have exerted pressure on Pitney-Bowes' shares. The company reported a 26 per cent earnings decline in the most recent period which nearly offset previous gains.

Nine-month net income was held to a 1 per cent advance on a 14 per cent increase in sales. The general business slowdown and reduced capital spending were largely responsible for the poor showing.

Moreover, sluggishness in the retail field adversely affected operations of the subsidiary, Monarch Marking Systems. While 1970 may show little improvement over last year, renewed growth is expected for 1971 aided by a stronger economy and improved operating efficiency.



"Last year it was lack of communication. This year it was lack of money."

Volume Hits High Mark On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new yearly sales record was posted at mid-session Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange as investors, concerned with last minute portfolio adjustments, kept prices lower. Turnover was moderate.

At 12:51 p.m. turnover reached 7,600,000 shares which pushed the yearly figure over the previous record of 2,931,556,000 shares set in 1968.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was off 3.35 at 837.97 and declines held a sizable 749 to 486 lead over advances among the 1,577 issues on the tape.

Analysts generally felt the lower prices reflected normal last minute selling by investors attempting to adjust their portfolios before the new year.

Federal National Mortgage topped, unchanged, the active list. American Telephone and Transcontinental Investing followed, both losing fractions. Penn Central was also active and unchanged.

General Motors, after reaching its high for the year Wednesday, slid 1½. Atlantic Richfield dropped 1⅛, and Disney lost 2¼. GE was awarded a multiyear subcontract Wednesday from Litton Industries to produce a marine gas-turbine engine for Navy destroyers. The contract has a potential value of $130 million.

Steels were soft and airlines were mixed.

Slight Drop Seen

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) — Norfolk & Western Railway said its capital outlays in 1970 will drop only slightly to 100 million from the $102 million spent this year. Of the total, $30 million will go to extend lines to new coal mines.

Aluminum Gets Cutback

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reynolds Metals Co. has announced it is cutting back primary aluminum production by 16.7 per cent of domestic capacity to bring supplies closer in line with demand.

Reynolds said it is cutting back output at its plants in Listerhill, Ala., Jones Mills, Ark., Troutdale, Ore., and Longview, Wash., by an aggregate 13,000 tons per month. Reynolds' domestic capacity is about 78,000 tons per month.

Domestic aluminum producers began posting production cuts and deferring new capacity additions earlier this year to keep supplies in line with demand.

Nuclear Fuel

ELMSFORD, N.Y. (UPI) — United Nuclear Corp. has obtained a $50 million order from Duke Power Co. of Charlotte, N.C., for nuclear fuel for Oconee Power Station.

German Trade Surplus Down

WIELSBADEN, Germany (UPI) — West Germany's large foreign trade surplus dipped sharply in November, the federal statistics office said.

Figures released by the agency listed the November surplus at $184.97 million, well under the $466.94 million in October and the $394.80 million in November, 1969.

Exports in November totaled $2.84 billion, down 10 per cent from the previous month.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Feast-And-Famine Year For Steel

Afeast-and-famine year in 1971 for the U.S. steel industry is foreseen by the business magazine Industry Week.

The year-end holidays are holding down steel production, but output will rebound during the first week in January, says the publication. This will be followed by an increase in shipments to record highs before the end of July as steel users hedge against a steelworkers strike. After that there won't be much doing at steel plants for several months — whether or not there is a strike. Steel users will be living off their stockpiles.

In spite of steel problems, a brighter economic outlook for 1971 is forecast by the chief economist of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Dr. Carl H. Madden sees the gross national product next year rising about 7 per cent to possibly $1,050 billion. Higher prices will account for about 4 per cent and the remaining 3 per cent will represent real GNP growth — compared to zero growth in 1970.

Consumers should increase overall spending about 7.75 per cent in 1971. Most spending is expected to be in housing and durables.

SKAGGS DRUGS CENTERS, INC. and KATZ DRUG CO. stockholders have approved the merger of Katz into a newly formed subsidiary of Skaggs in a tax-free exchange of common stock. Katz will continue to operate under its own name. Skaggs shareholders have also approved changing the company's name to Skaggs Companies, Inc.

GOLDEN WEST SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION has had its acquisition of Napa Savings and Loan Association approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank. Golden West's total assets are now about $320 million. Napa Savings has operated since 1886. It's office will now become Golden West's Napa Valley Regional headquarters.

AMFAC, INC. has purchased four discount stores from Baza'r located in Pleasant Hill, Mountain View, San Jose and Cupertino. Baza'r will continue to operate the food markets in the stores. Amfac has also purchased a 43-acre parcel in Dublin, Alameda County where it will construct a 135,000-square foot discount store and a 240,000-square foot office and distribution center.

SECURITY PACIFIC NATIONAL BANK will open a representative office in Mexico City Jan. 20. The bank predicts that the northern coastal counties in Califonria will achieve a record high in building permits for the 1970 year. But valuations in nine of the counties declined in permit valuations (Marin among them — down 17 per cent).

WESTERN DECOR AND FURNISHING INDUSTRIES, Oakland creditors of two wholly owned subsidiaries acquired this year have agreed to convert approximately $821,000 of subsidiary debt into 145,000 shares of stock in the parent company. Two subsidiaries were Springfield Furniture Works and Norquist Products.

SUNSET LIFE INSURANCE CO. has declared a 5-per cent dividend payable in stock, together with a two-for-one stock split, subject to approval by shareholders at a Jan. 21 meeting. Par value of the stock will be reduced from $5 per share to $2.50 per share.

F. W. WOOLWORTH CO. expects retail sales in 1971 to climb about 6 per cent to some $388 billion. The company added 33 new stores in 1970 and will continue this expansion program.

LST ELECTRONICS of Berkeley, which took control of Micro Chemical Specialties during the middle of the year, reports first quarter sales up 42 per cent and profits up 181 per cent compared to previous year figures.

Manufactures Slip 3.6 Per Cent To $24 Billion

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — California's manufactures, which account for 21.2 per cent of all goods and services produced in the state, declined 3.6 per cent in a year to a November total of $24.77 billion (measured at an annual rate), according to a report issued by the Bank of California.

The metal complex, down 10.6 per cent from a year ago in November, saw its two major components, production of transportation equipment and electrical equipment, continue to decline last month.

In the production of goods and services, manufacturing is one of the nine major industrial components in the tri-state bank's economic series.

In concept, value added by manufactures is measured by subtracting the cost of materials on arrival at the plant for processing from their value upon completion of the manufacture. The bank's estimates, which derive from its more extensive series, the "Pacific Coast Market & Business," are preliminary and are seasonally adjusted at an annual rate.

Manufacturing payrolls totaled $14.56 billion (measured at an annual rate) in November, and accounted for 23.7 per cent of all wages and salaries paid in the state. Durable goods production fell 6.4 per cent to $15.52 billion, and nondurable production inched up 1.6 per cent to $9.25 billion.

The metal complex, representing 41 per cent of all manufactures, dropped 10.6 per cent on a year to $10.17 billion in November.

Transportation equipment production stood 21.1 per cent behind a year ago at $2.88 billion, but declines have narrowed in the past three months.

Production of electrical components and equipment decreased 9.6 per cent to $2.65 billion, as communication equipment fell substantially.

Machinery production dipped 2.3 per cent to $2.10 billion, primary metal production, which had been above the $1 billion level at the beginning of the year, dropped 6.9 per cent to $940 million, and fabrication of metal products declined 2.4 per cent to $1.60 billion.

The bank's December forecast anticipates another slight decline in California manufactures to $24.70 billion. Durable equipment production is expected to fall moderately to $15.44 billion, while nondurable production rises slightly to $9.26 billion.

$1.9 Million Loss At Memory Firm

SUNNYVALE (BW) — Advanced Memory Systems Inc. has announced sales of $465,967 and other revenue of $137,008 in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 — the company's first full year of operations — according to S. Kershner, vice president of finance for the Sunnyvale firm that specializes in semiconductor memory products.

The company shows a net loss of $1,908,336.

Ara And Boys Happy To Be In Cotton Bowl

DALLAS (UPI)—Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian wants to clear one thing up.

He is happy to be in Dallas and his players are happy to be in Dallas, even if they do open the local sports pages to see pictures of Nebraska and LSU players romping along Miami Beach with bikini-clad lasses in tow.

It had been reported soon after Notre Dame accepted the Cotton Bowl invitation that the Irish players had wanted to make the trip to Miami and take on the Nebraska Cornhuskers. But, the report went, Parseghian persuaded the players to opt for Dallas and the Cotton Bowl and the hopes of meeting No. 1 Texas.

That's not the way it went at all, Parseghian said. This is the way it went.

"After the Georgia Tech game," said Parseghian, "Father (Edmund) Joyce, who is head of our athletic council, came to me and said maybe we ought to take a straw vote of our players.

"We asked them four questions. We asked them if they would like to come to Dallas and play the winner of the Southwest Conference. We asked them if, instead, would they like to go to the Orange Bowl and probably play Nebraska. We asked them if they wanted to play in a game at all if we lost to LSU, and we asked them if they thought a bowl game would interfere with their studies."

The straw vote indicated the players did not think making a bowl trip would hamper their academic life, and, surprising to Parseghian, they said they would like to go bowling even if they did stumble against LSU.

"And they voted 52 per cent to 48 per cent in favor of making the Orange Bowl trip over the Cotton Bowl," Parseghian said. "I was surprised the vote would be that close."

Then came the LSU game and a squeaky 3-0 Notre Dame victory. Bowl invitations were offered by both the Orange and Cotton people.

"The vote was almost unanimous in favor of the Cotton Bowl," said Parseghian.

"The story which appeared about the players wanting to go to the Orange Bowl was based on the earlier vote."

And so Notre Dame came to Dallas and Parseghian and his players have found everything just fine. Well, almost everything.

Some of the Notre Dame players—flanker Tom Gatewood in particular—have complained about a dusty material floating up off the Cotton Bowl Astroturf.

"We have found out it is a sort of a film on the artificial turf," Parseghian said. "It makes the ball dry and the players hands dry.

"I'm told by an official at the University of Texas (which has had Astroturf on its playing field for two years) that..the problem is inherent in the turf for about six months after its installation.

"I think we can solve it easily by spraying some tacky substance on the receivers and backs hands."

Brodie, Taylor Give Landry Most Concern

DALLAS (UPI)—San Francisco quarterback John Brodie and kick return specialist Bruce Taylor are giving Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry the most concern during the week leading up to the clubs' National Conference title game Sunday in Kezar Stadium.

"You can get beat awfully quick and in a hurry when you face a great passer," Landry said. "And Brodie is that.

"He is a great thrower—his statistics are almost unsurpassed," Landry said.

Cowboys scout Ermal Allen also pointed out that he has filmed, timed and rated the 26 pro quarterbacks and that Brodie is the second fastest man at getting rid of the ball. (Joe Namath of the New York Jets is No. 1).

"Nobody else has done it very successfully, but I think we'll need to pressure Brodie even if we don't rap him," Landry said. He noted that the Forty Niners had permitted Brodie to be trapped only eight times.

"We did it some here last year (in a 24-24 tie), but San Francisco is a much better club now than then," Landry said. "We've got to at least make him throw quick. We can't give him too much time or he'll destroy us."

Turning to Taylor, whose kick returns had a big hand in setting up San Francisco touchdowns in the 17-14 verdict over Minnesota last week, Landry called the rookie's ability "uncanny" and said it had played a major role in turning the West Coast team's record around.

"We are most concerned about Brodie and we are concerned about Taylor," Landry said. "Our defense will have to minimize both of them."

Landry said he thought the Cowboys would have to score "at least three touchdowns to be in the ball game" because of the Forty Niners' great offense.

Plunkett's Passing Vs. Ohio State Might

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Stanford University, returning to the Rose Bowl after an absence of 19 years, will pit the passing of Heisman trophy winner Jim Plunkett against the defensive might of Ohio State Friday in the 57th renewal of the New Year's Day football classic.

The game brings together an Ohio State team with a 9-0 record this season and a Stanford club with a more spotty 8-3 record. On the basis of their performances this season, the Buckeyes were installed 11-point favorites for a fifth straight win in the Rose Bowl

Stanford has been in the New Year's Day game only once since the closed agreement between the Pacific Coast and the Big Ten started in 1947 and on that visit the Indians were beaten 40-7 by Illinois.

Coach John Ralston, however, feels that his team has shown the ability to get up for the big ones and points out two of his club's three losses came after Stanford had clinched the Pacific-8 championship.

"I never felt it was an honor to come to a bowl game and lose," the Stanford coach commented. "We have had no problem in getting our players up for Ohio State

Ever since the Buckeyes arrived, however, Hayes has extolled Plunkett as one of football's great players and great passers. The 6-foot-3 quarterback unquestionably will be subjected to the greatest rush he has been accorded this season when he goes against the Buckeyes.

Although Stanford's offense is built around Plunkett and every team the Indians have met has tried to stop him, he demonstrated his ability by becoming the first player in football history to gain more than 7,000 yards in total offense, proving himself a good rusher as well as an outstanding passer.

Plunkett's favorite receivers are Randy Vataha and Bobby Moore while the Indians' top running backs are Hillary Shockley and Jackie Brown.

Stanford's first loss was to Purdue, a team Ohio State had trouble beating 10-7. The Indians, however, may have been looking ahead to the University of Southen California the following week, a game they won 24-14 to start their drive to the Rose Bowl. Their other losses were to the Air Force and California after the bowl bid was clinched.

The Buckeyes are led by Rex Kern, a typical Woody Hayes quarterback who handles the Ohio State option play to perfection, runs well and can pass when it is required.

The big running back for the Buckeyes is John Brockington who set a school record by gaining 1,040 yards the past season and scored 15 touchdowns. He is joined in the rushing by Leo Hayden who has netted 719 yards on 131 carries for a 5.5. average.

It is Ohio State's defenses, however, that have played the major role in their perfect season. The Buckeyes permitted only one team, Illinois to score more than two touchdowns, the Illini getting 29 points to 48 for the Ohio team.

Jim Stillwagon, middle guard chosen UPI Lineman of the Year, leads the defense which also features cornerback Jack Tatum and safety Mike Sensibaugh among its stars.

Although both teams have run up large scores on occasion, the Buckeyes as much as 56 points against Texas A&M and Stanford 63 against Washington State, neither coach expected the game to be a high-scoring contest.

The traditional capacity crowd of 100,000 will witness the Rose Bowl encounter which gets underway at 2 p.m. PST AND WILL BE CARRIED BY THE NBC television network

Tennessee Is Ripe For Upset

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Twenty-nine-year-old Bill Battle is sitting on a powder keg of emotion in his bid to complete one of the best rookie coaching seasons in collegiate football history.

If Battle is concerned, he isn't showing it. But his Tennessee Volunteers, one-touchdown favorites, are ripe for one of the season's major upsets in the Sugar Bowl Friday.

All the upset elements are there for the emotionally charged Air Force Falcons to pounce on.

Even Battle gave hint to the possibility Wednesday.

"The weather, the frame of mind everybody's in, and the breaks will decide the ball game," the nation's youngest major college head coach said.

Partly cloudy skies and 60 degree temperatures are predicted.

The 1 p.m. EST battle puts Tennessee's 10-1 record, fourth-place national standing, nine-game winning streak and Southeastern Conference prestige on the line against Ben Martin's hungry Falcons.

The Falcons have everything to gain, little to lose. They are 9-2, ranked 11th and anxious to make up for that 49-19 loss to Colorado in the regular season finale.

"You're going to see a fresh Air Force team that's ready to play," Falcon all-America flanker Ernie Jennings told newsmen. He admitted the Air Force let its guard down against Colorado.

Battle said there's no reason for his Volunteers to let their guard down Friday.

"They've looked at the same Air Force movies I've seen," he said, adding that the Falcons may be even quicker than Tennessee.

ORANGE BOWL

LSU Could Have Some Surprises

MIAMI (UPI)—Nobody has to convince Nebraska's third-ranked Cornhuskers they'll run into a pad-cracking defense when they meet LSU Friday night in the Orange Bowl game, but they may find some surprises in the Tiger offensive look.

Tailback Arthur Cantrelle is LSU's offensive star and he would like to see the Tigers loosen up and lean a little more toward razzle-dazzle to offset the high scoring threat of Nebraska.

The season's big game for the Tigers was against Notre Dame. They lost 3-0, and Cantrelle figures it was because they were too uptight.

"We played too conservatively. We were keyed so high because it was such a big game for us I believe we might have been too high," says the five-foot-eleven, 190-pound junior who picked up 97 yards against the Irish and before the season ended broke the LSU season rushing record set by Steve Van Buren in 1943.

Nobody is saying, of course, what Coach Charlie McLendon and the Tigers have up their sleeves for the Cornhuskers, but they are likely to try a few new twists.

The main problem for Nebraska, already with an offense that ranks second only to Texas in amassing points, will be getting through, around or over the Tiger defense, which ranks tops in the country against the rush.

"They're the best defensive team we'll play, and their offense really came along the last few games," says Cornhusker Coach Bob Devaney.

Jerry Tagge, who shares the quarterbacking with Van Brownson for Nebraska, adds: "I've seen films of every LSU game, and they have a great secondary, a great front line, great linebacking—just a great defense."

The Cornhusker ground game is built largely around tailback Joe Orduna, who piled up 834 yards on 187 carries during the regular season. The big receiver is Mighty Mwte — five-feet-nine, 158-pound split end Guy Ingles.

"Nebraska is the best team we've seen all year," said McClendon, obviously rating the 'Huskers over Notre Dame. "It does more things, It is a crushing team."

The LSU defense is led by All-America linebacker Mike Anderson and versatile cornerback Tommy Casanova, who also runs back punts and ran back two of them for touchdowns in the victory over Mississippi.

On offense, LSU also uses two quarterbacks, Buddy Lee and Bert Jones.

Manning And Mates Prep For Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Mississippi quarterback Archie Manning will be wearing a much lighter protective covering on his healing left arm in Saturday's Gator Bowl game against Auburn than he wore four weeks ago when the Rebels were bombed by LSU, 61-17.

Manning will be wearing the same plastic protective sleeve he wore against the Tigers, but there will be no fiberglass cast underneath. And Mississippi coaches are hopeful of getting away with less padding on the sleeve than was required against LSU.

The sleeve itself weighs only about two pounds and Dr. Ferrell Varner, one of the Mississippi team physicians, said it is all that is needed to protect the broken arm. Game officials, however, are expected to require padding on the sleeve to cover exposed laces, which could boost the weight to about four or five pounds.

Varner said the protective encasing weighed about eight pounds in the LSU game and the lighter encasing should help Manning. "It's not the weight," said Varner. The only thing that bothers him is the arm is bent and inflexible."

The officials will examine the sleeve shortly before kickoff Saturday. "They will look at it and we will wrap it if they tell us to," said acting head coach Bruiser Kinard. "We will conform to what they want."

Kinard, filling in for coach Johnny Vaught who is home recuperating from a heart attack, said he will place no restrictions on Manning. "He knows his capabilities," said Kinard. "He will just eliminate from his game plan what he can't do."

Kinard said he had no qualms about Manning running with the ball. "He can take licks on it'" emphasized Kinard.

Kinard said he expects Manning to play "at least half the game" but that reserve quarterback Shug Chumbler would see a lot of action.

Manning wore only the plastic sleeve in a light workout in sweat clothes Wednesday afternoon and looked sharp throwing the ball. Kinard said the team had finished its rough work and he allowed the first team offense to play defense against the reserves in a high-spirited passing drill near the end of practice.

Russell Is Back

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Knicks announced Thursday that Cazzie Russell, out with a broken wrist since Nov. 12, will rejoin the team Saturday night.

Ron Fairly Signs

MONTREAL (UPI) — Ron Fairly, the leading hitter with the Montreal Expos last season, has signed for the 1971 season. Fairly batted .288.

A List Of 'Don'ts' For Woodie Hayes

You know how it is when you go into a strange or foreign country. They always try to brief you on the native customs and warn you what not to do. For instance, you never speak of a rope in the house of the recently hanged. If you're ever in the Kremlin, it might be best not to steer the conversation around to Stalin, or even Prague.

In other words, you do nothing to make the natives restless. Don't ask the witch doctor if he ever heard of penicillin, and try not to wonder out loud if you're ever in the South Seas why the islanders don't wear more clothes.

IT IS IN this spirit that I try to prepare a minimal code of behavior for a man in our uncivilized midst today — Wayne Woodrow Hayes, the coach of Ohio State, and a man secure in the knowledge that he comes from a superior part of the world, who is always in a high state of terror lest the forces he brings with him go native, so to speak, and suddenly show up wearing hibiscus behind their ears or tapa cloth bathing costumes, or otherwise succumb to the dread lotus fever.

These fears have led Woody to be less than tactful on occasion, and sometimes bring him to slam journalists or other surrogates for the more leisurely way of life into locker room walls.

THIS, AS we all know, is the wrong way to go about missionary work, and it is particularly important not to let the more subversive elements lure us into impulsive or misguided assessments. These cunning fellows will get you put in a pot if you say the wrong thing.

Accordingly, I have prepared a checklist for Woody on how to handle the loaded questions of these benighted wretches, called "sportswriters" in the California jungle — a handy list of tricky questions that may be answered guilessly and disastrously unless forearmed with the proper equivocations. The questions — and the antidotes — follow:

1. "What team in the Big Ten would you compare with Stanford?" (This seemingly innocuous bid for information should be handled with asbestos.)

Avoid the impulsive truth of replying, "Well, from a study of the films, they remind me of the University of Chicago," because the local historians won't realize the University of Chicago dropped football in favor of making atomic bombs 30 years ago, and, before that, had a record of ineptitude matched only by a few other organizations in history, notably the Egyptian Air Force, the St. Louis Browns, or the Paraguayan Davis Cup team.

IT IS BEST to resort to an engimatic answer like, "Well, their speed reminds me of some of those old Minnesota teams," without necessarily adding WHICH old Minnesota teams you meant, or that some of them had days where they made 367 yards WALKING.

2. "Will it be a high-scoring game?" (Scramble out of THIS one. It has two possible English translations: a) "Will you run up a big score?" or b) "If it's a low-scoring game, and Stanford is a high-scoring team, that means they will lose.")

It is best here to say, "They will put the ball in the air." You don't have to let them know you mean they will punt it, fumble it, or evento suggest they BETTER put the ball in the air, because anybody caught holding it is apt to be separated from it by your linebackers, who will proceed to grab and hold onto the ball and throw the other part into the seats.

3. "Why can't we talk to your players?" This one is The Bomb. It is susceptible of two interpretations. One is that you have a first-string line that can't talk, that you didn't really recruit it, you baited it with a dead zebra, and that you hold closed practices not to protect your secrets but to protect the spectators in case the cage won't hold. The second, more charitable is that you're not running a squad, you're running Stalag 17.)

You can prove your squad can read and write by inviting written questions, but someone is sure to ask sarcastically if they would be delivered through the Red Coss.

THE THING to do here is to explain that the whole first team has laryngitis but then hastily note it was not caused by smog but that they actually got it while flying over Kansas.

Above all, do NOT offer to bring recordings taped earlier for playing at this more convenient time, because someone is sure to take the recordings to their families to verify it really is their loved ones, and that there really is an Ohio State team and it is not something you wind up and set at 56 points before it takes the field.

4. "Could Jim Plunkett make your team?" (Slam him into a locker.)

East Coach Praises His Shrine Team

SANTA CLARA (UPI) — Head Coach Jim Pont of Indiana had praise for his East Shrine team running backs and defense after the squad worked out Wednesday.

Pont said his players were so aggressive during a dummy drill that his coaching staff had to "cool" them down. He said the players were spirited because the Saturday contest in Oakland against the West is getting closer.

Pont praised the running of backs Mike Adamle of Northwestern and Jim Braxton of West Virginia. He said he was also impressed with the pursuit and quickness of his defensive line which includes Bob Bell of Cincinnati, Bill Gregory of Wisconsin, Randy Lesteyk of West Virginia, Ed McGuire of Indiana and Dartmouth's Barry Brink who lives in nearby Mill Valley.

The East will work out again Thursday at the University of Santa Clara.

High Rise Resorts Have Great Snow

By CHARLIE COANE

They begin where other resorts end is an apt description for Slide Mountain and Mount Rose, located back-to-back on Highway 27 about 20 miles west of Reno.

With lodge elevation levels at 8,300 feet and peaks rising to 9,700 feet, Slide Mountain and Mount Rose start 1,500-2,000 feet above most other resorts in California. Consequently, the snow at those areas may just be a shade better than other areas due to the high altitude.

Slide Mountain General Manager Frank Cathcart this year has doubled the size of the parking area, remodeled the lodge and added a new surface lift to provide access to the Little Red Chair lift. Slide also features one of the 12 steepest runs in the United States — Gold Run, accessible off the Pioneer Chair.

The Northwest Passage run off the back side of the area actually is part of Mount Rose and provides some excellent advanced trail skiing. A shuttle bus can run skiers back to the lodge area. Unfortunately for skiers, the two areas have not yet agreed to combine talents in one form or another to allow one ticket good for all lifts at both areas.

Among the interesting programs at Slide is a Ladies Day plan with lessons in the morning and a whole day of skiing on Wednesdays or Thursdays. Babysitting is only 50 cents per hour for the first child and 25 cents for the second. The ski patrol system boasts an all girl division of about a dozen girls between 15 and 23 years old, and former Austrian ski racer Max Bauer heads the ski school. Slide's racing coach is the famous Christian Pravda — 14 times the champion skier of Austria.

Mount Rose is one of the few areas in California which has an overnight lodge. Mostareas have just a day lodge, also remodeled this season, can accomodate between 125-150 people and features a special weekend package that includes two nights' lodging, two breakfasts, one dinner and two days lift passes — all for $36.50.

Area managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Luescher, have enlarged their parking area to handle 850-900 cars.

FISH AND GAME

No Answer Yet On Mercury Test

By AL GIDDINGS

A few days ago, I received a call from Dr. Loring Dales, who is working with the state health department. He has been working on the mercury problem involving our fish in local waters.

Dr. Ephraim Kahn, of the state health department, assigned by Gov. Reagan to get the facts of the mercury problem, had requested Dr. Dales to actually check some human beings of this area who eat fish in fairly large quantities. It was fitting for Sam Knoles and me to be the first tested.

SAM AND I HAD originally caught 12 bass in late August, nine of which were tested and found to have small amounts of mercury in their tissues. Both Sam and I had eaten fish from these runs, and we had also eaten stripers and sturgeon from San Pablo Bay caught during the winter months (November through April). Both of us fish the year around, and at certain times eat fish possibly three or four times per week. We were prime targets for a test!

Dr. Dales invited us to come over to Berkeley to one of the health department laboratories. Dr. Dales and Dr. Kahn were there along with Ed Arnow of KPIX (TV channel 5). The first test probably given was one I gave! I took along about a pound of smoked sturgeon from one caught two weeks ago off China Camp. I explained what it was, and suggested the doctors help themselves. Did they eat it? You bet they did! So the first part of the experiment was completed. Every piece of that sturgeon was consumed! A good sign!

THE DOCTORS then asked Sam and me a number of questions regarding amounts of fish eaten by us, the size and weights of the fish, the areas from which they were caught plus a general exchange of information. Then we were given the start of a hair test which consisted of taking about a half handful of hair (100 mgs.) They also took blood and urine tests. All of the testing specimens are being sent to the University of Michigan which, it seems, has the equipment necessary for this test. It will be a week to 10 days before the results are known. What will the tests prove? This is a most difficult question. I hesitate to even try an explanation, but here goes. If you're confused, call Dr. Kahn at the state health department at Berkeley.

According to Dr. Dales, some fishermen in Japan were poisoned by mercury. They were tested and found by the hair test to have up to 400 parts per million.

SWEDISH fishermen who were tested by similar tests contained up to 180 p.p.m. These fishermen were not sick, as far as could be determined. The fish consumed contained up to 5 p.p.m. in this case.

I asked Dr. Dales what he thought my hair test would show. He thought I might contain 50 p.p.m. Our local striped bass have been tested and so far have had very small amounts of mercury, from .06 to 1.27 p.p.m. The State Dept. of public Health has a standard or safety factor set at .5 p.p.m. which is extremely low. If these p.p.m. confuse you then 1 p.p.m. is like one dollar is to a million dollars. Or, .02 p.p.m. is like 2 cents is to a million dollars.

WHAT WOULD happen if I contained 50 p.p.m.? Perhaps nothing if I'm not sick. My tolerance is probably much higher — possibly higher than what the Swedish fishermen contained, but certainly less than what the Japanese fishermen contained. As long as I eat fish checked out with levels of .06 and under the .5 p.p.m., I will probably never get sick, with normally functioning kidneys for disposal. The tolerance of man to mercury hasn't been completely established. There are still many unknowns. Dr. Dales did stress that pregnant women should be most hesitant in eating fish with any mercury contents.

JIM MURRAY

A List Of 'Don'ts' For Woodie Hayes

You know how it is when you go into a strange or foreign country. They always try to brief you on the native customs and warn you what not to do. For instance, you never speak of a rope in the house of the recently hanged. If you're ever in the Kremlin, it might be best not to steer the conversation around to Stalin, or even Prague.

In other words, you do nothing to make the natives restless. Don't ask the witch doctor if he ever heard of penicillin, and try not to wonder out loud if you're ever in the South Seas why the islanders don't wear more clothes.

IT IS IN this spirit that I try to prepare a minimal code of behavior for a man in our uncivilized midst today — Wayne Woodrow Hayes, the coach of Ohio State, and a man secure in the knowledge that he comes from a superior part of the world, who is always in a high state of terror lest the forces he brings with him go native, so to speak, and suddenly show up wearing hibiscus behind their ears or tapa cloth bathing costumes, or otherwise succumb to the dread lotus fever.

These fears have led Woody to be less than tactful on occasion, and sometimes bring him to slam journalists or other surrogates for the more leisurely way of life into locker room walls.

THIS, AS we all know, is the wrong way to go about missionary work, and it is particularly important not to let the more subversive elements lure us into impulsive or misguided assessments. These cunning fellows will get you put in a pot if you say the wrong thing.

Accordingly, I have prepared a checklist for Woody on how to handle the loaded questions of these benighted wretches, called "sportswriters" in the California jungle — a handy list of tricky questions that may be answered guilessly and disastrously, unless forearmed with the proper equivocations. The questions — and the antidotes — follow:

1. "What team in the Big Ten would you compare with Stanford?" This seemingly innocuous bid for information should be handled with asbestos.)

Avoid the impulsive truth of replying, "Well, from a study of the films, they remind me of the University of Chicago," because the local historians won't realize the University of Chicago dropped football in favor of making atomic bombs 30 years ago, and, before that, had a record of ineptitude matched only by a few other organizations in history, notably the Egyptian Air Force, the St. Louis Browns, or the Paraguayan Davis Cup team.

IT IS BEST to resort to an engimatic answer (like, "Well, their speed reminds me of some of those old Minnesota teams," without necessarily adding WHICH old Minnesota teams you meant, or that some of them had days where they made 367 yards WALKING.

2. "Will it be a high-scoring game?" (Scramble out of THIS one. It has two possible English translations: a) "Will you run up a big score?" or b) "If it's a low-scoring game, and Stanford is a high-scoring team, that means they will lose.")

It is best here to say, "They will put the ball in the air." You don't have to let them know you mean they will punt it, fumble it, or evento suggest they BETTER put the ball in the air, because anybody caught holding it is apt to be separated from it by your linebackers, who will proceed to grab and hold onto the ball and throw the other part into the seats.

3. "Why can't we talk to your players?" This one is The Bomb. It is susceptible of two interpretations. One is that you have a first-string line that can't talk, that you didn't really recruit it, you baited it with a dead zebra, and that you hold closed practices not to protect your secrets but to protect the spectators in case the cage won't hold. The second, more charitable is that you're not running a squad, you're running Stalag 17.)

You can prove your squad can read and write by inviting written questions, but someone is sure to ask sarcastically if they would be delivered through the Red Coss.

THE THING to do here is to explain that the whole first team has laryngitis but then hastily note it was not caused by smog but that they actually got it while flying over Kansas.

Above all, do NOT offer to bring recordings taped earlier for playing at this more convenient time, because someone is sure to take the recordings to their families to verify it really is their loved ones, and that there really is an Ohio State team and it is not something you wind up and set at 56 points before it takes the field.

4. "Could Jim Plunkett make your team?" (Slam him into a locker.)

FISH AND GAME

No Answer Yet On Mercury Test

By AL GIDDINGS

A few days ago, I received a call from Dr. Loring Dales, who is working with the state health department. He has been working on the mercury problem involving our fish in local waters.

Dr. Ephraim Kahn, of the state health department, assigned by Gov. Reagan to get the facts of the mercury problem, had requested Dr. Dales to actually check some human beings of this area who eat fish in fairly large quantities. It was fitting for Sam Knoles and me to be the first tested.

SAM AND I HAD originally caught 12 bass in late August, nine of which were tested and found to have small amounts of mercury in their tissues. Both Sam and I had eaten fish from these runs, and we had also eaten stripers and sturgeon from San Pablo Bay caught during the winter months (November through April). Both of us fish the year around, and at certain times eat fish possibly three or four times per week. We were prime targets for a test!

Dr. Dales invited us to come over to Berkeley to one of the health department laboratories. Dr. Dales and Dr. Kahn were there along with Ed Arnow of KPIX (TV channel 5). The first test probably given was one I gave! I took along about a pound of smoked sturgeon from one caught two weeks ago off China Camp. I explained what it was, and suggested the doctors help themselves. Did they eat it? You bet they did! So the first part of the experiment was completed. Every piece of that sturgeon was consumed! A good sign!

THE DOCTORS then asked Sam and me a number of questions regarding amounts of fish eaten by us, the size and weights of the fish, the areas from which they were caught plus a general exchange of information. Then we were given the start of a hair test which consisted of taking about a half handful of hair (100 mgs.) They also took blood and urine tests. All of the testing specimens are being sent to the University of Michigan which, it seems, has the equipment necessary for this test. It will be a week to 10 days before the results are known. What will the tests prove? This is a most difficult question. I hesitate to even try an explanation, but here goes. If you're confused, call Dr. Kahn at the state health department at Berkeley.

According to Dr. Dales, some fishermen in Japan were poisoned by mercury. They were tested and found by the hair test to have up to 400 parts per million.

SWEDISH fishermen who were tested by similar tests contained up to 180 p.p.m. These fishermen were not sick, as far as could be determined. The fish consumed contained up to 5 p.p.m. in this case.

I asked Dr. Dales what he thought my hair test would show. He thought I might contain 50 p.p.m. Our local striped bass have been tested and so far have had very small amounts of mercury, from .06 to 1.27 p.p.m. The State Dept. of public Health has a standard or safety factor set at .5 p.p.m. which is extremely low. If these p.p.m. confuse you then 1 p.p.m. is like one dollar is to a million dollars. Or, .02 p.p.m. is like 2 cents is to a million dollars.

WHAT WOULD happen if I contained 50 p.p.m.? Perhaps nothing if I'm not sick. My tolerance is probably much higher — possibly higher than what the Swedish fishermen contained, but certainly less than what the Japanese fishermen contained. As long as I eat fish checked out with levels of .06 and under the .5 p.p.m., I will probably never get sick, with normally functioning kidneys for disposal. The tolerance of man to mercury hasn't been completely established. There are still many unknowns. Dr. Dales did stress that pregnant women should be most hesitant in eating fish with any mercury contents.

East Coach Praises His Shrine Team

SANTA CLARA (UPI) — Head Coach Jim Pont of Indiana had praise for his East Shrine team running backs and defense after the squad worked out Wednesday.

Pont said his players were so aggressive during a dummy drill that his coaching staff had to "cool" them down. He said the players were spirited because the Saturday contest in Oakland against the West is getting closer.

Pont praised the running of backs Mike Adamle of Northwestern and Jim Braxton of West Virginia. He said he was also impressed with the pursuit and quickness of his defensive line which includes Bob Bell of Cincinnati, Bill Gregory of Wisconsin, Randy Lesteyk of West Virginia, Ed McGuire of Indiana and Dartmouth's Barry Brink who lives in nearby Mill Valley.

Surgery For Olsen

High Rise Resorts Have Great Snow

By CHARLIE COANE

They begin where other resorts end is an apt description for Slide Mountain and Mount Rose, located back-to-back on Highway 27 about 20 miles west of Reno.

With lodge elevation levels at 8,300 feet and peaks rising to 9,700 feet, Slide Mountain and Mount Rose start 1,500-2,000 feet above most other resorts in California. Consequently, the snow at those areas may just be a shade better than other areas due to the high altitude.

Slide Mountain General Manager Frank Cathcart this year has doubled the size of the parking area, remodeled the lodge and added a new surface lift to provide access to the Little Red Chair lift. Slide also features one of the 12 steepest runs in the United States — Gold Run, accessible off the Pioneer Chair.

The Northwest Passage run off the back side of the area actually is part of Mount Rose and provides some excellent advanced trail skiing. A shuttle bus can run skiers back to the lodge area. Unfortunately for skiers, the two areas have not yet agreed to combine talents in one form or another to allow one ticket good for all lifts at both areas.

Among the interesting programs at Slide is a Ladies Day plan with lessons in the morning and a whole day of skiing on Wednesdays or Thursdays. Babysitting is only 50 cents per hour for the first child and 25 cents for the second. The ski patrol system boasts an all girl division of about a dozen girls between 15 and 23 years old, and former Austrian ski racer Max Bauer heads the ski school. Slide's racing coach is the famous Christian Pravda — 14 times the champion skier of Austria.

Mount Rose is one of the few areas in California which has an overnight lodge. Most areas have just a day lodge, also remodeled this season, can accomodate between 125-150 people and features a special weekend package that includes two nights' lodging, two breakfasts, one dinner and two days lift passes — all for $36.50.

Area managers, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Luescher, have enlarged their parking area to handle 850-900 cars.

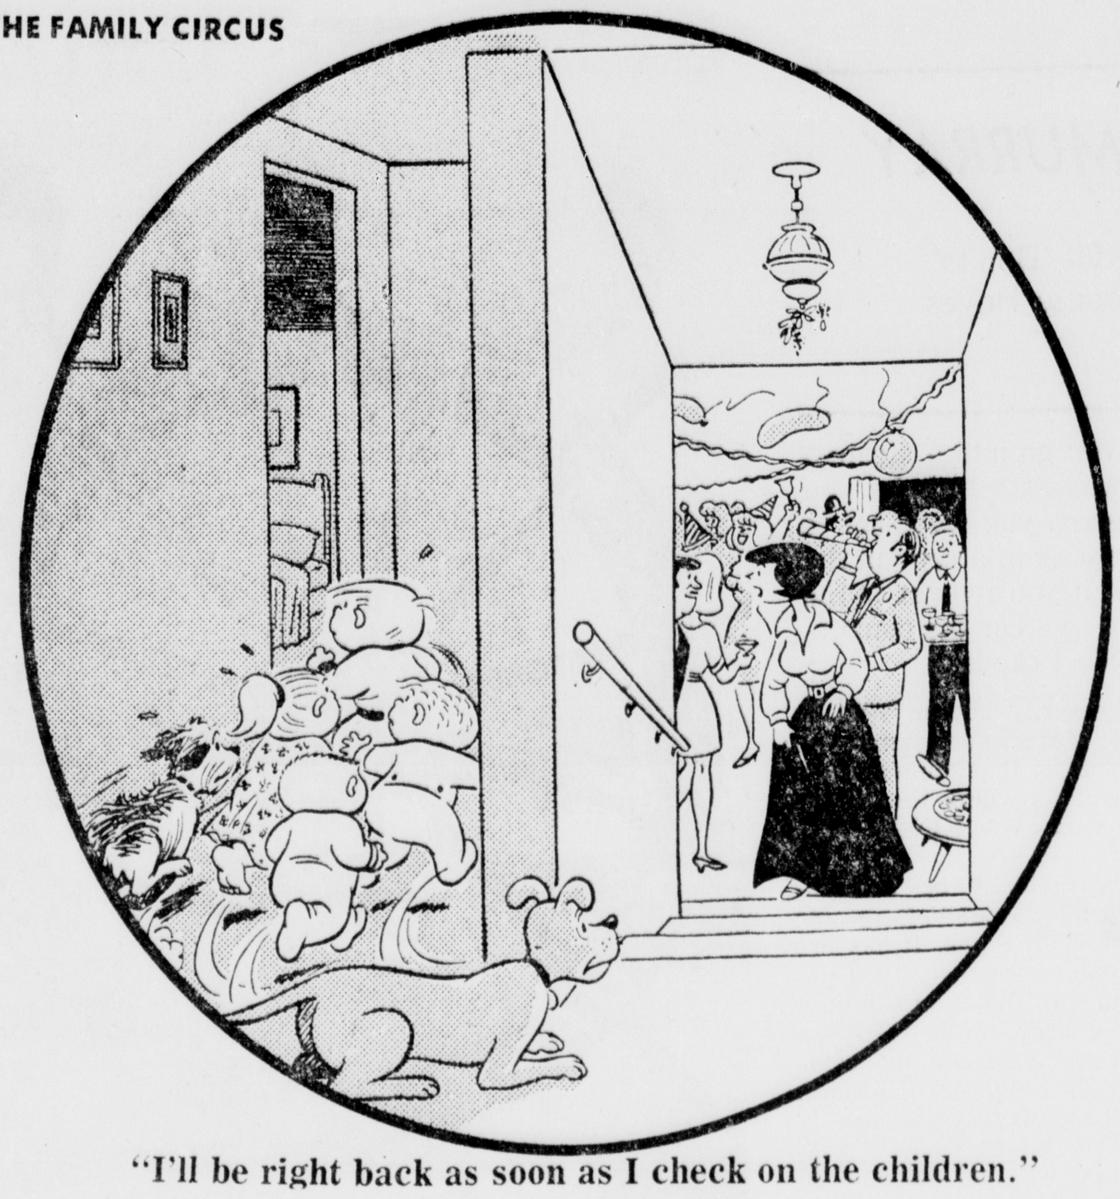
THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"I'll be right back as soon as I check on the children."

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Dec. 31, the 365th day of 1970.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars and Jupiter.

The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Capricorn.

On this day in history:

In 1879 Thomas Edison gave the first public demonstration of the incandescent lamp in Menlo Park, N.J.

In 1890 Ellis Island in New York Harbor became the receiving station for all immigrants from Europe.

In 1940 Adolf Hitler said, in a message to his Nazi groops, "The year 1941 will bring consummation of the greatest-victory in our history."

In 1946 President Truman proclaimed the official end of World War II.

A thought for today: Charles Lamb said, "Of all the sound of bells . . . the most solemn and touching is the peal which rings out the old year."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Refuse First Trick To Block Opponent's Action

The object of the hold-up play is to win your first trick in a suit when one of the opponents plays his last card in that suit. If that opponent wins a later trick, he will be unable to lead his partner's long suit. We see this principle in a strange form in today's hand.

FINESSE TRY

West opened the six of spades, and East put up the ten. South pounced on this with the jack of spades, chuckling with satisfaction. Declarer then led the eight of diamonds for a finesse, losing to the queen.

East returned his other spade, and West won with the eight. West returned the king of spades to force out the ace, and now South had to return to the diamonds. West thereupon defeated the contract with the rest of the spades.

We can see why South went down by noticing that he failed to hold up properly. If you look at the principle stated in the opening paragraph you will note that South should not win the first spade trick.

NO GREAT COST

It costs South little or nothing to refuse the first trick. East wins with the ten of spades and returns his other spade. South plays the nine, and West wins with the queen of spades. Now if West continues with the spades, South gets two spade tricks. If West shifts, South has no problem.

WINS THE REST

Declarer can lose a diamond to the queen, and East will be unable to return a spade. West will later get the ace of diamonds but still will not be in position to run the spades. The defenders can get two diamonds and two spades, but South easily wins the rest.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♠ - K Q 8 6 5
♥ - K 5 4
♦ - A 3 2
♣ - 9 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You have 12 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide to bid rather than pass because you have fairly strong five-card major suit and excellent high-card structure.

Whooping Crane Count Up To 73

The world's total whooper population now stands at 73, counting the 57 wild birds, 14 others in government wildlife programs and specimens living in zoos in San Antonio, Tex., and New Orleans.

That's Settled

MESSINA, Sicily (UPI)—Antonio Collela Mollica, 47, discovered today he was born after all. City officials who had told him there was no proof of his birth explained that another child with the same name was born the same day in the same community—but the name entered only once.

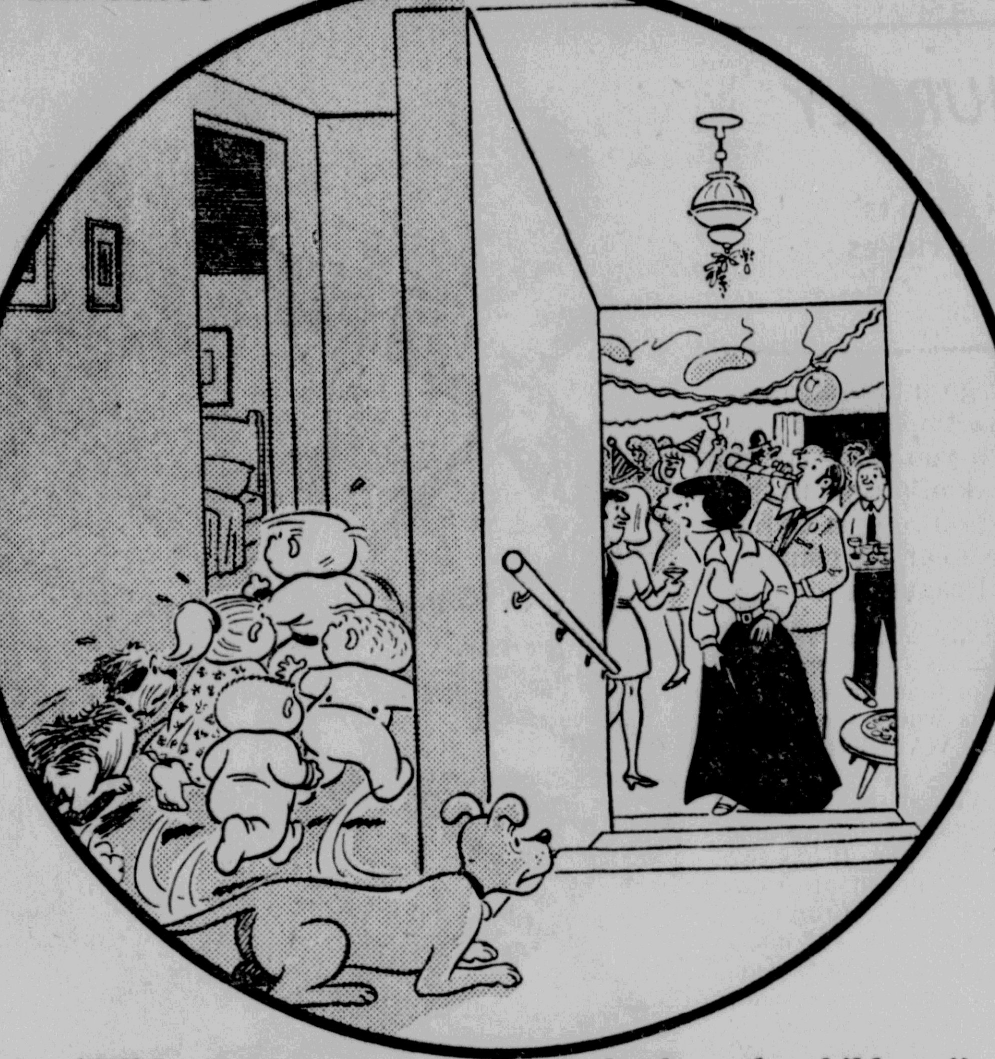
THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"I'll be right back as soon as I check on the children."

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Dec. 31, the 365th day of 1970.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars and Jupiter.

The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Capricorn.

On this day in history:

In 1879 Thomas Edison gave the first public demonstration of the incandescent lamp in Menlo Park, N.J.

In 1890 Ellis Island in New York Harbor became the receiving station for all immigrants from Europe.

In 1940 Adolf Hitler said, in a message to his Nazi groops, "The year 1941 will bring consummation of the greatest-victory in our history."

In 1946 President Truman proclaimed the official end of World War II.

A thought for today: Charles Lamb said, "Of all the sound of bells . . . the most solemn and touching is the peal which rings out the old year."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Refuse First Trick To Block Opponent's Action

The object of the hold-up play is to win your first trick in a suit when one of the opponents plays his last card in that suit. If that opponent wins a later trick, he will be unable to lead his partner's long suit. We see this principle in a strange form in today's hand.

FINESSE TRY

West opened the six of spades, and East put up the ten. South pounced on this with the jack of spades, chuckling with satisfaction. Declarer then led the eight of diamonds for a finesse, losing to the queen.

East returned his other spade, and West won with the eight. West returned the king of spades to force out the ace, and now South had to return to the diamonds. West thereupon defeated the contract with the rest of the spades.

We can see why South went down by noticing that he failed to hold up properly. If you look at the principle stated in the opening paragraph you will note that South should not win the first spade trick.

NO GREAT COST

It costs South little or nothing to refuse the first trick. East wins with the ten of spades and returns his other spade. South plays the nine, and West wins with the queen of spades. Now if West continues with the spades, South gets two spade tricks. If West shifts, South has no problem.

WINS THE REST

Declarer can lose a diamond to the queen, and East will be unable to return a spade. West will later get the ace of diamonds but still will not be in position to run the spades. The defenders can get two diamonds and two spades, but South easily wins the rest.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♠ - K Q 8 6 5
♥ - K 5 4
♦ - A 3 2
♣ - 9 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You have 12 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide to bid rather than pass because you have fairly strong five-card major suit and excellent high-card structure.

Whooping Crane Count Up To 73

The world's total whooper population now stands at 73, counting the 57 wild birds, 14 others in government wildlife programs and specimens living in zoos in San Antonio, Tex., and New Orleans.

That's Settled

MESSINA, Sicily (UPI)— Antonio Collela Mollica, 47, discovered today he was born after all. City officials who had told him there was no proof of his birth explained that another child with the same name was born the same day in the same community—but the name entered only once.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Investor Advised: Sell For Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own shares of Computing & Software which cost me $3.00 a share and pay no dividend. I am 68 years old and could always use more income. What is the company's future and should I sell to invest for income? — C. R.

A. Computing & Software is one of the leading suppliers of EDP software service support in the country — a rapidly growing but highly competitive industry. Past earnings performance reflects the growth of this market.

In the last five years, per share profits for Computing & Software advanced tenfold, from 10 cents in 1964 to $1.11 in 1969. And, while estimates for fiscal 1970 have been trimmed to $1.20-$1.30 a share (due to a disappointing 3rd period), a 12.6 per cent advance is still forecast.

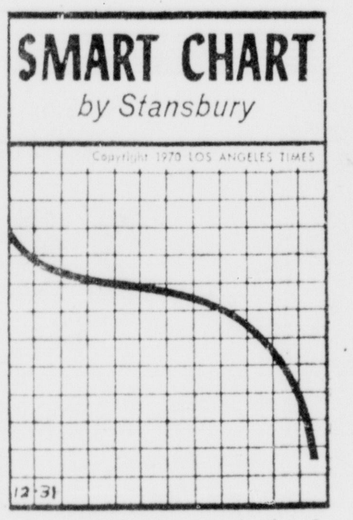
In the third quarter, Education & Personnel division revenues dropped 30 per cent, thus the company's total earnings per share for the nine months ended July were 91 cents versus fiscal 1969's restated 70 cents. Although this is a creditable gain, it is not up to par for fast-moving C&S. Stock represents an intriguing speculation for the aggressive investor. However, since you appear to be more interested in income, take the profit available and reinvest in Duquesne Light, yielding 7.2 per cent.

Q. Would you please comment on Pitney-Bowes? I have been a stockholder for many years and cannot understand the recent weakness in these shares. — W. F.

A. A disappointing third quarter and limited investor interest in the office equipment group have exerted pressure on Pitney-Bowes' shares. The company reported a 26 per cent earnings decline in the most recent period which nearly offset previous gains.

Nine-month net income was held to a 1 per cent advance on a 14 per cent increase in sales. The general business slowdown and reduced capital spending were largely responsible for the poor showing.

Moreover, sluggishness in the retail field adversely affected operations of the subsidiary, Monarch Marking Systems. While 1970 may show little improvement over last year, renewed growth is expected for 1971 aided by a stronger economy and improved operating efficiency.



"Last year it was lack of communication. This year it was lack of money."

Volume Hits High Mark On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new yearly sales record was posted at mid-session Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange as investors, concerned with last minute portfolio adjustments, kept prices lower. Turnover was moderate.

At 12:51 p.m. turnover reached 7,600,000 shares which pushed the yearly figure over the previous record of 2,931,556,000 shares set in 1968.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was off 3.35 at 837.97 and declines held a sizable 749 to 486 lead over advances among the 1,577 issues on the tape.

Analysts generally felt the lower prices reflected normal last minute selling by investors attempting to adjust their portfolios before the new year.

Federal National Mortgage topped, unchanged, the active list. American Telephone and Transcontinental Investing followed, both losing fractions. Penn Central was also active and unchanged.

General Motors, after reaching its high for the year Wednesday, slid 1½. Atlantic Richfield dropped 1⅛, and Disney lost 2¼. GE was awarded a multiyear subcontract Wednesday from Litton Industries to produce a marine gas-turbine engine for Navy destroyers. The contract has a potential value of $130 million.

Steels were soft and airlines were mixed.

Slight Drop Seen

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) — Norfolk & Western Railway said its capital outlays in 1970 will drop only slightly to 100 million from the $102 million spent this year. Of the total, $30 million will go to extend lines to new coal mines.

Aluminum Gets Cutback

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reynolds Metals Co. has announced it is cutting back primary aluminum production by 16.7 per cent of domestic capacity to bring supplies closer in line with demand.

Reynolds said it is cutting back output at its plants in Listerhill, Ala., Jones Mills, Ark., Troutdale, Ore., and Longview, Wash., by an aggregate 13,000 tons per month. Reynolds' domestic capacity is about 78,000 tons per month.

Domestic aluminum producers began posting production cuts and deferring new capacity additions earlier this year to keep supplies in line with demand.

Nuclear Fuel

ELMSFORD, N.Y. (UPI) — United Nuclear Corp. has obtained a $50 million order from Duke Power Co. of Charlotte, N.C., for nuclear fuel for Oconee Power Station.

German Trade Surplus Down

WIELSBADEN, Germany (UPI) — West Germany's large foreign trade surplus dipped sharply in November, the federal statistics office said.

Figures released by the agency listed the November surplus at $184.97 million, well under the $466.94 million in October and the $394.80 million in November, 1969.

Exports in November totaled $2.84 billion, down 10 per cent from the previous month.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Feast-And-Famine Year For Steel

A feast-and-famine year in 1971 for the U.S. steel industry is foreseen by the business magazine Industry Week.

The year-end holidays are holding down steel production, but output will rebound during the first week in January, says the publication. This will be followed by an increase in shipments to record highs before the end of July as steel users hedge against a steelworkers strike. After that there won't be much doing at steel plants for several months — whether or not there is a strike. Steel users will be living off their stockpiles.

In spite of steel problems, a brighter economic outlook for 1971 is forecast by the chief economist of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Dr. Carl H. Madden sees the gross national product next year rising about 7 per cent to possibly $1,050 billion. Higher prices will account for about 4 per cent and the remaining 3 per cent will represent real GNP growth — compared to zero growth in 1970.

Consumers should increase overall spending about 7.75 per cent in 1971. Most spending is expected to be in housing and durables.

SKAGGS DRUGS CENTERS, INC. and KATZ DRUG CO. stockholders have approved the merger of Katz into a newly formed subsidiary of Skaggs in a tax-free exchange of common stock. Katz will continue to operate under its own name. Skaggs shareholders have also approved changing the company's name to Skaggs Companies, Inc.

GOLDEN WEST SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION has had its acquisition of Napa Savings and Loan Association approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank. Golden West's total assets are now about $320 million. Napa Savings has operated since 1886. It's office will now become Golden West's Napa Valley Regional headquarters.

AMFAC, INC. has purchased four discount stores from Baza'r located in Pleasant Hill, Mountain View, San Jose and Cupertino. Baza'r will continue to operate the food markets in the stores. Amfac has also purchased a 43-acre parcel in Dublin, Alameda County where it will construct a 135,000-square foot discount store and a 240,000-square foot office and distribution center.

SECURITY PACIFIC NATIONAL BANK will open a representative office in Mexico City Jan. 20. The bank predicts that the northern coastal counties in Califonria will achieve a record high in building permits for the 1970 year. But valuations in nine of the counties declined in permit valuations (Marin among them — down 17 per cent).

WESTERN DECOR AND FURNISHING INDUSTRIES, Oakland creditors of two wholly owned subsidiaries acquired this year have agreed to convert approximately $821,000 of subsidiary debt into 145,000 shares of stock in the parent company. Two subsidiaries were Springfield Furniture Works and Norquist Products.

SUNSET LIFE INSURANCE CO. has declared a 5-per cent dividend payable in stock, together with a two-for-one stock split, subject to approval by shareholders at a Jan. 21 meeting. Par value of the stock will be reduced from $5 per share to $2.50 per share.

F. W. WOOLWORTH CO. expects retail sales in 1971 to climb about 6 per cent to some $388 billion. The company added 33 new stores in 1970 and will continue this expansion program.

LST ELECTRONICS of Berkeley, which took control of Micro Chemical Specialties during the middle of the year, reports first quarter sales up 42 per cent and profits up 181 per cent compared to previous year figures.

Manufactures Slip 3.6 Per Cent To $24 Billion

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — California's manufactures, which account for 21.2 per cent of all goods and services produced in the state, declined 3.6 per cent in a year to a November total of $24.77 billion (measured at an annual rate), according to a report issued by the Bank of California.

The metal complex, down 10.6 per cent from a year ago in November, saw its two major components, production of transportation equipment and electrical equipment, continue to decline last month.

In the production of goods and services, manufacturing is one of the nine major industrial components in the tri-state bank's economic series.

In concept, value added by manufactures is measured by subtracting the cost of materials on arrival at the plant for processing from their value upon completion of the manufacture. The bank's estimates, which derive from its more extensive series, the "Pacific Coast Market & Business," are preliminary and are seasonally adjusted at an annual rate.

Manufacturing payrolls totaled $14.56 billion (measured at an annual rate) in November, and accounted for 23.7 per cent of all wages and salaries paid in the state. Durable goods production fell 6.4 per cent to $15.52 billion, and nondurable production inched up 1.6 per cent to $9.25 billion.

The metal complex, representing 41 per cent of all manufactures, dropped 10.6 per cent on a year to $10.17 billion in November.

Transportation equipment production stood 21.1 per cent behind a year ago at $2.88 billion, but declines have narrowed in the past three months.

Production of electrical components and equipment decreased 9.6 per cent to $2.65 billion, as communication equipment fell substantially.

Machinery production dipped 2.3 per cent to $2.10 billion, primary metal production, which had been above the $1 billion level at the beginning of the year, dropped 6.9 per cent to $940 million, and fabrication of metal products declined 2.4 per cent to $1.60 billion.

The bank's December forecast anticipates another slight decline in California manufactures to $24.70 billion. Durable equipment production is expected to fall moderately to $15.44 billion, while nondurable production rises slightly to $9.26 billion.

$1.9 Million Loss At Memory Firm

SUNNYVALE (BW) — Advanced Memory Systems Inc. has announced sales of $465,967 and other revenue of $137,008 in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 — the company's first full year of operations — according to S. Kershner, vice president of finance for the Sunnyvale firm that specializes in semiconductor memory products.

The company shows a net loss of $1,908,336.

Investor Advised: Sell For Income

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own shares of Computing & Software which cost me $3.00 a share and pay no dividend. I am 68 years old and could always use more income. What is the company's future and should I sell to invest for income? — C. R.

A. Computing & Software is one of the leading suppliers of EDP software service support in the country — a rapidly growing but highly competitive industry. Past earnings performance reflects the growth of this market.

In the last five years, per share profits for Computing & Software advanced tenfold, from 10 cents in 1964 to $1.11 in 1969. And, while estimates for fiscal 1970 have been trimmed to $1.20-$1.30 a share (due to a disappointing 3rd period), a 12.6 per cent advance is still forecast.

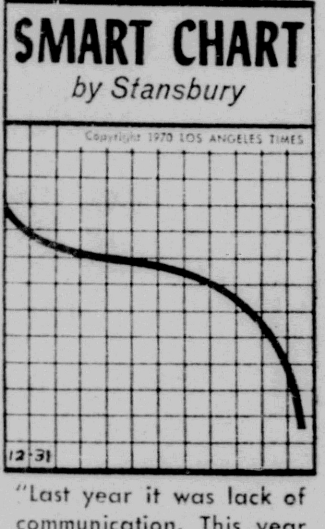
In the third quarter, Education & Personnel division revenues dropped 30 per cent, thus the company's total earnings per share for the nine months ended July were 91 cents versus fiscal 1969's restated 70 cents. Although this is a creditable gain, it is not up to par for fast-moving C&S. Stock represents an intriguing speculation for the aggressive investor. However, since you appear to be more interested in income, take the profit available and reinvest in Duquesne Light, yielding 7.2 per cent.

Q. Would you please comment on Pitney-Bowes? I have been a stockholder for many years and cannot understand the recent weakness in these shares. — W. F.

A. A disappointing third quarter and limited investor interest in the office equipment group have exerted pressure on Pitney-Bowes' shares. The company reported a 26 per cent earnings decline in the most recent period which nearly offset previous gains.

Nine-month net income was held to a 1 per cent advance on a 14 per cent increase in sales. The general business slowdown and reduced capital spending were largely responsible for the poor showing.

Moreover, sluggishness in the retail field adversely affected operations of the subsidiary, Monarch Marking Systems. While 1970 may show little improvement over last year, renewed growth is expected for 1971 aided by a stronger economy and improved operating efficiency.



"Last year it was lack of communication. This year it was lack of money."

Volume Hits High Mark On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new yearly sales record was posted at mid-session Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange as investors, concerned with last minute portfolio adjustments, kept prices lower. Turnover was moderate.

At 12:51 p.m. turnover reached 7,600,000 shares which pushed the yearly figure over the previous record of 2,931,556,000 shares set in 1968.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected blue chips was off 3.35 at 837.97 and declines held a sizable 749 to 486 lead over advances among the 1,577 issues on the tape.

Analysts generally felt the lower prices reflected normal last minute selling by investors attempting to adjust their portfolios before the new year.

Federal National Mortgage topped, unchanged, the active list. American Telephone and Transcontinental Investing followed, both losing fractions. Penn Central was also active and unchanged.

General Motors, after reaching its high for the year Wednesday, slid 1½. Atlantic Richfield dropped 1⅛, and Disney lost 2¼. GE was awarded a multiyear subcontract Wednesday from Litton Industries to produce a marine gas-turbine engine for Navy destroyers. The contract has a potential value of $130 million.

Steels were soft and airlines were mixed.

Slight Drop Seen

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI) — Norfolk & Western Railway said its capital outlays in 1970 will drop only slightly to 100 million from the $102 million spent this year. Of the total, $30 million will go to extend lines to new coal mines.

Aluminum Gets Cutback

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reynolds Metals Co. has announced it is cutting back primary aluminum production by 16.7 per cent of domestic capacity to bring supplies closer in line with demand.

Reynolds said it is cutting back output at its plants in Listerhill, Ala., Jones Mills, Ark., Troutdale, Ore., and Longview, Wash., by an aggregate 13,000 tons per month. Reynolds' domestic capacity is about 78,000 tons per month.

Domestic aluminum producers began posting production cuts and deferring new capacity additions earlier this year to keep supplies in line with demand.

Nuclear Fuel

ELMSFORD, N.Y. (UPI) — United Nuclear Corp. has obtained a $50 million order from Duke Power Co. of Charlotte, N.C., for nuclear fuel for Oconee Power Station.

German Trade Surplus Down

WIELSBADEN, Germany (UPI) — West Germany's large foreign trade surplus dipped sharply in November, the federal statistics office said.

Figures released by the agency listed the November surplus at $184.97 million, well under the $466.94 million in October and the $394.80 million in November, 1969.

Exports in November totaled $2.84 billion, down 10 per cent from the previous month.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Feast-And-Famine Year For Steel

Afeast-and-famine year in 1971 for the U.S. steel industry is foreseen by the business magazine Industry Week.

The year-end holidays are holding down steel production, but output will rebound during the first week in January, says the publication. This will be followed by an increase in shipments to record highs before the end of July as steel users hedge against a steelworkers strike. After that there won't be much doing at steel plants for several months — whether or not there is a strike. Steel users will be living off their stockpiles.

In spite of steel problems, a brighter economic outlook for 1971 is forecast by the chief economist of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Dr. Carl H. Madden sees the gross national product next year rising about 7 per cent to possibly $1,050 billion. Higher prices will account for about 4 per cent and the remaining 3 per cent will represent real GNP growth — compared to zero growth in 1970.

Consumers should increase overall spending about 7.75 per cent in 1971. Most spending is expected to be in housing and durables.

SKAGGS DRUGS CENTERS, INC. and KATZ DRUG CO. stockholders have approved the merger of Katz into a newly formed subsidiary of Skaggs in a tax-free exchange of common stock. Katz will continue to operate under its own name. Skaggs shareholders have also approved changing the company's name to Skaggs Companies, Inc.

GOLDEN WEST SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION has had its acquisition of Napa Savings and Loan Association approved by the Federal Home Loan Bank. Golden West's total assets are now about $320 million. Napa Savings has operated since 1886. It's office will now become Golden West's Napa Valley Regional headquarters.

AMFAC, INC. has purchased four discount stores from Baza'r located in Pleasant Hill, Mountain View, San Jose and Cupertino. Baza'r will continue to operate the food markets in the stores. Amfac has also purchased a 43-acre parcel in Dublin, Alameda County where it will construct a 135,000-square foot discount store and a 240,000-square foot office and distribution center.

SECURITY PACIFIC NATIONAL BANK will open a representative office in Mexico City Jan. 20. The bank predicts that the northern coastal counties in Califonria will achieve a record high in building permits for the 1970 year. But valuations in nine of the counties declined in permit valuations (Marin among them — down 17 per cent).

WESTERN DECOR AND FURNISHING INDUSTRIES, Oakland creditors of two wholly owned subsidiaries acquired this year have agreed to convert approximately $821,000 of subsidiary debt into 145,000 shares of stock in the parent company. Manufactures Slip 3.6 Per Cent To $24 Billion

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — California's manufactures, which account for 21.2 per cent of all goods and services produced in the state, declined 3.6 per cent in a year to a November total of $24.77 billion (measured at an annual rate), according to a report issued by the Bank of California.

The metal complex, down 10.6 per cent from a year ago in November, saw its two major components, production of transportation equipment and electrical equipment, continue to decline last month.

In the production of goods and services, manufacturing is one of the nine major industrial components in the tri-state bank's economic series.

In concept, value added by manufactures is measured by subtracting the cost of materials on arrival at the plant for processing from their value upon completion of the manufacture. The bank's estimates, which derive from its more extensive series, the "Pacific Coast Market & Business," are preliminary and are seasonally adjusted at an annual rate.

Manufacturing payrolls totaled $14.56 billion (measured at an annual rate) in November, and accounted for 23.7 per cent of all wages and salaries paid in the state. Durable goods production fell 6.4 per cent to $15.52 billion, and nondurable production inched up 1.6 per cent to $9.25 billion.

The metal complex, representing 41 per cent of all manufactures, dropped 10.6 per cent on a year to $10.17 billion in November.

Transportation equipment production stood 21.1 per cent behind a year ago at $2.88 billion, but declines have narrowed in the past three months.

Production of electrical components and equipment decreased 9.6 per cent to $2.65 billion, as communication equipment fell substantially.

Machinery production dipped 2.3 per cent to $2.10 billion, primary metal production, which had been above the $1 billion level at the beginning of the year, dropped 6.9 per cent to $940 million, and fabrication of metal products declined 2.4 per cent to $1.60 billion.

The bank's December forecast anticipates another slight decline in California manufactures to $24.70 billion. Durable equipment production is expected to fall moderately to $15.44 billion, while nondurable production rises slightly to $9.26 billion.

YEAR'S BEST

U.S. Editors Rank Apollo, Kent Tops

NEW YORK (UPI) —The flight of Apollo 13, in which three U.S. astronauts brought their crippled moonship safely home after an explosion deep in space, was the top news story of 1970.

For the second year in a row the U.S. moon exploration program was ranked No. 1 by American editors participating in the annual poll by United Press International to select the news stories with the most headline impact. This time it was the abortive flight last April which kept the world in suspense for four days until the three astronauts landed safely in the Pacific Ocean. A year ago, the top story was the successful first moon landing by the men of Apollo 11.

UPI asked the editors to mark a second ballot to select the stories they felt had the most long-range significance. This list was headed by the sluggish U.S. economy which covered the declining stock market, inflation, unemployment and numerous other business developments including a strike against General Motors.

Under the listing for "headline value" the editors ranked the deaths of four Kent State University students, killed by National Guardsmen during a confrontation on the campus in Ohio, as the No. 2 story.

The invasion of Cambodia by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops in May, which provoked a wave of student protests in the United States, including the one at Kent State, was ranked as the No. 3 story in the headline category. It was No. 2 in the most significant category.

The results of the voting by U.S. editors in the two categories:

Top 10 —Headline Value

1. Astronauts return safely in crippled Apollo 13 moonship.
2. Four Kent State students killed by National Guardsmen.
3. U.S., South Vietnam invade Cambodia.
4. Mass airline hijacks by Arab nationlists.
5. Charles de Gaulle dies.
6. Gamal Abdel Nasser dies.
7. U.S. Economy in trouble.
8. Crashes of charter planes carrying Wichita State and Marshall University football teams.
9. Cyclone and floods devastate East Pakistan.
10. U.S. midterm elections.

Racial violence in the United States, including police clashes with the Black Panthers and the shooting of two black students at Jackson State College in Mississippi, was a close runnerup to the top ten, as were developments in the Middle East and a wave of bombings in the United States.

Top 10—Significance

1. U.S. economy in trouble.
2. U.S., South Vietnam invade Cambodia.
3. Kent State students killed.
4. Indochina, including continued U.S. troop withdrawals and the stalled Paris peace talks.
5. The Middle East, including the cease-fire in August.
6. U.S. racial violence.
7. U.S. midterm elections.
8. Bombings in the United States.
9. Flight of Apollo 13.
10. Death of Nasser.

Political kidnapings in Latin America and Canada were ranked just outside the top ten in this category.

European Editors' Top Stories

7. Labor party loses British elections.
8. U.S., South Vietnam invade Cambodia.
9. Pope Paul attacked in Manila.

Asian Editors' Top Stories

MANILA (UPI) — Asian editors selected East Pakistan's devastating cyclone and tidal waves as the No. 1 news story of 1970 in the annual United Press International poll.

The Pakistani disaster was a slght choice over the Indochina War.

The top 10 headline stories selected by Asian editors:

1. East Pakistan diaster.
2. Indochina War.
3. China opens ties with major Western countries including Canada and Italy.
4. The Middle East.

Nursing Homes' Suit Brought

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A suit to halt the Reagan administration's 10 per cent Medi-Cal cut in nursing home fees was taken under consideration Tuesday by Superior Court Judge William Gallagher.

The reduction was part of a 10 per cent cutback in payments to Medi-Cal providers, including druggists and doctors, which went into effect Dec. 15. The administration took the action to avoid a threatened $140 million deficit in the current Medi-Cal budget.

The suit was filed Dec. 14 by the California Association of Nursing Homes in an effort to prevent the nursing home fee cut which decreases rates for patients from $14 a day to $12.60.

Man Bound Over For Hearing On Pot

Jimmy Lee Clemons, 21, of no known address, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of possessing marijuana. Arraignment was set for Monday.

Clemons was arrested in October 1969 after he was stopped in Larkspur on a traffic warrant. The district attorney's office said yesterday it would not proceed on a second charge, possession of LSD for sale, against Clemons.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Fly Now And Live A Little Decide About Marriage Later

DEAR HELEN:

I'm the luckiest girl in the world and the most miserable. You see, I love two boys equally as well. Both want to marry me, and —this sounds crazy, Helen, but I could be happy all the rest of my life with either one of them!

John is in the service and won't be home for a year. Dave is here, has a good job and says I have to make up my mind or he won't be around much longer. John gave me his ring. Dave wants me to send it back.

They're both wonderful guys. But here's another complication: I want to be an airline stewardess and live a little before I settle down. I've already passed my preliminary test and have a good chance.

What shall I do, toss a three-sided coin?

PUSHED, PULLED AND UNPERSUADED

DEAR P.P. AND U.:

Fly now, decide later, say I. . .And if you don't like my advice, well — you're that much closer to a decision, right? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You gave girls a list of "poor risk" qualities to watch out for in males. How about doing the same for guys? — DEKE

DEKE

We-l-l-l, maybe you should think twice about marriage if she —

1. Has nothing, but nothing, good to say about her family.
2. Orders the most expensive dinner on the menu and then leaves half of it.
3. On a picnic, won't go swimming because she might ruin her hair-do or makeup.
4. Makes fun of your friends.
5. Thinks all your former girl friends are creeps.
6. Wants things her way or not at all.
7. Figures she can win any argument with a tear.
8. Considers herself a sex symbol.
9. Can't understand your jokes.
10. Is catty about her girl friends.
11. Bores you (when you switch to conversation).
12. Doesn't know what's happening in the world and cares less.
13. Puts you down, or finds constant fault.
14. Can't talk intelligently about anything but clothes or herself.
15. Would be lost without a mirror.
16. Thinks your time is her time — every minute of it.
17. Hates sports (if you like them) or loves sports (if you dislike them).
18. At a party, either sticks to you like glue, or disappears completely.
19. Goes for "high" society — either kind.
20. Drinks too much.

If she qualifies on more than five of these points — you're taking a big chance. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In our paper, the APO number of the American Division (which wants mail) was evidently wrong, as my letter was returned. Could you give the address again? — DIANE

DEAR DIANE:

Letters to servicemen can be sent to AMERICA DIVISION, B Btry., 3d Bn., 16th Arty, APO San Francisco, 96374. Also to Vietnam Mail Call, Box 3104-A, Columbus, Georgia. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

MR. AND MRS. WARREN S. EAKLE

(Russ Booth photo)

Eakle-Hodges Vows Said In Marinwood

St. Vincent's Church in Marinwood was the setting for the wedding of Sheila Lynn Hodges and Warren Stephan Eakle Saturday.

Sheila is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Hodges of Novato, and Warren is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Avis Eakle of Santa Rosa.

Vivian Morse was maid of honor and Trudi George was bridesmaid, both of Novato.

Steven Schwartzberg was best man and ushers were Roger Shields and Gregory Hodges, all of Novato, and Kemper Eakle of Pleasanton.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Santa Cruz following a reception at Hamilton Air Force Base Officer's Club. The couple will live in Nashville, Tenn. where the bridegroom is presently attending Meharry Medical College as a dental student.

The bride was graduated from Novato High School and attended Sonoma State College and the University of California in Santa Barbara. She was employed at Marin General Hospital as a laboratory secretary. Gregory Hodges of Novato is her brother.

Warren was graduated from Annandale High School in Virginia and attended College of Marin and was graduated from Sacramento State College. He is the brother of Kemper and Kathy Eakle.

April Huber Is Engaged To Be Wed

The engagement of April Lucille Huber and S/Sgt. James Richard Powell was announced at a Christmas Eve dinner party held at the Belvedere home of the future bridegroom's aunt, Miss Martha Rising.

The bride-elect, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Huber of Normal, Ill., is a clinical specialist at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, where Sergeant Powell is a patient.

The son of Mrs. Norma R. Powell of Mill Valley and James P. Powell of Novato, the future bridegroom served starting in 1968 with the U.S. Army in Vietnam.

The future bride is a graduate of Normal Community High School in Illinois. She is the sister of Mrs.Lonnie Nick and Charmaine and David Huber of Normal.

Sergeant Powell was graduated from Tamalpais High School. He is the brother of Lynne Powell of San Anselmo and the grandson of Mrs. R.H. Rising of Mill Valley.

The couple will be married in the early spring and plan to reside in Marin County.

Proper Flame

When a range is adjusted properly, gas burns with a clear, blue flame and a sharply defined inner cone. There should be no traces of yellow in the gas flame. If there are, the American Gas Association suggests you try cleaning the burner. If the yellow persists, call your service representative or local utility company.

ON BEING BLACK

In 1971 Remember That 'Rain Doesn't Fall On One Roof Alone'

By SANDRA HAGGERTY

Like you, I somehow managed to survive 1970 — a year filled with pollution and antipollution, Women's Lib, black mobility and black immobility, honesty and dishonesty, deprivation and plenty, success and failure.

Another year and another chance is again before us. As a woman, a wife, a mother, a sister, a friend, an enemy, a neighbor, a consumer and a columnist, for 1971, I resolve:

To be calm (not have a nervous breakdown) as I watch my 7-year-old daughter, Kendall, disappear around the corner every morning on her way to school. She will go around many corners in her lifetime — alone.

TO PAY special attention to such details as the difference between an umpire and a referee.

To be patient with those who still do not understand the significance of the word black as opposed to colored and Negro. To "keep the faith" and realize that some good resulted from the contemporary black blitz and that it was not simply a case of water running off a duck's back.

To meet copy deadlines.

To listen attentively and even reflect as 4-year-old Gillian comes out with such question-statements as: "Did you know that porcupines pork you? And that Doberman pinschers pinch you? And that bees live on 'B' street in Hayward?"

TO BE alert when Coach Haggerty makes reference to the team — not to ask how many touchdowns the basketball team made.

To view letters without return addresses with a little less suspicion. Not only hate mail is unsigned.

To stop robbing my brother of column ideas (except in cases of urgency). Can I help it if he always seems to have a good idea?

To note that my next-door neighbor is probably not moving at 3 o'clock in the morning — only his television and stereo set are.

To not be surprised when my 7-year-old answers my idle question "How did I get a kid like you?" with the calm statement, "You know — sex."

TO ASK, from the get-go, whom I'm speaking with when attempting to attend to some business via the telephone. Dealing with an anonymous voice can accomplish just about nothing.

To rejoin my family and relatives via cards and letters.

To get myself organized. An African proverb states that, "Preparation does not spoil the journey." So far, I wouldn't know.

To give obviously racist sales people and public servants every opportunity to "do their job" before demanding to see the manager or owner.

To try to temper (at least) my unequivocal love for Muhammad Ali and Oscar Brown Jr. (Ah, joy.) After all, they are both married to lovely black women. Not only that, I've yet to meet either of them.

TO CONTINUE to strive to stand with those adults who view all children as their children and all people as their people, for (another African proverb), "Rain does not fall on one roof alone."

To accomplish at least one recognizable task, be it a mental resolvement or a physical undertaking, each day.

To realize that my daughter is growing up when she shrugs her shoulders and says matter-of-factly, "I don't know how the other kids do it, but this is the way I'm going to do mine."

My list, could go on and on, but if I at least scratch the surface of my resolutions, 1971 has a chance of being a good year.

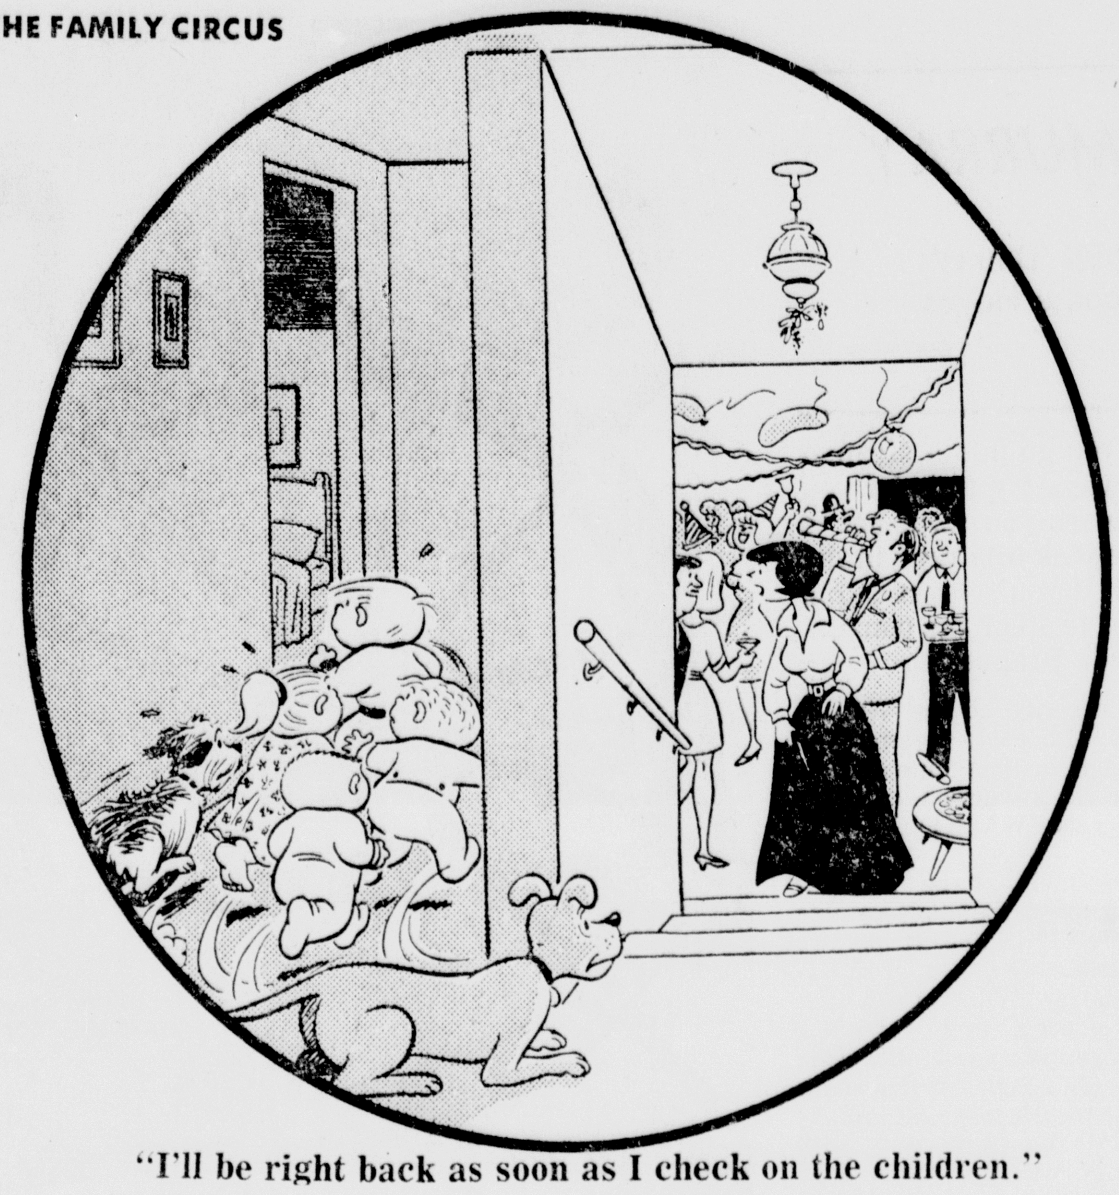
THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"I'll be right back as soon as I check on the children."

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Dec. 31, the 365th day of 1970.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Mars and Jupiter.

The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Capricorn.

On this day in history:

In 1879 Thomas Edison gave the first public demonstration of the incandescent lamp in Menlo Park, N.J.

In 1890 Ellis Island in New York Harbor became the receiving station for all immigrants from Europe.

In 1940 Adolf Hitler said, in a message to his Nazi groops, "The year 1941 will bring consummation of the greatest-victory in our history."

In 1946 President Truman proclaimed the official end of World War II.

A thought for today: Charles Lamb said, "Of all the sound of bells . . . the most solemn and touching is the peal which rings out the old year."

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Refuse First Trick To Block Opponent's Action

The object of the hold-up play is to win your first trick in a suit when one of the opponents plays his last card in that suit. If that opponent wins a later trick, he will be unable to lead his partner's long suit. We see this principle in a strange form in today's hand.

FINESSE TRY

West opened the six of spades, and East put up the ten. South pounced on this with the jack of spades, chuckling with satisfaction. Declarer then led the eight of diamonds for a finesse, losing to the queen.

East returned his other spade, and West won with the eight. West returned the king of spades to force out the ace, and now South had to return to the diamonds. West thereupon defeated the contract with the rest of the spades.

We can see why South went down by noticing that he failed to hold up properly. If you look at the principle stated in the opening paragraph you will note that South should not win the first spade trick.

NO GREAT COST

It costs South little or nothing to refuse the first trick. East wins with the ten of spades and returns his other spade. South plays the nine, and West wins with the queen of spades. Now if West continues with the spades, South gets two spade tricks. If West shifts, South has no problem.

WINS THE REST

Declarer can lose a diamond to the queen, and East will be unable to return a spade. West will later get the ace of diamonds but still will not be in position to run the spades. The defenders can get two diamonds and two spades, but South easily wins the rest.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:

♠ - K Q 8 6 5
♥ - K 5 4
♦ - A 3 2
♣ - 9 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You have 12 points in high cards and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide to bid rather than pass because you have fairly strong five-card major suit and excellent high-card structure.

That's Settled

MESSINA, Sicily (UPI)—Antonio Collela Mollica, 47, discovered today he was born after all. City officials who had told him there was no proof of his birth explained that another child with the same name was born the same day in the same community—but the name entered only once.

Whooping Crane Count Up To 73

The world's total whooper population now stands at 73, counting the 57 wild birds, 14 others in government wildlife programs and specimens living in zoos in San Antonio, Tex., and New Orleans.
